Henkel is livestockman of the year

HARRISBURG - John H. nkel, Strasburg R1, was med Livestock Man of the r at the annual awards quet of the Keystone estock International position Tuesday night at Host Inn, Harrisburg.

The exposition is spon- ed by the Pennsylvania estock Association in peration with the Penn- lvania Department of riculture and the Penn- lvania Farm Show mmission.

Henkel, who owns and erates the Willow Glen rm, raises Yorkshire s. He received a plaque m the Pennsylvania estock Association as an award. Last year's man of the year award was given to Ben Morgan who is serving as co-chairman of this year's expostion. The award was inaugurated in 1972.

In presenting the award, Max M. Smith, chairman of the Association's Awards Committee cited Henkel's activity on behalf of the swine industry beyond his personal herd of Yorkshire pigs at Willow Glen Farm. He has served as president of the Lancaster County Swine Producers and the Pennsylvania Pork Producers' Council. He's been a director of the Cooperative Swine Producers Association, the National Pork Producers' Council and is now chairman of that group's Policy Committee. Henkel was also instrumental in organizing the Pennsylvania Pork Producer's Council.

Henkel accepted his plaque with obvious modesty, as Smith - who incidentally is also Lancaster County's Agricultural Agent - described him as "a real leader in the Pennsylvania swine industry who has received national recognition as well."

The humbled award recipient proclaimed: "It takes good help at home to win this kind of an award, a good family, and most importantly, a good wife. I thank you very much!"

Henkel is a graduate of Rutgers University, having earned both his B.S. and M.S. degrees from that institution. A great supporter of pork producers' promotional programs, Henkel was very instrumental in drumming up support for the 10-cent check-offf program enacted earlier this year. He has been a member of the NPPC national executive board for 10 years, serving as chairman for two of those years.

Dedicated to the industry, the New Jersey native keeps 125 purebred Yorkshire sows on his 30-acre farm between Strasburg and Quarryville in southern Lancaster County. He sells a number of his animals for breeding purposes.

A unique and major aspect of Henkel's hog operation is that it deals directly with research. Specifically, research aimed at the KUTZTOWN, Pa. - One Kutztown area chapter member was elected president of the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association and a second was named State Outstanding Young Farmer at the association's convention held in Altoona recently.

Richard W. Hoppes of Hamburg R2, was elected president of the state association following his term as vice president of Region II of the PYFA. Hoppes has also previously served two years as public relations director and three years as editor of the organization's magazine publication.

Hoppes owns and operates a 25-acre farm, crops an additional 225 acres of rented land, and has 50 registered Holsteins and 30 replacement heifers.

In addition to his PYFA activities, Hoppes is a director for the Berks County DHIA and is a member of a number of farm organizations. He is also associated with the Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers, Interstate Milk Producers, and Agway, Inc.

PFA meeting concluded

GETTYSBURG, Pa. - The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) conferred Distinguished Service Awards to three men on Tuesday evening during a ceremony which took place at the Sheraton International Inn, here, where PFA is conducting its 26th annual meeting to set policy and elect new leaders.

PFA is a general farm organization with 20,313 family members, and is affiliated with the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The awards were presented to George A. Goodling, John R. Pitzer and Wayne Stainbrook.

Goodling is a former legislator who served seven terms in the State House of Representatives and six terms in the U.S. Congress where he was a member of the House Agriculture Committee. A native of Loganville, he operated a fruit farm and is editor and publisher of "Pennsylvania Fruit News". He is the father of six children including Congressman William Goodling.

Pitzer has been the president of PFA since 1969. He is not seeking re-election. In addition to being an Adams County orchardist, he is a community leader active in church, school and

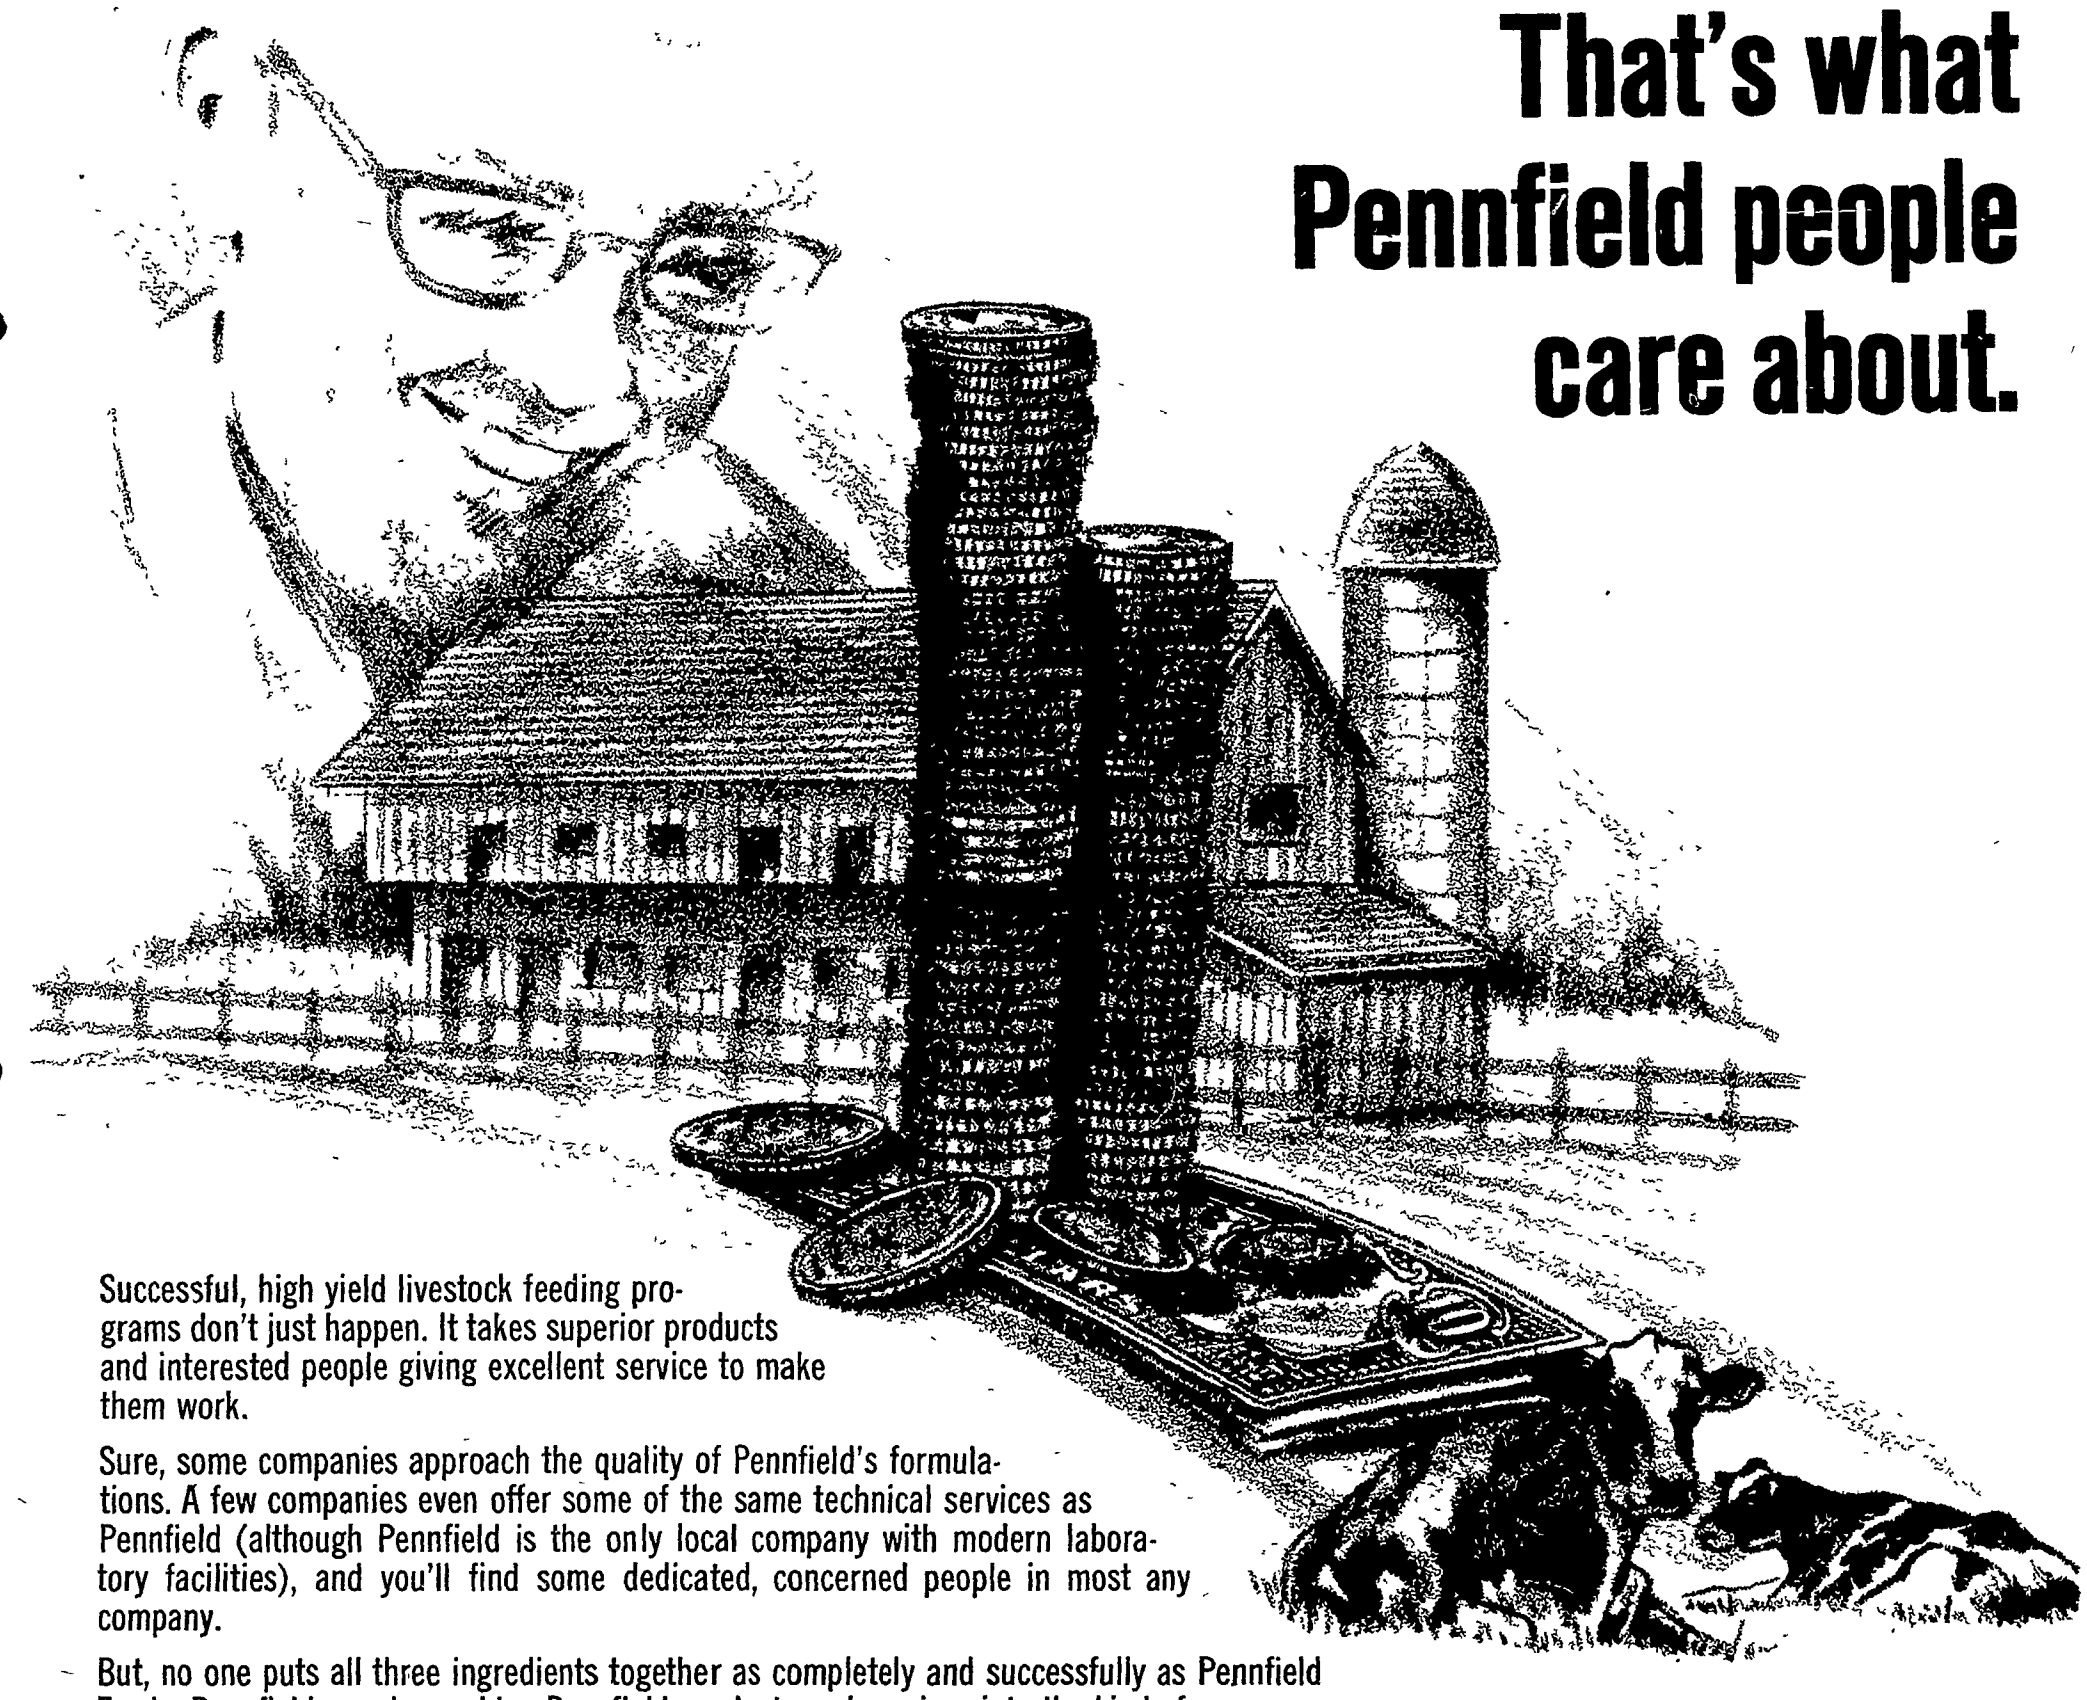
Your LIVESTOCK PRODUCTIVITY, your PROFITABILITY.



That's what Pennfield people care about.

Successful, high yield livestock feeding programs don't just happen. It takes superior products and interested people giving excellent service to make them work.

Sure, some companies approach the quality of Pennfield's formulations. A few companies even offer some of the same technical services as Pennfield (although Pennfield is the only local company with modern laboratory facilities), and you'll find some dedicated, concerned people in most any company.

But, no one puts all three ingredients together as completely and successfully as Pennfield Feeds. Pennfield people combine Pennfield products and services into the kind of complete livestock feeding and farm management programs that result in higher yields, planned growth, and increased profit for Pennfield customers.

Chemists, nutritionists, production personnel, veterinarians, computer technicians, business and marketing analysts, deliverymen, quality control specialists, financial experts, and more . . . led by your Pennfield Area Manager who can put them all together to develop and service a customized, profit-oriented program for you. These are Pennfield people. And, Pennfield people make Pennfield Feeds a better buy!

Structural Engineer.

Shell strength is a foundation for profit. And the Hy-Line® variety W-36 layer engineers a shell for the tough knocks of automated handling. Eggs that are ideal in size for profitable marketing. Plus, the W-36 reaches peak production competitively and stays above 80% longer.

Havermore eggs to sell through less breakage and longer production life. From the better-balanced W-36 layer... truly a Structural Engineer.

We're Proud Of PENNSYLVANIA JERSEYS!!

Numerous Jersey herds in Pennsylvania now have Rolling Herd Averages above 11,000 lbs. milk, near 600 lbs. fat . . .

Income over Feed Costs exceeds $1000 per cow in many cases . . .

Jersey milk becomes increasingly valuable as demand increases for high solids in milk . . .

Individual records continue to climb - a first-calf heifer in s.e. Pennsylvania recently completed a record of 2-1 365 22030 1075 (2x actual).

Friday, Nov. 12

These prices are made up of the average prices quoted by a number of participating area feed and grain concerns. It should be noted, however, that not every dealer or broker handles each commodity. All prices are per bushel except ear corn and soybean meal which are per ton.

The average prices quoted Friday, Nov. 12 are as follows:

	Bid+	Offered+
New Ear Corn	41.50	50.00
Old Ear Corn	60.00	70.00
Shelled Corn	2.15	2.30
Barley	1.93	2.10
Oats
Local	1.51	1.70
Western	1.84	2.01
Wheat
Millers	2.41	2.58
Soybeans	6.25	——
Soybean Meal		222.00

+Bid is the price the dealer will buy from the farmer delivered to the mill. Offered is the price the dealer will sell for at his mill.

Profit — 'praise its virtues'

HARRISBURG - John Chohlis, manager of Cattle Chows for Ralston Purina Co., St Louis, Mo believes the free enterprise system has enabled the American livestock producer to become the world's most efficient. As evidence he points out that while American cattlemen own only one tenth of the world's cattle, they produce one third of the world's beef. This has been done under a system which inspires and rewards achievement.

Chohlis spoke before the Pennsylvania Livestock Association's annual banquet at the Host Inn, here on, November 9. The event was part of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition being held in the state capitol

In spite of recent unprofitable markets for beef, Chohlis feels the long range outlook for the American cattle industry is bright. However, changes are pending.

"We believe that the so-called 'cheap grain' era of American agriculture is over which will cause us to retarget our research toward more efficient use of natural and waste roughages," Chohlis said.

Chohlis spoke chidingly about World Food Conferences which hold America responsible for starvation abroad and advocate a lowering of our standard of living. Such headline-seeking sensationalism has caused a rash of "myth-guided" criticism of America, according to Chohlis.

"Face up that profit is what powers the free-enterprise system," the Greek-born salesman announced in a demanding tone. "Praise its virtures! Look around at the rest of the world, and you'll realize that free-enterprise is the reason for our productivity."

The average American only needs to work 25 minutes to have his one-pound Sirloin steak. Fifteen other highly developed nations can't do better than 70 minutes' work for that same steak. In Japan it takes 295 minutes. "No other country can match the U.S.," Chohlis exclaimed.

"Profit is as important to our economy as our bill of rights is to our government," the Purina manager suggested. "Profit should be celebrated, the same as we celebrated our Nation's Bicentennial. Without profit we wouldn't be anything."

Aside from the free-enterprise system, Chohlis also had high marks for freedom. "It's vital to us," he announced.

According to Chohlis, American agriculture exports enough foodstuffs to pay for 80 per cent of the oil that is imported into this country. He further stated that there is no food shortage in the world - it's just that not everyone has enough money to buy it.

He considers the family farm to be the driving force within agriculture and predicts prosperity for American farmers for as long as freedom and free-enterprise remain a part of our system.

ON DETECTING A CHRISTIAN

Lesson for November 14, 1976

Background Scripture:
Romans 12
Devotional Reading:
Romans 12:1,2,19-21

A popular Christian folksong says:

"And they'll know we are Christians By our love."

It is probably the best way to detect a Christian, although it is hardly a universally-accepted standard. Recently I attended a neighborhood church for a Sunday morning service. The sermon title was "Who Is A Christian?" and the answers proclaimed by the preacher were all oriented to belief: "A Christian is a person who believes in God - Jesus Christ - - the Holy Spirit - ", etc. While I would not discount the importance of belief, I was disappointed that not one of the answers from the pulpit that morning said anything at all about "love," for I am convinced that this is the chief means of detecting a Christian.

Members one of another

But what do we mean by "love"? Certainly, "love" is one of the most dog-earred, misunderstood, and misapplied terms in the English language.

In Romans 12 the Apostle Paul spells it out quite clearly.

On the one hand, "love" must certainly have some effect upon our relationships with other followers of Christ. We can hardly be Christian if we do not practice "brotherly affection" (12·10) with those who are our brethren in Christ

Of course, we all know that!

Ah yes, we "know" it, but is it evident to the world about us? Can the world "know we are Christians by our love" when they find the Church so disunited? When they see how we avoid each other and stick to our own private parochial worlds, when they witness our denominational and sectarian jealousies and squabbles, when they behold Protestants and Catholics maiming each other in Northern Ireland and Christians slaughtering Moslems (and vice versa) in Lebanon, can we wonder why the world might be confused about who and what a follower of Jesus Christ should look like?

To use Paul's analogy of the human body with many parts, the Church often appears to be a person who is totally un-cordinated, the parts of the body not only going their own way and doing their own thing, but also not even recognizing that the other parts of the body even exist!

No repayment necessary

Secondly, Paul indicates that a Christian will be one who also expresses love to enemies as well. Even if we master the art of loving our brethren, we are not truly Christian until we have extended that love to those who abuse us. For example, when did you last "bless those who persecute you"? "Bless and do not curse them," says Paul (12:14). (Go ahead, I'll wait while you search your memory on that question.) Actually, have you ever blessed anyone who treated you unkindly?

And, in case you're not sure what it means to "bless," Paul goes on to say: "Repay no one evil for evil..." (12:17)! How do you stock up there? Don't think this is some odd-ball idea of Paul's for he got it directly from Christ himself. Jesus not only said it, he demonstrated it in his own life - and - death.

NOW IS THE TIME...

The cattle and hog situation are both at the pont where it requires good management in order to meet production costs. The hog producer has been riding the crest of red meat prices during the past year, but now is facing market prices that may not cover all production costs. The cattle feeder has lost money on his enterprise but the outlook is brighter for the year ahead. In both cases, every feeder should place special effort on healthy animals, good feed conversion, and market when the animals reach the desired grade. At this time of the year, the control of both external and internal parasites should be on the list of practices; it costs money fo feed lice and stomach worms. Also, the loss of feed at the feeders is too widespread; many automatic feeders waste feed that costs money for the producer. Feeders are urged to focus more attention on good management and high efficiency in order to stay in business.

xxx

What should be done with leftover pesticides and spray materials? We often get this question at our Extension Office. Usually, the answer is to keep them in the original container and store them in a special room or building away from children, pets, livestock, seeds and feed supplies. It is not a good practice to throw them away because, in most cases, they are good to be used next season. The important thing is not to leave them around where they can be mis-used or be eaten by a person or animal. Most liquid materials should be stored in a place where they will not get frozen. Weed killers should not be in the same area as leftover seeds; these materials may reduce the germination of the seeds. Be careful in the storing of all pesticides; they warrant special attention at this time of the year.

xxx

The neglect of seldom used tractors or motors at this time of the year could result in frozen water systems and a burst block. The freeze last week reminded us of this danger. Many motors are not used daily during the winter and need to be drained or treated with an anti-freeze solution. Also, tractors and trucks used frequently need to be checked to be sure of sufficient anti-freeze mixtures.

xxx

The acorn crop seems very heavy this year from all kinds of oak trees. This is a very fond of acorns and will go searching for them. Small amounts of acorns will reduce milk production, while larger amounts will cause diarrhea and poisoning. Milk cows that drop in production from acorns will not regain normal production until the next lactation; this can be a serious loss in a herd of cows. Producers are urged to keep their cattle away from pastures containing oak trees with much of an acorn crop. Hogs could utilize the acorns best of all animals, but modern management does not permit many hogs under oak trees.

AGWAY 840 X

"The best hybrid Agway has ever offered my growers."

NICK FERRANT, JR. AGWAY CROPS SPECIALIST

If you grow corn in Delaware, Maryland, Jersey or southeastern Pennsylvania, take a tip from Nick Ferrant. Be sure to include Agway 840X in your planting plans for '77.

In Nick's words, "In long-season areas, I doubt if any corn will beat this one when well grown. High yields of silage and grain, excellent standability and high-population performance . . . and medium-low ears that harvest beautifully."

Another of Nick's favorites? Agway 834X. A great long-season grain hybrid.

This year, put both in your corn program. Agway 840X and 834X will come through with the energy results you need and you'll find out that Nick really knows what he's talking about.

LLOYD HOOVER

"Success is not what you do, but what you do compared to what you could have done," announced 19-year old Lloyd Hoover while accepting a handsome plaque from the livestock organization. "The important point is to always do the best you can."

It's a way of life which Hoover, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hoover, Leola, has followed religiously. He further quotes Galations 6:4 to illustrate his attitude on life: "Let everyone be sure he is doing his very best for then he will have the personal satisfaction of work well done, and won't need to compare himself with someone else."

Although he's not yet 20 years old, Hoover has attained levels of achievement and recognition which many adults can only dream of. He's well underway with his own hog operation on his parents' 50-acre farm, and he's acting manager of Dunlap Cattle Company's hog division at the Lancaster Stock Yards. One of his unique achievements is having developed a swine breeding chart for which he is currently seeking a patent. He has met President Ford three times.

One of nine children to be raised on the 50-acre farm, young Hoover is the first in the family to have graduated from high school. It was his strong interests in agriculture which drove him towards that goal - even though it meant transferring from one high school to another in order to participate in the FFA program. He graduated from Garden Spot High School in 1975, after having piled up a remarkable string of achievements within the ag curriculum. He is a former vice president of the Pennsylvania FFA organization and served as president of the Grassland Chapter.

While success has been a way of life for the young man, he has not allowed himself to rest on his laurels nor lose his humble attitude. "I still have so much to learn," he said occasionally lest anyone get the impression that he has fulfilled his ambitions. Nothing could be further from the truth. He wants to continue his work with the hog division at Dunlap and has simultaneous hopes of someday purchasing his own Lancaster County farm. A farrow to finish operation with 40 sows is his ideal. In the past he has worked with a purebred Duroc herd from which he has sold breeding stock to all parts of the Keystone State. He started with a chain gilt from his school and the bulk of the herd was derived from her.

Another one of Hoover's goals is to earn the American Farmer Degree - the highest award obtainable in the FFA program.

The modest young man readily admits that his activities keep him busy. The job at the Stock Yards takes six days a week for a total of around 40 hours. His work at home requires another 40 hours. That doesn't leave much time for girls, but somehow Hoover has managed that part of his life too, and he's presently engaged to Elaine Diffenderfer. Marriage plans are slated for next Spring.

It was about 11 years ago when Hoover first "went into business" for himself. He emptied his piggy bank and bought a few guinea pigs. Successful with that, he sold them for enough money to buy two Angus heifers. So began a veal calf raising project. His farming operations have always been solvent.

Commenting on the FFA program itself, Hoover says "it turns a person inside out, it gives you a good look at yourself and helps you find out what you want to do." He credits his FFA years in high school as having been very instrumental in putting him on a path which has led to success for him and believes strongly that it can do the same for anyone. "The FFA is there to provide worthy and unlimited opportunities in order for young people to achieve in agriculture and related businesses," he says.

"A youth becoming involved in agriculture today can experience the satisfaction not only through individual achievement, but because of the dependence and respect the American people are beginning to have for agriculture. I feel that people are beginning to realize that the farmer is more than a tiller of the soil. He's a businessman, a veterinarian, a plant scientist, a soil specialist, a marketing agent and a common laborer all in one.

"And as success is achieved by the farmer, he and only he can feel the satisfaction because of the actual benefits of the efforts he has made," Hoover concluded.

Manor FFA boys given medals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Four members of the Manor FFA Chapter received medals at the 49th National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo., last Thursday. Rick Falk, Millersville R1, took a bronze in meats judging. Falk is the top Pennsylvania judge in meats.

Craig Harnish, Lancaster R6, won a silver medal in swine showmanship; Kevin Kilheffer, Lancaster, took a silver in sheep showmanship; and John Mylin, Willow Street, took a bronze in sheep showmanship.

In order to take part in this contest, the FFA member had to be one of the top three individuals in the state, and at Kansas City, only the top third of all the state competitors were rated.

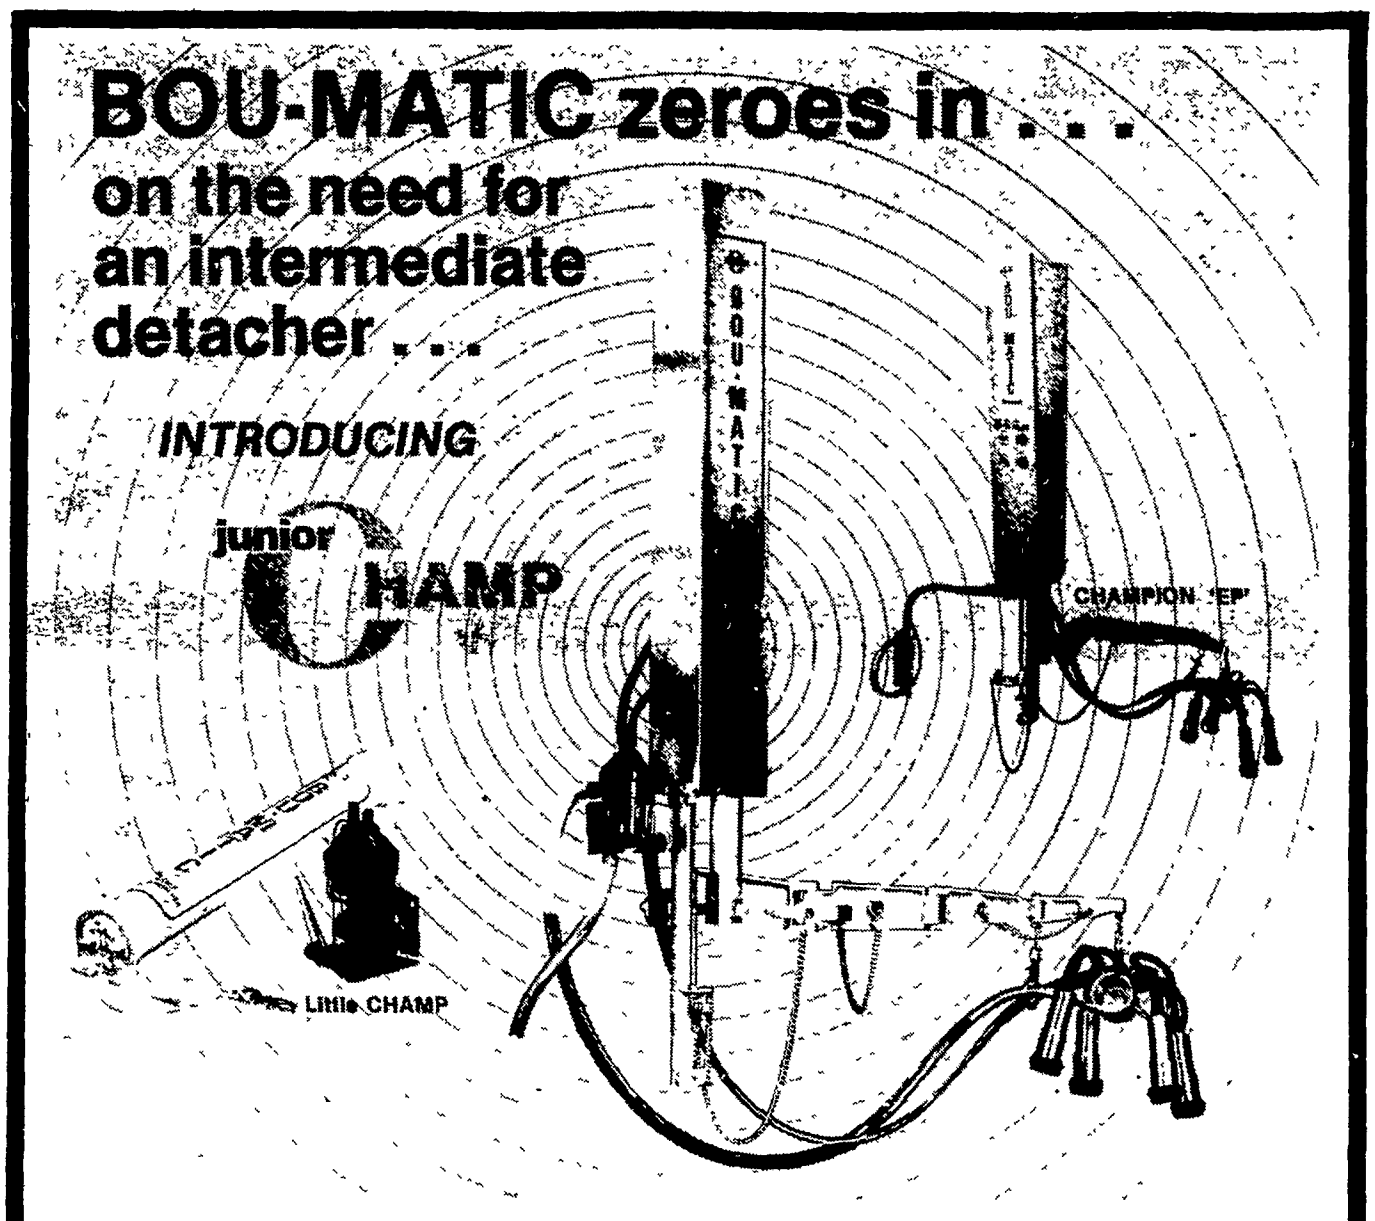
Top capon brings $8.50 per pound

LANCASTER, Pa. - Three capon roundups were held last week in and around Lancaster. Linda Hershey, 304 Newport Road, Lititz, had the grand champion of the Lancaster County roundup held at the Elks Club on Tuesday. Tim Breneman, Millersville R1, was the reserve champion of this particular roundup sponsored by the Lancaster Kiwanis Club.

The Ephrata Area Community Roundup, sponsored by the Ephrata Rotary Club, was capped with an auction. Kerry Boyd, Ephrata R1, exhibited the grand champion bird which brought $8.50 per pound. A ten pound bird, it grossed $85.00 for Boyd. Anita Augsburger, Reinholds, exhibited the reserve champion bird which sold for $5 per pound. Anita's brother, Scott, had the fourth place capon in the roundup which brought $)2.75 at the auction. Michael Pfautz, Stevens R1, had the third place bird which brought $2.45 per pound, and Tim Pfautz showed the fifth place capon which sold for $2.10 per pound at the auction.

The Manheim Rotary Club sponsored the Manheim roundup, and in that competition, Philip Nissley, Manheim R5, exhibited the grand champion bird, and Wendy Huber, Lititz R3, showed the reserve champion.

BOU-MATIC zeroes in . . . on the need for an intermediate detacher . . .



An automatic, all air and vacuum operated detacher, with Champion features at a low cost, makes Junior CHAMP the finest intermediate detacher available.

Junior CHAMP uses some of the same reliable convenience features as the CHAMPION 'EP' detacher such as: the patented, positive-position, 4-link flexible arm to help position and support the milking unit under the cow while attaching. The quiet, reliable, air-powered detach and retract mechanism. And, the snap-swivel, claw and hose hangers to allow the milking unit to float freely with normal cow movement, prevent hose binding and permit quick, easy milker removal, if desired.

Then, for consistent, accurate flow sensing, the simple to operate Little CHAMP Flow Sensor is used to establish the milking mode, sense milk-flow rate, provide for positive vacuum shut-off to the unit, time delay and when to detach the milking unit from the cow.

If you're planning to invest in detachers, consider your needs, then consider the full line of features available in the CHAMPION Series of detachers, from BOU-MATIC. From the Little CHAMP, a basic detacher at a basic price, to the intermediate Junior CHAMP, with Champion features at a low cost, to the Dairy Proven CHAMPION 'EP' detacher, the ultimate in management and automation features.

Chester Co. honors its top dairy 4-H'ers

KIMBERTON, Pa. - Chester County honored its 4-H youth and leaders involved in dairying last Saturday night at the Kimberton Fire Hall, here. The evening's festivities began with a meal served family style. Following the dinner, trophies and gifts were handed out. One special gift went to Charles Wollaston, Toughkennamon, who was honored for 22 years of service to the 4-H organization. In his introduction, it was said of Wollaston that "he helps everyone whether they are in his club or not." Mildred Seeds, another Chester County dairy leader who went right from 4-H membership to 4-H leadership was also given a certificate for 15 years of service.

In the youth awards portion of the evening, the first to be honored were the county 4-H dairy show champions. In Ayrshire competition, Ardrossan G. R. Just Fine, owned by Kennard Henley, III, of Cochranville who is a member of the Manor 4-H Dairy Club, was the grand champion. Reserve champion was also owned by Henley. The animal was Towerview Kelly's Nina.

The grand champion of the Brown Swiss breed belonged to David C. Nolan, who is a member of the Chester Co. 4-H Black and White Club. The animal was Quaker West Janet Darlene.

Heit Haven Pam, owned by Jeff Staner of the Tri-Community 4-H Dairy Club was grand champion of the Guernsey breed. Reserve grand also belonged to Staner.

In the Holstein breed, Dean Yarnall of the Manor 4-H Dairy Club, had the grand champion. She was Kieer-View Paclamar Shine-Twin. Beverly Guest of the Chester County 4-H Black and White Club had the reserve champion with Century -Oak Star Christy.

In the Jersey breed, Bruce Heller had the grand champion with Top-O-Hill Vedas Miss Gratz. Junior champion belonged to Denise Andrien with Damview L. H. R. Miss Lucy.

Douglas Marsh had both the grand and reserve grand Milking Shorthorns with Pinesedge Cherry Dee and Kingsdale Precious Rose.

Champion fitters were also honored at the dinner. Champion first year fitter is Lorrie Ann Duncan of the Oxford 4-H Dairy Club, and reserve champion is Timothy Kurtz of the Chester Co. 4-H Black and White Club.

Champion first year showman is Timothy Kurtz and reserve is Lorrie Ann Duncan. Bruce Andrien, Chester Valley 4-H Dairy Club is champion junior fitter-showman and Bruce Heller, Chester Valley 4-H Dairy Club, is reserve champion junior fitter-showman. Champion senior fitter showman was David Nolan, and reserve went to Cathy Wollaston, Manor 4-H Dairy Club.

The Good Housekeeping award went to the Chester Valley 4-H Dairy Club.

Based on record books, county 4-H milk production awards were also given. The records are computed to a 305, 2X, mature equivalent basis for cows with a completed lactation.

In the Ayrshire breed, Kennard Henley III, had another winning animal with Towerview Lively Minerva, a six year old. She milked 15,400 pounds of milk with 657 pounds of fat. Dave Nolan also had a repeat champion in Quaker West Janet Darlene. The Brown Swiss champion gave 15,945 pounds of milk with 753 pounds of fat.

In the Holstein breed, Spring Aqua Cindy, a two-year-old owned by Sandra Evans of the Chester County 4-H Black and White Club, was the top animal with

Nutrena Controlled Release CLS— so different, it's patented

Your cattle will like Nutrena Controlled Release CLS and you'll like the benefits behind this new development in liquid supplements. The patented process controls the release of protein-building ammonia nitrogen in the rumen compared with a conventional urea-based liquid supplement. This improves the feeding efficiency of the urea. And, the slow-down means an extra margin of safety from urea toxicity—that's important when self-feeding liquid supplement.

Nutrena Controlled Release CLS liquid supplement—a product of Cargill research. It's great for dairy herds as well as beef cattle on range, pasture, stalks, stubble or in the feedlot.

Moll is member of national FFA band

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Leon Moll, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne L. Moll, of Bowers, Pa., was one of 120 FFA members from across the nation who participated in the National FFA band. Moll was selected from over 500 applicants representing 44 states and played trombone. After two days of intensive practice prior to the convention, the band performed during all but one session of the 49th National Convention of the Future Farmers of America this past week in Kansas City, Mo. Moll is a member of the Kutztown FFA Chapter, where his advisors are Donald W. Reinert and Ben Newcomer. Moll is now a freshman at Ursinus College where he plays in the band.

Often referred to as the "mail order band" because of the method of recruiting members, the National FFA Band was first organized in 1947. Since that time competition for the honor of playing in the band has steadily increased. Under the direction of Roger Heath; Director of Virginia Tech Bands, the FFA Band has gained a reputation for its polished performances even though bandsmen have only two days of practice together prior to their first performance.

FFA members who play in the band arrive in Kansas City two days before the convention starts so they can begin practicing. "Although we send band members the more difficult music ahead of time, it still takes a lot of practice to get ready for our first performance on Wednesday morning," says Heath. "We spend six to eight hours Sunday afternoon and evening practicing the music and working out marching formations," he explains. "We also practice all Monday and Tuesday, and the rest of the week we keep in shape by short practice sessions and concert performances."

Although the FFA convention officially ended Friday evening the bandsmen will not finish their week's work until noon Saturday at the conclusion of the American Royal Parade. Traditionally, the FFA Band has been featured as the leading marching unit in the parade which signals the end of the National FFA Convention and the opening of the American Royal Livestock and Horse Show.

Pa. horses on top

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania horsemen ran away with the top awards in quarter horse competition at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, taking all six major prizes.

Bob and Jane Rineer, Dallastown, York County, captured the grand champion and reserve grand champion stallion awards. Their three-year-old stallion, "Cool Class," was named grand champion and "Plain Trouble," their yearling colt, was reserve champion.

The grand champion mare, "Loot's Honey Bun," a two-year-old filly, was shown by the D Bar J Farm, Mifflinburg, Union County. Reserve grand champion mare was "Eternal Elegance," a yearling filly shown by Tom and Sharon Burks, Mechanicsburg, Cumberland County.

Herman R. Ewell, East Earl, Lancaster County, showed the grand champion gelding, "Ultra Skip," a two-year-old. The reserve grand champion gelding, a four-year-old named "Sharp Sting," was shown by Cathy M. Pennypacker, Reading, Berks County.

Judy Sujansky, Somerset, Somerset County, was judged the Youth Activity Performance Champion. The reserve champion for Youth Activity Performance was Suzanne Peterson, Lancaster.

Farming was different on rebel side

By DIETER KRIEG

EDITOR'S NOTE: Agriculture is the foundation of any civilization. During this Bicentennial Year LANCASTER FARMING has been saluting the area's farmers through feature stories on farms which have been in the same family for 100 years or more. This is the 27th such article in a continuing series.

PYLESVILLE, Md. - Farming was a bit different south of the Mason-Dixon line, compared to a life on the farm up North. Whereas the settlers to the north depended largely on themselves and big families to get the work done, southern farmers often had access to blacks to help with the chores. Such was the case at a 120 acre farm near here which is presently owned by Major and Mrs. Tom Wilson.

Reluctant to use the term "slave," the Major explained that the several blacks on this farm lived with the family. They had separate quarters, but shared the same house and appeared in many of the family's pictures. Blacks stayed with the same families for generations, Wilson pointed out, and a few were still in the household when he was a boy. Remembering one lady in particular, he exclaimed "Irene used to make fabulous breakfasts - buckwheat cakes and sausage - we always had something good from Spring to Fall: cherries, strawberries, huckleberries, peaches, persimmons, etc." Irene was the daughter of a slave.

It was 193 years ago this month since the Wilson family came to America. Humphrey Wilson was the first, arriving on the shores of the upper Chesapeake Bay on Nov. 3, 1783

After a 108 day sea voyage from Ireland. To top off the nearly four-month ordeal, his vessel arrived here shipwrecked.

The land now owned by Major Wilson and his family was originally given to Humphrey via a grant from the king. Some of the property has been sold off, due to economic conditions. But Wilson, who is a retired Army officer, and his wife still own the original homestead and 120 acres. The property is a source of pride to both and they heartily proclaim that they intend to preserve the land as a farm for as long as possible. "We hate to see houses come up this way," the Major said. "There's a sense of pride you experience from living on a place like this which gives you a special continuity of history," Mrs. Wilson added. She has spent numerous hours doing research on old family records and has become very much involved in retaining the look and flavor of the past in her home.

Acknowledging that they have had no easy task, the Wilsons continue to resist the pressures faced by all farmers - be they southern or northern. Land in this area is selling for as much as some of the better parcels in Lancaster County.

The Wilsons' home is an old log house which dates back to the American Revolution. Its 14-inch logs insulate and protect well, but have been quite a problem for contractors whom the Wilsons have hired in the past to do some remodeling. "The logs are hard as nails," Wilson explained, adding that it cost the contractor several saw blades before he could cut through one of the massive old lengths of timber.

Besides the old logs, the house at one time also featured hand-blown glass. Still a part of the structure are the hand-hewn nails and some pressed wood shavings for insulation. Knowledgeable in the antique field, Wilson claims he can tell the difference between nails which were forged in either Connecticut or Pennsylvania.

As is typical of old homes, the quaint Wilson house originally had a minimum of closet and window space. A curiosity about the home is that it has three variations of levels on the first floor - a feature which the Wilsons claim is probably unique in all of Harford County.

Major and Mrs. Tom Wilson cherish their heritage, their farm, and their beef cattle.

In addition to the house, the living style of 19th Century America included a smoke house, ice house, and spring house. Noting that all homes were built close to springs in those days, the Major pointed out that a hand-dug well is also on the property. It's lined with stones for 40 feet up. The spring house - like most all spring houses - was used for the cooling of milk and butter as well as obtaining water. The ice house was still in use when Wilson was a young man and he vividly recollects the hard work involved in filling it. Covered with a layer of sawdust, the ice would keep until mid-Summer of the following year.

"Smoke and salt was the way to preserve meat in those days," the Major announced. It was something he himself could remember from his childhood.

A far different recollection of the family - although it predates the Major's own lifetime - is that of an actual hanging that took place just across from the Wilson farm. That was the fate of a horse thief.

Also remembered by Wilson is the Christmas season the way it was when servants were still a part of the household. Servants were customarily allowed as much time off as the old Yule log would burn in their employer's fireplace. Amazingly enough, the old log would burn for two weeks - thanks to it having been thoroughly soaked in water for several weeks prior.

The rustic, well-kept barn remains largely empty as far as livestock is concerned, although the Major and his wife maintain a herd of 20-some beef cattle. Both take great pleasure in working with the animals and address each one by name whenever the occasion calls for it.

Like most barns which have been around for as long as this one (1860), the cavernous structure features immense hand-hewn logs, wooden pegs, and a slate roof. The latter was especially common in this area since the slate mine at Delta, Pa., was just a short distance away. Wooden stanchions still remain intact in the stable.

Formerly a tobacco and dairy farm, the Wilson property is now partially farmed by North Harford High School and a cousin of the Major.

Both of Wilson's grandfathers fought in the Civil War, and interestingly enough, on opposite sides. Several old documents from the war are displayed in the Wilson home.

"Those were hard times - not much to come and go on," the Major sighed in remembrance of the stories he heard about the Civil War. The family here could hear the booming of the cannons in Gettysburg, located less than 50 miles (direct air measurement) to the west-northwest.

One of Wilson's grandfathers used to peddle produce in Baltimore, an undertaking which took up to a full day from pre-dawn until long after dark. Oftentimes not returning home until the following day, he'd return home with goods for the family to use.

When roads were built, the land required for the project was gladly donated by farmers who were to be connected by the new traffic network. "They were glad to get out of the mud," the Major explained with an accompanying smile. But the new roads weren't as much appreciated during the Winter when each farmer had to shovel his own share. It was manual labor all the way, and the Major can remember having been payed 10 cents an hour for it. "But that was when you could buy two pounds of butter for 49 cents," his wife added.

Goods were often transported by sled during the winter, and the fields were the right-of-ways. Also of significant importance to the transportation picture here decades ago was the Maryland and Pennsylvania Railroad, or the "Ma and Pa" for short.

Today the railroad is just a memory. A state road carries traffic swiftly. But some of the relics of an era gone by continue to be found from time to time.

Among the findings the Wilsons have uncovered are pieces and parts of old farm machinery, and grave markers with just a single name on them. It's preseumed that these referred to slaves, as the blacks were only known by their first names.

elimination or reduction of swine diseases.

Many of this pigs are marketed at five or six weeks of age for veterinary experimentation. The goal is to help find cures for rhinitis, and mycoplasma pneumonia. Henkel estimated that between 60 and 65 per cent of the U. S. hog population is affected by one or even both of these diseases.

Although neither of these production complications have an effect on consumption qualities of pork, they are of concern and exemplify just one area where Henkel is actively doing his best to help the industry.

Top Michigan dairyman addresses area farmers

By DIETER KRIEG

BIRD-IN-HAND, Pa. - "I've been happily married for 15 years," Ken Pendall announced in an easy tone, before adding "out of 26!" A crowd pleaser from the start through his humorous and friendly style of talking, Pendall was in town Thursday to address an estimated 600 southeastern Pennsylvania farmers who had come to hear about his dairy operation back home in Michigan. His talk was one of the features of a program sponsored by Penn-Jersey Harvestore of New Holland. A similar affair was held near Allentown on Friday giving the Penn-Jersey people a total crowd of approximately 800 guests to feed and entertain.

What does Pendall's married life have to do with the dairy business? As he himself explained it, the average wasn't too bad and considering that his wife had been pretty fair about not having the kitchen remodeled while all sorts of things went on down at the dairy, he thought he could throw some money in her direction.

Pendall and his brother own and operate a 170-plus cow Holstein dairy farm which boasts the highest production in all of Michigan for herds with 100 cows or more. In 1975 the brothers' partnership eclipsed the 700 pound butterfat mark, thereby becoming the first herd in his county to have done so. Their milk production currently rates an average of 17,300 pounds per cow on 172 head. That compared with an average of 12,480 pounds of milk and 447 of fat in 1974, when he first began to change his feeding system. His present program includes six air-tight silos.

Having started in the dairy business 24 years ago with a very limited amount of capital, Pendall proclaims that "a good dairy herd is like a checking account - you've got to add to it to keep it in balance."

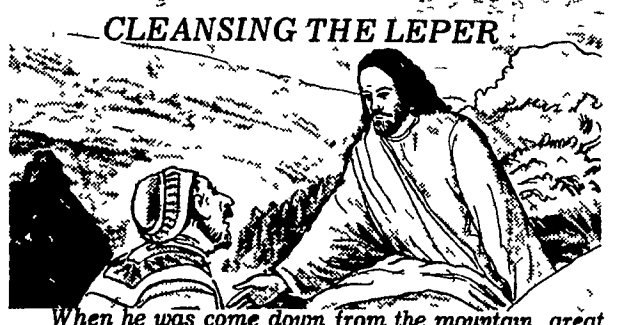
The Pendall Brothers' operation is a free-stall system which incorporates a 2-acre dirt exercise lot. Dirt is always preferred to concrete unless it's raining, Pendall said. Milking is done in a "home-made" parlor, also known as a short 2-row stall barn which is operated like a parlor without the convenience of not having to bend.

Pendall expressed some strong feelings on calf raising, claiming that they should most definitely not be neglected. Showing slides of his farm, Pendall outlined his youngstock raising program to the attentive crowd. They're tied in individual stalls with plywood petitions and receive a variety of shots to prevent incidents of diseases. The whole program revolves perpetually in steps at certain ages - except for breeding - which is done according to size, not age.

Commenting briefly on this year's Midwestern drought, Pendall said that the forages on his farm proved to be up to par in quality, but down in yields.

Held at the Plain and Fancy Restaurant, the second portion of the program featured Richard Dennison, manager of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association's Farm Management and Business Analysis Service.

CLEANSING THE LEPER



When he was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him.

And behold, there came a leper and worshipped him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.

And Jesus saith unto him, See thou tell no man, but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a testimony unto him

St. Matthew 8 1-4

Top herdsmen cited

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania received top honors when herdsmen awards were handed out at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition at the Farm Show.

Clyde McConaughey, Jr., Smicksburg, Indiana County, was the top swine herdsman, with his herd of Chester Whites and Durocs.

Don Shidemantle, Conneautville, Crawford County, was the top Charolais herdsman for the second straight year, and Tom Weimer, New Alexandria, Westmoreland County, had the best Polled Hereford herd.

Top winners in the other beef herds were:

Jacob Tanis, III, Augusta, N.J., Angus; Wildesen Herefords, Uniontown, Md., Hereford; and Terry Lee Kibler, Woodstock, Va., Shorthorn.

The top Shepherd Herdsman award went to Elizabeth S. Grey, of Woodbine, Md. Ms. Grey was the winner of the herdsman competition in 1975.

HARRISBURG - The 20th Annual Keystone International Livestock Exposition opened last Saturday in Harrisburg with a full slate of activites continuing through yesterday. The world's finest beef cattle, swine, sheep and saddle horses were on exhibition during the seven-day event at the State Farm Show Complex. Following are results in beef cattle competition.

R. A. Shidemantle and Sons, Conneautville, Crawford County, were named premier breeder and premier exhibitor in the Charolais breeding cattle class.

The Crawford County breeders led an all-Pennsylvania cast to the awards handed out in the Charolais class, showing the senior and reserve grand champion bull, the reserve senior champion bull, the reserve junior champion bull, the champion bull calf and the reserve champion junior female.

The grand champion bull, "J.C. Uranium 520," previously the junior champion bull, is a late summer yearling shown by J. C. Enterprises, Ringgold, Jefferson County. "She Miss Royal San 69," the grand champion and senior champion female was shown by Penn State University, Centre County.

Other Pennsylvania winners in Charolais competition were Gordon R. Smith, Landenburg, Chester County, whose senior heifer calf, "GC Miss Mimi," was named junior champion

Randall Reed, left, judged this Charolais specimen as the grand champion female of the Charolais breeding cattle show. Bred and owned by Penn State University, the animal is being attended by herdsman Don Nichols, with his wife looking on.

HARRISBURG, Pa. - The 1976 Keystone International Livestock Exposition is history. Following are highlights of the various sheep show results.

In the Hampshire breeding classes, Albert Wilson, Jr., of Rural Retreat, Va., dominated, winning premier exhibitor, champion ram and champion ewe honors.

The reserve champion ram, a one-year-old, was entered by the Ban Vleck Farm, Woodbury, Conn. Old Trail Farm, Fostoria, Ohio, showed the reserve champion ewe, a fall lamb.

In the Shropshire breeding classes, the University of Connecticut exhibited the champion ram and ewe. G & S Shrops of Greenfield, Ohio, was named premier exhibitor for the Shropshire breeding classes.

The Keystone International Exposition is widely recognized as one of the three largest sheep shows in the United States.

Erdenheim Farm Lafayette Hill, Pa., was named premier exhibitor in the Cheviot sheep show.

The Erdenheim Farm received the honor by amassing the highest number of points in all classes in the competition. The farm took reserve champion ewe honors with ERD Lass 284, a one year and under two year old ewe.

The remainder of the Cheviot ribbons went to the Martin Brothers, Willard, HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania swine breeders fared well in competition among breeder swine Tuesday at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition held at the Farm Show.

State breeders captured all the major awards in Yorkshire competition, the two championships in Duroc classes, two of five major championships in the Chester White classes before being shut out in the Berkshire classes.

Strawbridge and McCleary, Stewartstown, York County, had a virtual hold on the Yorkshire class, winning with the champion and reserve champion boars, the reserve champion gilt, and being named the premier exhibitor. Reno H. Thomas, Beavertown, Snyder County, showed the champion gilt of the Yorkshire class.

In the Duroc breeding swine class, Clyde W. McConaughey and Son, Smicksburg, Indiana County, showed the champion boar. The champion gilt was also exhibited by a Pennsylvania, James Stratton, Greenville, Mercer County. LaVern Weller and Sons, Dwight, Illinois, showed the reserve champion boar and gilt in the Duroc division.

Jim Partlett, Airville, York County, exhibited the champion boar in the Chester White class, while another Pennsylvanian, Ken Wetzel and Family, Rossiter, Indiana County, had the reserve champion gilt. George Corron, McComb, Ohio, took the premier exhibitor award along with the champion gilt and reserve champion boar in the Chester White Class.

Albert and Erik Thurow, Yorkville, Ill., took both the champion boar and champion gilt awards in the Berkshire breeding swine classes. James E. Martin, Hampstead, Md., showed the reserve champion boar and gilt in the same division.

LaVern Weller and Sons, Dwight, Ill., and James T. Partlett, Airville, York County, split the top prizes awarded in the Open Barrow On-Foot competition.

POLLED HEREFORDS

Five Point Pastures, Greensburg, Westmoreland County, was named premier breeder and exhibitor for Polled Herefords taking eight of 18 major awards at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

ACE Polled Herefords, Millbrook, NY, won for the champion heifer calf, reserve junior champion heifer and reserve grand champion heifer, junior champion bull, and reserve grand champion bull.

The remainder of the Cheviot ribbons went to the Martin Brothers, Willard, Ohio. They showed the champion ram, reserve champion ram, and the champion ewe.

In Oxford sheep judging competition, Clarence Williamson and Sons, Xenia, Ohio, were named premier exhibitors, showing the reserve champion ram, a fall ram lamb.

SUFFOLK

Four Star Suffolks, Bloomingburg, Ohio, walked away with the top honors in the Suffolk Sheep classes.

The farm was named premier exhibitor, won the champion ewe, and showed the reserve champion ewe and ram. The other major award winner in the Suffolk competition was the Old Trail Farm, Fostoria, Ohio, whose aging ram lamb was named the champion ram.

In Southdown Sheep competition, W.G. Carpenter and Sons, Jefferson, Md., was named premier exhibitor, showing the champion ewe, a fall ewe lamb, and the reserve

LaVern Weller and Sons, Dwight, Ill., and James T. Partlett, Airville, York County, split the top prizes awarded in the Open Barrow On-Foot competition.

The grand champion barrow on-foot was a crossbred shown by LaVern Weller & Sons. Reserve grand champion was a Chester barrow owned by James T. Partlett. The two men had previously won the open championships with the same two animals.

Other winners of individual class juding were: Poland China Barrows On-Foot: champion, James E. Martin, Hampstead, Md., reserve champion, Piper Farms, Benton, Pa.

Yorkshire Barrows On-Foot: champion, Reno H. Thomas, Beavertown, Pa.; reserve champion, Penn State University.

"Nix Besser" means "nothing better," and so it was with this grand champion pen of three market lambs, owned by Nix Besser Farm of Narvon, Pa. With the wooly champions are Barb, Liz, and Chris Herr.

PREMIERE EXHIBITORS

Three Pennsylvania swine breeders were named premier exhibitors.

Leading the list of Pennsylvanians with top honors were John Strawbridge and Kenneth McCleary, Stewartstown, York County. After walking away with the top awards in the earlier Yorkshire classes, Strawbridge and McCleary were named premier exhibitors in the Hampshire classes in the afternoon, winning champion boar, reserve champion boar, and champion gilt in the process. Strawbridge and McCleary have been showing their 20 Yorkshire and 40 Hampshire hogs at the Keystone International every year since the show began.

Jeff McKissick, Slippery Rock, Butler County, was named premier exhibitor in the Spotted Swine classes. Enroute to the exhibitor honors, McKissick showed the reserve champion boar and no less than eight other hogs which placed in their divisions.

Piper Farms, Benton, Columbia County, received the premier exhibitor award in Poland China Swine competition. Roland W. Piper, owner of the Piper Farms saw his hogs take two of the top five places in each division that was judged throughout the Poland China class.

The list of champions in the final swine competition includes:

Hampshire: champion boar, reserve champion boar, champion gilt, and premier exhibitor, Strawbridge and McCleary, York County.

Martha Burkins has top steer

HARRISBURG - Martha Burkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burkins, Holtwood, won the grand championship in the Junior Steer Show, here, at the Keystone International Exposition. The Lancaster County miss, who has tried for the top honor for several years without complete success, exhibited a Chianina-Angus crossbred. Two weeks earlier Miss Burkins and her animal, "Chinc," placed second in the Eastern National Livestock Exposition, Timonium, Md. Placing the 1285 lb. animal at the top of all classes shown was judge David Hawkins.

Miss Burkings' crossbred steer was one of three Central Pennsylvania steers to be honored in the competition. The lightweight champion junior steer, a crossbred, was shown by Steven Jay Upperman, Chambersburg. The reserve middleweight junior champion steer, another cross, was exhibited by Timothy A. Hess, from Lancaster.

A list of placings of the Junior Steer Show (FFA and 4-H entries) follows. Only placings from Pennsylvania and neighboring Maryland are given, although entries to the Keystone Exposition came from a number of other states as well.

Farm women urged to become active

GETTYSBURG, Pa. - Farm women were urged to take an active part in their community and to commit themselves to the farm business, recently in an address at the annual meeting and convention of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA), here, at the Sheraton International Inn.

Jean Werts, director of women's activities for the Ohio Farm Bureau, was speaking to the women at a conference held in conjunction with the convention.

Miss Werts told the group that the farm wife's basic challenge "is that of commitment . . . commitment to her farm business and to the good life in agriculture."

"First, most people had to grow their own food," she said. "Now it takes less than five per cent of the population in the U.S. to supply food for all in the United States plus many overseas."

Agriculture, in her opinion, has played a vital role in the first 200 years of our country, but she also observed that this role is changing rapidly.

An active interest in the total community on the part of farm women is vital, she said, in making life on the farm more enjoyable.

The PFA Women's Committee will hold its annual business meeting Wednesday morning with the naming of eight new committee members and a chairman for 1976. The convention closes Wednesday.

Sale reported

HARRISBURG, PA. - The second annual Eastern Limousin Breeders Association Consignment Sale, held in conjunction with the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, brought a total sale value of $44,520.

High price for a purebred bull was $3,500 for "International Geoffry," bought by Joseph Hlatky of Englishtown, N.J. The bull had been consigned by Volo Limousin, Mashawk, NY.

The top price for a female was $2700, paid by Keystone Limousin for "Premier Gitesse," consigned by the Premier Farms, Kincardine, Ontario, Canada.

Sixty-three lots of Limousin cattle were auctioned off at the sale, including nine bulls. The average lot went for $706.66.

Marcilynn Boron, Venus, Pa., showed the reserve champion heifer calf, "R.G.I. Venus Vickie 2." Stanley L. Boron, Sr., also from Venus, showed the reserve senior champion bull, "RGL Beau Domino MD6." Morlunda Farms and Spring Bottom Farm, Fairfield, Pa., showed the senior champion bull in the Polled Hereford class, "Morlunda Majestic C428."

In the Hereford breeding cattle competition held earlier in the day, Widesen Herefords, Uniontown, MD, was named premier breeder and Amelia Peabody, Dover, Maine, received premier exhibitor honors.

Widesen Herefords dominated the bulll awards, taking all but reserve junior champion honors. Their grand champion bull is a spring yearling bull which also took the senior champion honors.

In the female competition in the Hereford classes, Widesen Herefords showed the reserve senior and grand champion in partnership with Dutchman Herefords and Martinez, Uniontown, Md. The grand champion female was shown by the Woodbury Stock Farm, Jasper, NY.

ANGUS

Showmen from Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania split the top awards in Angus breeding cattle classes.

Jacob Tanis, Augusta, N.J. was named both premier exhibitor and premier breeder in the show, held Tuesday. He showed the bull calf champion, "Ideals Americana."

Pennsylvania State Universtiy showed the grand champion bull, "P S Great Northern 064", which also received senior champion bull honors. In addition another Penn State entry, in conjunction with McKean Brothers and Mr. and Mrs. John Woods, University Park, Centre County , was named reserve grand and senior champion bull. The bull was a two-year-old named "P S Freestate 154." Penn State won awards in the female competition with "P S Northern Princess 285," named reserve grand champion female and intermediate champion, and "P S Miss Bardolier 016," the reserve heifer calf champion.

The grand champion female Angus, "Hedgerows Jestress," was shown by Hedferows Farm, West Cornwall, Conn. "Hedgerows Jestress" had been acclaimed the junior champion female prior to her winning the grand championship.

The Keystone International Livestock Exposition is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Livestock Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Farm Show Commission.

The grand champion Hereford bull at the Keystone International Exposition was shown by Mr. and Mrs. John Wildeson of Uniontown, Md.

$22,000 bagged at feeder sale

HARRISBURG - The 1976 Keystone International Livestock Exposition was host to a feeder calf show and sale. After competition in the morning, the calves were auctioned off in the evening. The sale netted $22,236.15, for 93 calves.

The top price paid for a calf was $1.36 per pound. Don States, Indiana County, bought the 560 pound Angus steer calf for $761.60 to use as a 4-H project. The Angus was part of the grand champion pen of the morning show, exhibited by Irvington Farms, Gaithersburg, Md.

The top pen, that of the Irvington Farms, sold for $2,952.60. Total weight of the feeder calves sold was 39,890 pounds. An average price of 55.74 cents was paid for each pound of calf.

In the show, Irvington Farms received the award for grand champion pen of the show and champion steer pen for their pen of five Angus steer calves. The reserve grand champion pen and reserve champion steer pen of five went to John R. Johnston, Lewisburg, W. Va. for his five crossbred steers.

Runnymede Farm, Coatesville, Chester County, showed the champion pen of five feeder heifers. Buck and Doe Run Valley Farms Co., also from Coatesville earned the reserve champion laurels for a pen of feeder heifers.

Shober and Calvert Farms of Berlin, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beall, Grmantown, Md. - all in breeding Shropshire classes.

In breeding Hampshire classes, the top five included: David Lytle, New London, Pa.; Price Stock Farm, Westminster, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Brubaker, Lancaster, Pa.; and Brodhecker Kids Haven Farm from Newton, Pa.

The top five in breeding Suffolk classes included Milton and Elizabeth Morgan from Lancaster, Gary Kelly from Jamestown, Pa. and Mrs. Paul Kelly from Hartstown, Pa., As was true with a number of other breed shows at the Keystone Exposition, many of the top places were occupied by breeders from eighter Ohio or Virginia.

W.G. Carpenter and Son, Jefferson, Md.; Windswept Farm, State College, Pa.; Lori Lynch, Linwood, Md.; Lynn and Renee Harris, Stillwater, Pa.; and Peggy McCrumb, Mrs, Pa. placed in the top five in various classes of the Southdown show.

In the breeding Cheviot show, Erdenheim Farm, Lafayette Hill, Pa.; Thomas E. Book, Slippery Rock, Pa.; and Red Rock Farm, Jefferson, Md. placed in the top five of various classes.

Top Oxford exhibitors from Lancaster Farming's prime coverage area were excluded from the first five placings, as Ohio shepherds dominated.

Penn State University and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Herr of Narvon, Lancaster County, took a first and fourth, respectively, in the Dorset 1-2 year old ram class. Elizabeth Grey of Woodbine, Md. scored a third in the same class. Pen State came away with several other firsts. Another to take honors in this breed show was Charles P. Staver, Palmyra, Pa.

George Hunter of Stoneboro, was the lone Pennsylvanian to score within the top five placings in the Merino breed. Ohio breeders dominated, with Empire State exhibitors running a weak second.

20,832 pounds of milk and 664 pounds of fat.

Sage Maple Lawn Connie owned by Cathy Wollaston took the top production honors of the Jersey breed with 10,520 pounds of milk and 534 poounds of fat.

To encourage young 4-H'ers to cultivate herds, a special award entitled the Dairy Herdsman award is given out. This honor goes to 4-H'ers who have handed in more than five record books. Bruce Andrien, who won the award, handed in 13 books.

Also honored at Saturday's banquet were the two Chester County 4-H dairy national awards winners. Catherine Wollaston was the first place individual, and Ed Kulp, of Tri-Community 4-H Dairy Club was in second place.

The seven different clubs represented at the banquet each had two achievement winners honored.

From Chester County 4-H Black and White Club, Donald Stoltzfus, from Morgantown, was the achievement winner and Kevin Beiler, Morgantown received the first year award.

Chester Valley's achievement winner was Bruce Heller, Downingtown, and Phil Tiscler, Downingtown was the recipient of the first year award.

Betsy Wollaston, Toughkenamon, was the achievement winner from the Manor 4-H Dairy Club, and Victor Stoltzfus, Cochranville, was the first year award recipient.

Duane Hershey, Cochranville, was the achievement winner from Octorara 4-H Dairy Club, and Lorrie Ann Duncan walked away with both the first year award and the achievement award from the Oxford 4-H Dairy club.

Southern Chester County Community Club's achievement winner was Donald Eastburn, Newark, Del., and Tri-Community 4-H Dairy Club's winner was Denise Andrien, West Chester fraternal organizations. He was selected as a Master Farmer in 1970. Pitzer and his wife, Virginia, live on their farm near Aspers and are the parents of a son and daughter.

Stainbrook is a Crawford County dairy farmer who has been active in many local agricultural organizations. He is a past director and vice president of the Crawford County Farmers' Association. He is chairman of the Farm Management and Business Analysis Service committee and is a board member of the Meadville Cooperative.

All these men were honored for their contributions towards advancing the cause of agriculture in Pennsylvania.

Pitzer told delegates attending a convention that he was not going to seek reelection as the group's state leader. He was eligible for another two-year term.

The Adams County orchardist said his overriding reasons for not seeking the presidency again were that he wanted more time with his family, the major goals he had set for himself and the organization had been achieved, and because new leaders need to be continuously surfaced including presidents.

"It's time for a change in the leadership of our organization," Pitzer told the delegates.

PFA hit an all-time high membership in 1976 with 20,313 family members. "That was one of my personal goals for the organization - at least 20,000 family members - and we have reached that milestone."

Since the fruit grower was elected president, membership has grown from 11,545 families to 20,313.

Pitzer is a member of the Pennsylvania State University Board of Trustees and the PSU Agricultural Advisory Council of Farm Organizations of Pennsylvania, the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania and other professional and community organizations.

An increase of 365 farmers using the Farm Management and Business Analysis Service (FMBAService) was recorded in 1976, according to a report issued Monday from its manager, Richard E. Denison of Shiremanstown. FMBAService is a farm records and accounting service for members of the association.

"We currently serve 3,250 Pennsylvania commercial farm families," Denison told the delegates. "That's a gain of 365 farmers served during the preceding 12 months."

He explained that the purposes of FMBAService are to promote sound and practical farm record keeping; prepare an individual farm business analysis; provide a comparative summary of like farming operations; assist in financial farm management decisions; help in selection and obtaining credit; provide expert farm tax management and preparation and aid in establishing the business structure and organization of the farm enterprise.

FMBAService is the largest of its kind serving farmers in the Keystone State.

Henry and Hazel Slaughter, gospel singing group, will be appearing at Ephrata Senior High School on Sunday, November 28, at 7:30 p.m. A pioneer in gospel music, Henry has been recognized by his fellow colleagues as being Best Gospel Instrumentalist in 1973, 74, and 75. Both he and his wife appear as guests each week on the Gaither concerts. The Jimmy Swaggart weekly TV show presents Henry as a regular musician, as well as periodically having both Henry and Hazel as singing guests. Their music is for ministring from one soul to another by song. This will be demonstrated when they appear in concert at Ephrata.

Hoppes' community and civic affiliations include membership in Zion's United Church of Christ, the Virginville Fire Company, Berks County 4-H Club, the Pennsylvania Jaycees, and the Kutztown Jaycees for which he serves as a director.

He is married to Grace M. Hoppes and has three children: John, age nine; Keith, seven; and Michelle, four.

Elwood Ohlinger was named State Outstanding Young Farmer (over 30 years of age) at the two-day convention. He and his wife, Ruth, own and operate Reu-Hel Farms, Inc., in Mohrsville R1.

The Ohlingers milk 144 head of Registered Holstein cattle and feed an additional 80 head of young stock. All but five of the Ohlinger's dairy animals were bred and raised by the family, and the dairy farm consistently places first or second in milk production in the county for registered herds of over 100 cows. The herd average last year was 16,666 pounds of milk and 581 pounds of fat.

Ohlinger farms 405 acres of land including 80 acres of corn silage, 140 acres corn grain, 20 acres of oats, 60 acres of wheat, 85 acres of hay, and 15 acres of pasture. He has averaged 5½ tons of hay per acre, most of which feeds the dairy herd. Corn is also primarily a feed crop, although he averages 80 to 100 tons of corn grain for sale each year. Ohlinger's average silage yield is 20 tons and his grain averages 130 bushels.

Ohlinger is active in the Berks County, Pennsylvania and American Holstein breeding associations, and the Ontelanuee of Leesport, Berks Pomona and Pennsylvania State granges. He is also active in exhibiting his dairy animals and has shown the reserve grand champion cow at both Kutztown and Reading Fairs the past two years as well as the reserve grand champion bull at th Eatern Pa. Champion Sho

Another Berks countian, Donald Duncan of Robesonia R1, a member of the Conrad Weiser Adult Farmers Association, and his wife, Ruth, were named regional winners for the community service contest.

The Duncan's were the county representatives in this category. Duncan is a director of the Berks County Conservation District and is currently serving as president of the Berks County Dairy Association.

Wethers judged

HARRISBURG - Carcass wethers were judged at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition. The on-foot list of placings included the following from Pennsylvania:

Elizabeth Herr, Narvon, Pa., fifth; Tom Van Wagner, Dauphin, Pa., sixth - for 80-100 pound class. Christian Herr, Narvon, seventh in 101-120 pound class.

On the rail, Tom Wagner placed his animal second, followed by David Huff from Erdenheim Farm, third. Windy Acres from Dauphin County placed seventh. A Maryland entry - W.G. Carpenter and Son, from Jefferson, placed eighth, followed by Steven Strauss of Ephrata and Elizabeth Herr of Narvon.

In the 101-120 on-the-rail division, Tom Van Wagner placed third; Steven Strauss, 13th, and Janet Strauss, also of Ephrata, 15th.

Pa. judging team takes fourth place

HARRISBURG, Pa. - The Lancaster County Livestock Judging team representing Pennsylvania took fourth out of 13 state teams in the Junior Livestock Judging Contest at the Pennsylvania Livestock Exposition last week.

In the various contests, the team placed third in sheep judging, third in swine judging, and sixth in beef cattle judging.

Individually, Kevin Rohrer, Manheim R7, took first in the swine judging contest and Ken Brubaker, Lancaster, took third in sheep judging.

In the overall contest, Brubaker took eighth out of 52 contestants, Rohrer took 11th, and Anthony Eberly, Denver R2, took 12th.

The team is now on its way to the national contest in Louisville, Ky., which will be held on November 16. In the meantime, they will be judging in various competitions along the way.

Foot-and-mouth disease may cut livestock production 25 per cent

NEW YORK, N.Y. - Keeping foot-and-mouth disease (FMD) out of the United States - and eradicating it swiftly should it enter - were the major concerns expressed at the Oct. 27-28 meeting of the Foreign Animal Disease Advisory Committee of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The 20-member committee, meeting together with the Plum Island Animal Disease Center Scientific Consultants, discussed the ramifications of an FMD outbreak. FMD is an economically devastating disease of cloven-hoofed animals which exists in most countries of the world. If FMD became established in the United States, it could reduce meat and milk production by 25 per cent. The committee, recognizing the extremely serious threat posed by FMD, urged USDA to work closely with the livestock and dairy industries to minimize the drastic impact an FMD outbreak would have on animal marketing and food supplies.

Current plans call for eradicating any FMD outbreak in this country through the immediate destruction and disposal of infected and exposed animals. The committee advocated using all the resources available to USDA - including vaccine if necessary - to bring FMD under control to eradicate it.

How FMD could enter the United States was another area of major concern. Cattle semen has been proven, through research, to carry the FMD virus and transmit the disease. Semen which is imported legally is thoroughly tested to be sure it is free of FMD viruses. On the other hand, semen which is smuggled into the country, is not tested and could easily cause an FMD outbreak. The committee expressed concern that the current low cattle prices will encourage semen smuggling since the testing process is expensive, and the cost must be born by the importer.

Another method of entry could be through milk products imported from countries where FMD exists. The committee recommended a thorough review of the current restrictions regarding imported milk products to be sure these safeguards are sufficient.

Future of agriculture will be discussed at Hinkletown meeting

HINKLETOWN, Pa. - Where have all the farms gone? Two decades ago there were nearly 8,000 farms in Lancaster County. By 1974 there were only 4,732 farms left. Farms are being lost at the rate of 120 per year. If this rate were to continue, there would be no farms in Lancaster County by the year 2016. This trend can be seen across the United States.

What can be done to keep the next generations of Americans eating? Will our children be able to walk through the country side and see the beauty of the landscape or will they only see people? These are only a few of the urgent questions which must be dealt with.

People are concerned about these problems, however, the time has come for action before all the land is under houses, roads, factories and shopping centers. Pennsylvania is developing a Land Use Policy to deal with the problems. Public participation is a vital part of a good policy. The input of farmers and rural property owners is needed to have a workable policy for Pennsylvania.

The Hinkletown Adult farmer Program, sponsored by the Eastern Lancaster County School District, will take a look at the alternatives available for such a Land Use Policy on Wednesday evening November 17 at 7:30 p.m. at the Hinkletown Alternative School. Charles Slaton, an employee of the United States Department of Agriculture, who is assisting the Governor's Office of Planning and Development with this program will be the featured speaker. It will be the job of Slaton's office to make recommendations to the State Legislature as to what steps, if any, should be taken to preserve agricultural land and open space in Pennsylvania. This meeting will be an opportunity for farmers and other concerned persons to hear the alternatives, voice their concerns and have "grass root" participation in the development of a Land Use Policy for Pennsylvania.

Comments sought on dairy program

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The U.S. Department of Agriculture has asked for comments on proposed determinations relating to the milk price support program for the fourth quarter (Jan. 1 - March 31) of the 1976-77 marketing year.

The general level of milk prices to producers will be considered, along with Commodity Credit Corporation purchase prices, and terms of purchase for butter, nonfat dry milk and cheddar cheese.

Under the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, the Secretary of Agriculture determines a level of dairy price support between 75 and 90 per cent of parity in order to assure an adequate supply. Support is provided through purchases of dairy products.

On March 3, the USDA announced that the support price for manufacturing milk would be increased from $7.71 to $8.13 per hundredweight, effective at the beginning of the marketing year on April 1. The Department also announced at that time that the support level and CCC's dairy product purchase prices would be reviewed quarterly.

There were reviews of the dairy situation for the second and third quarters (July 1 - Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 - Dec. 31). As a result of the review for the third quarter, the Department announced on Sept. 20 that the support price for manufacturing milk would be increased to $8.26 per hundredweight, effective Oct. 1, 1976.

Consideration will be given to any data, views and recommendations submitted in writing by Dec. 1, to the Director, Commodity Operations Division, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

What's new

Farm Building Book

The Wheeling Farm Building Book, a practical, step-by-step guide on the construction of farm buildings, has been published by Wheeling Corrugating Company.

This new, 186-page pocketbook offers a complete and up-to-date look at how to construct various types of farm buildings. It is a basic building guide that has been developed by gathering information from various sources on farm building construction methods. Chapters in the book include: Site Preparation and Layout, Foundations, Floors, Environmental Controls, Roofings and Sidings, plus Farm Management and Financing.

The Wheeling Farm Building Book was prepared to help farmers plan and construct new buildings, as well as modernize existing structures. It can be best used as a supplement to engineered designs needed in most construction. By using this detailed information, each building step should become easier.

A 12-page, four-color insert featuring the various farm roofing and siding products manufactured by Wheeling is located at the center of the book.

The Wheeling Farm Building Book, (WC-628), is available from Wheeling Agricultural Products Distributors. For more information, please contact Advertising Department, Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corporation, 4 Gateway Center, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222.

DHIA and Holstein Assn. join forces for banquet

It's not easy to keep a dairy herd averaging over 600 pounds of butterfat! Eleven herds met that goal in Cumberland County. Accepting their rosettes are (front, l. to r.): M. Thomas Sheaffer, Creedin Cornman, and Ferman Landis; and (back, l. to r.) Mark Leinaweaver, Alfred Gaisler, Paul Chronister, Jack Sunday, and Sam Thrush.

By JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Reporter

MECHANICSBURG, Pa. - Cumberland County DHIA and Holstein Association joined forces November 4 to hold their second annual joint dairy banquet at the Hickorytown United Methodist Church.

The first portion of the program featured the DHIA annual meeting and production awards. A total of 11 dairy herds on the testing program broke the 600-pound-fat mark and were presented rosettes for their accomplishment.

First place fat production went to M. Thomas Shaeffer, Carlisle R5 with 680 pounds of butterfat from his 47-cow herd. Shaeffer also placed a close second for high milk production with a 17,381 pound herd average.

First place herd average for milk production went to Nevin Shughart, Mechanicsburg R2. Shughart's 21 head finished with 17,430 pounds of milk and 664 pounds of butterfat.

Weaverdale Ideal Star Lu-Twin was top individual in the County for both milk and fat production. The 5-year-old cow, owned by Chester Weaver, Carlisle, completed her winning lactation with 23,246 pounds of milk and 910 pounds of fat.

Lifetime production recognition went to Fred M. Naugle, Carlisle R7, for Frena Ivan Apple, completing 13 lactations with 191,897 pounds of milk, 8159 pounds of fat.

Two new directors were elected to serve on the county's DHIA Board of Directors. They are M. Thomas Shaeffer and Galen Smith, Shippensburg R5.

Harold Boldosser, DHIA manager, announced an increase in charges on the milk samples tested at Penn State. The current five-cent charge will rise to seven cents beginning January 1, 1977. A forage testing program is now available to participating herd owners, with a $10 fee to cover the feeding program recommendations.

A two-year research grant has been funded to study the somatic cell counts and to try to establish further relationships between mastitis and herd production. Any dairyman interested in information on the program is encouraged by Boldosser to contact Penn State University.

Speaking briefly during the program was State Dairy Princess, Peggy Staub. Peggy is the Cumberland County Princess, and was named state winner at the pageant in Harrisburg during September.

The Holstein Association of Cumberland County held their annual business meeting during the latter part of the evening, with President Creedin Cornman, Carlisle R6, presiding.

Holstein breeders elected three new directors to their board. Serving for the next three years will be John Cope, Grantham; Paul Hornbaker, Shippensburg R5; and M. Thomas Shaeffer.

Distinguished Junior Member awards were presented to three youths during the Youth Committee report. A brother and sister duo won the junior and senior Distinguished trophies. Senior award went to Gary Hornbaker, with his sister Karen named junior winner. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hornbaker. Karen will go on to participate in state competition November 18 and 19 in Mercer County at the State Holstein Convention.

Bradley Beidel received a Distinguished Junior Boy trophy.

The club recognized several exhibitors at the 1976 South Central Championship

Carter's victory means many changes

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following account is taken from "United Voices," an intra-organizational newsletter put out by United Egg Producers, headquartered in Decatur, Ga.

Gov. Carter's victory over President Ford Tuesday will bring about many changes in government affecting agriculture and the egg industry. Some of these will be immediate while others will take new legislation - which should not be too difficult with a Democratic Congress.

Immediate changes will be seen in top-level decision-making capacities on all fronts. The philosophy of the Democrats is quite different in many respects - more liberal - so economic policies reflecting these ideals will be seen almost immediately.

The farm program will change somewhat, too. The Ford-Butz policy of free reign in production with no government controls for the farmer will give way to a modified, more liberal farm program similar to previous Democratic administrations. Carter favors the establishment and maintenance of grain reserves and higher target prices for wheat, corn, soybeans and other essential grains. The senate Agriculture Committee is already preparing new legislation to replace the 1973 passed farm legislation. According to reports, the legislation proposes target prices for grains at or near the cost-of-production - a term which has been hard to define.

The Democratic farm government will be aimed at removing the wide swings in grain prices - substituting government protection from losses for the flavor of the extremely high market prices which have been witnessed at times in recent years. Grain producers are mixed over this prospect since the government will have some type of handle on reserves to protect the consumer against the peak market prices. This, of course, could benefit both the average consumer and livestock producers. Eggmen and other livestock feeders would be protected somewhat from the volatility of the grain market, and consumers would realize a price leveling influence on finished food products. However, higher taxes can be anticipated to cover the higher price supports.

We can anticipate continued emphasis on export and, hopefully, more emphasis on finished agricultural products. We can expect some decisions from the international trade negotiations now that the administration has been selected. There has been a pause in the decisions awaiting the U.S. elections.

While there are a few new faces in Congress, most of the members with whom the egg industry has dealt before have returned. It remains to be seen how much "guidance" these members will accept from the new President.

WHO WILL HEAD AGRICULTURE

Speculation as to who will step into the shoes of Secretary of Agriculture continues to be a top question. Carter has made no public indications. Leading candidates, however, include his top agricultural advisor in the campaign, P. R. "Bobby" Smith of Winder, Ga., Rep. Bob Bergland (D.-Minn.), Rep. Neal Smith (D.-Iowa), Agriculture Director Robert Williams of Illinois, and Ed Jaenke, a former Johnson administration official who heads a D.C. based agricultural PR organization.

It is unlikely that the new President will pick Rep. Bergland because he is from the same state as his vice president. Some say that he will not pick Smith because of his own state tag. There's great appeal for a new mid-westerner, but Carter may lean on Jaenke because of his previous experience in the Department.

AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE CHANGES

At least three new faces will appear on the House Agriculture Committee as a result of the Fall elections. Two members resigned earlier to run for the Senate while the third was defeated in the general election. There were no election casualties on the Senate Agriculture Comm

Reps. John Melcher (D.-Mont.) and Peter Peyser (D.-N.Y.) chose to seek Senate positions but only Melcher was successful. The Democratic caucus will nominate replacements for them on the 42 member House Agriculture Committee. Losing in the General Election was Rep. Joseph Vigorito (D.-Pa.) who served on the Subcommittees of Dairy and Poultry and Forests. He was also Chairman of the Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing and Consumer Relations.

Replacements on the Committee for these, and to fill other vacancies, will be named in January during the reorganization of Congress.

PROPOSITION 14 DEFEATED IN CALIFORNIA

California voters rejected Proposition 14 Tuesday by a wide margin. The proposal, if approved, would have allowed organizers of farm workers up to three hours a day on any farm or ranch in California in any effort to unionize the farm workers. The proposal, originally sponsored by Cesar Chavez, gained the national support of Jimmy Carter and state endorsement of Governor Jerry Brown.

Class I price sinks

ALEXANDRIA, Va. - A Class 1 milk price of $11.04 per hundredweight for December 1976 was announced last week by Order No. 4 Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine. This price is down 20 cents from November and is 34 cents below the December 1975 Class I price, marking the first time since June 1975 that the Calss I price has been below the previous year.

The October butterfat differential is 10.4 cents for each one-tenth of a pound of fat. Order No. 4 prices are announced for milk testing 3.5 per cent butterfat, f.o.b. plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia, Pa. and also within 75 miles from the nearer of Washington, D.C. or Baltimore, Md. A six-cent direct-delivery differential is applicable to producer milk received at plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia.

Shine also announced a Class II price for October 1976 of $8.34 per hundredweight.

These class prices are based on the October Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $8.26 per hundredweight for milk testing 3.5 per cent.

The USDA reported that the wholesale Grade A butter price at Chicago during October was 90.77 cents per pound. The nonfat dry milk price for the month was 62.78 cents per pound f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

Show. Awards were given to the top Cumberland County breeder-owner in each class. Winners were: Junior Calf, Cindy Whistler; Intermediate Heifer Calf, Sandra Lehman; Senior Heifer, Dry Three and Four Year-Old Cow and Aged Cow, Huntsdale Stock Farms; Junior Yearling, Corlan Farms; Senior Yearling and Two-Year Not Fresh, Justa-Beauty Holsteins; Two-Year Old In Milk, J. Sheppard Wolff; Three and Four Year, Smithdale Farms.

A bus trip to the Royal Winter Fair, November 16 and 17, in Toronto, Canada, has been scheduled by the Association. Anyone interested in trip details should contact Roy Dice, Shippensburg R5, for cost and departure times of the two-night trip.

John Cope, state director, reported plans for the Pennsylvania State Holstein Sales to be held March 31 and April 1, 1977, followed by the annual State Black and White Show on April 2.

Representing the National Holstein Association was area fieldman Mike Nolan. Nolan reminded the dairymen of the upcoming classification program and urged any breeders who received their applications late to send them in immediately. He explained the moratorium on registering over-age females and the grade identification program.

Nolan is leaving the Association as fieldman to return to operate his home farm in Ohio.

Cumberland County Holstein Association honored some of its deserving youth with Distinguished Junior Member awards. Award winners were: (l. to r.) Bradley Beidel, Junior Boy; Gary Hornbaker, Distinguished Youth, senior division; and Karen Hornbaker, Distinguished Youth, junior division. Presenting the trophies is Delmar Cornman, youth chairman.

Clothing Costs

In a ten year period, Americans have more than doubled the amount of money they spend on clothing According to government statistics, shoppers in 1964 paid out less than

$19 billion for women's and children's clothing and $10 billion for men's and boy's wear By 1973, spending had jumped to almost $39 billion and $21 billion Careful shopping is therefore recommended for consumers interested in trimming cost of living expenses

Tackling the world's food demand...

EDITORS NOTE: The following article is based on excerpts from a speech by Dr. Charles E. French, assistant director for the National Academy of Sciences of a White House study on the world food situation. Dr. French presented the talk at the 11th annual Maryland Agriculture Forum on Nov. 4.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - The seething pathos of world hunger can really turn you on about doing something. But seeing the intensity of population pressures and misuse of internal resources by many under-developed nations can frustrate one's enthusiasm. Where do we as American agriculturists fit into the global picture?

"Columbus can furnish a model. He had a sensitivity to his times, a lot of political knowhow and a great deal of technological skill. If he hadn't had the latter facility, he wouldn't have been able to navigate the rocky waters near San Salvador to a safe landing on the shore.

"There is no question of the need in today's world food situation. Cereals are the basic diets in most of the hungry nations.

"By the end of the century, we must be doing a job in agricultural production and research like never before. For the past 30 years, we have had a 1.9 per cent annual increase in agricultural production in the U.S. This must be stepped up to a 2.5 per cent annual increase by the year 2000 if we are to feed ourselves and play a major role in helping to prevent world starvation. Such an increase represents a 33 one-third per cent jump in our annual increase in agricultural output in the U.S.

"Achieving this increase will not be done, even with a continuation of the tremendous agricultural research programs we have had for the past three decades. If we continue to do things as we have, we will have "one hell of a world hunger problem by the end of this century." The challenge applies to world population control as well as to research and production on a worldwide basis.

"Available resources from other disciplines are needed to supplement our traditional agricultural technology. These include:

National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA);

Health care

Energy area

Environmental interests

Handling the corn blight problem a few years ago was one example that U.S. agriculture can handle problems effectively.

Basic crop germplasm banks to feed the world are not within the geographic boundaries of the U.S. So worldwide cooperation is needed for effective breeding of new crops on a global scale.

Research in the private sector to alleviate world food problems is declining. So government and universities are going to have to take up the slack. A general move toward conglomerates is the reason for declining research efforts on behalf of agriculture in the private sector. For example, no major dairy equipment manufacturer in the U.S. today derives more than 50 per cent of its income from the dairy trade.

Furthermore, we have eroded much of our basic research component at land-grant univeristies. One area that has been slipping is hybrid seed corn research.

"I'm worried about the initiative and leadership of the agricultural community. We're going to have to learn to work with scientists of other disciplines to compete effectively for research grants."

"Policy objectives on a national and global scale should include the following:

1. We must shake things loose in the internal policies of many foreign nations. They must accept the fact that the U.S. cannot feed the world by itself.

2. The U.S. government must continue a posture of effective coordination.

"There will be a push to do much of both nutrition and production research at higher levels than the U.S. Department of Agriculture. A Council on Food may well be established at the cabinet level, which would include membership from the USDA. We can also expect - and should expect - coordination on food policy between the USDA and the State Department.

"Educational development and back-up research need to go hand in hand. Getting a proper balance with sociological research is also a problem in applying research results - especially in under-developed nations.

"Our White House study has recommended 145 areas of agricultural research studies to help with long-range solutions to the world food problem. These can be boiled down to 22 subject areas.

"Philosophies for supporting these recommended research areas include the following:

We'll need improved utilization of fertilizer in five to 10 years;

Increased emphasis on ruminant animals, including utilization of animal wastes;

We need more study of the whole farming systems area, particularly smaller farm;

The whole area of natural resources management needs more study. This includes soils, with special emphasis on tropical soils.

New and improved sources of fertilizer are needed, especially for nitrogen and phosphate.

We need to breed crop varieties with more adaptibility to weather.

Aquatics area is not as important as we first thought.

"In human nutrition, we need to tie research more closely to practical problems of people around the world.

"Likewise, in the realm of public policy, we've been using the wrong measurements for the quality of life. These measurements should relate less to monetary wealth and more to nutrition, health and birth control. On this latter scale, some "poor" countries rate surprisingly high.

Farm family plate available

NEW HOLLAND, Pa. - A Tolmetal collector plate honoring the American farm family as "The Foundation of the Nation," is available until December 25, 1976, from The Old Lancaster Mint, New Holland, Pa., 17557.

These unique individually molded plates measure 9 ¾ inches in diameter and are deeply etched with a scene showing an entire Colonial American farm family at work putting up hay. Manufacture of the plate is limited to orders received prior to Christmas. The molds will be destroyed when orders are filled, creating a limited edition plate that will become a family heirloom.

A special Plate Plaque attachment is also available so this, and other Tolmetal plates, can be used as awards. A matching Tolmetal plaque with a three by five - inch jeweler engraving plate is designed to hang beneath the plate.

The plate retails for $19.95 and the Plate Plaque kit is $10. The firm says this is the first of a series of Tolmetal plates honoring farmers.

Top milk promoter in N.Y. tells it like it is

By JUDY MITCHELL
Berks Co. Reporter

BERNVILLE, Pa. - Donna Yousey, commonly referred to as the number one milk promoter in New York State, is a veritable dynamo who delivers her message in a rapid-fire, tell-it-like-it-is manner. Addressing a group of dairymen and guests at the recent Berks County Dairy Association's Annual Banquet Meeting at the Bernville Grange Hall, the farm wife emphasized the importance of a "total promotional dairy program," and urged the dairymen present to join forces in working towards the adoption of a total program in the State of Pennsylvania.

In New York, Mrs. Yousey said, "every dairy farmer contributes to the milk promotion program" with contributions varying from five to seven cents per hundred weight of milk depending on what area of the state they operate in. "We know it pays to advertise," she commented, reporting that New York's promotional program prompted a seven per cent increase in the sale of dairy products last year.

The Yousey family operates a dairy farm in Basom, N.Y., and as Donna puts it, "we milk the cows; we breed the cows; and we promote the product." Dairymen "should be proud," she remarked, to be the producers of the "most highly nutritional drink." She went on then to compare the 24 million dollars spent by the dairy industry to promote dairy products last year with the 176 million spent by the carbonated beverage industry to promote a drink that contains negative nutritional value.

Although the "first priority" will always be the promotion of fresh fluid milk, Mrs. Yousey said dairy farmers must recognize that "when cheese is advertised, it puts money in your pockets." The 24 million dollar figure spent by the dairy industry for promotion included advertising for numerous dairy products, whereas the citrus industry invested 10 million last year to promote a single product - the orange.

Emphasizing the need for public education through advertising, Mrs. Yousey stated flatly that "Mrs. Consumer does not have a leg to stand on when she complains about the price of milk," pointing out that if the price of milk in this country had risen over the past years at the same rate that wages have risen, milk would now cost from $1.05 to $1.29 per half gallon.

The New York promoter also stressed the nutritional advantage of dairy products over substitutes such as oleomargarine and non-dairy whipped toppings and admonished those women present who might be guilty of using dairy substitutes in their farm homes to "go home and clean house."

Aided by slides and live film with sound tape, Mrs. Yousey illustrated some of the methods currently being used in New York to promote milk products through television and radio commercials, newspapers and magazines, and public dairy exhibits. Quality advertising, she pointed out, is very costly but "by sharing costs with other producers, we get the best at a fraction of the cost." The quality advertising being purchased in N.Y., according to Mrs. Yousey, has been made possible "by a joint effort of total promotion with dairymen across the nation."

Donna Yousey, New York State Dairy Princess pageant coordinator and milk promoter, speaks to dairymen at the Berks County Dairy Association Annual Banquet meeting.

Mrs. Yousey also outlined other promotional methods being employed by the dairy industry which include test kitchens for more and better dairy product recipe development, nutritional education of professionals such as teachers, doctors and dentists, and seminars for supermarket personnel to assure better quality control and handling of dairy products.

The promotional program in New York is also taking advantage of opportunities for free advertising by offering dairy food demonstrations and participating in discussions on television talk shows, as well as utilizing the public service message system on T.V. and radio. Another source of free advertising being tapped is the printed media through recipe circulation and farm related stories which provide the public with information on dairy farming techniques and costs.

Mrs. Yousey is the Dairy Princess Pageant coordinator in her area, and she emphasized the advantage of employing a "young, pretty girl with a tiara and a sash" in a promotional program geared towards "Mrs. Housewife," who is herself on the young side, and to school age children. According to Mrs. Yousey, New York turned its dairy princess contest from a beauty pageant into a promotional program about six years ago, and she added that she is "very glad to see that the Pa. Dairy Princesses are working towards the same kinds of goals as the New York State Princesses."

According to Mrs. Yousey, "everyone is trying to get through to Mrs. Consumer at the same time," and she summed up by saying that dairy people "having a big job ahead of us . . . and we all must work together towards that one common goal - selling milk."

Other guests at the head table who spoke briefly to the annual Dairy Association gathering included Senator Clarence Manbeck of the 48th District, Dairy Princesses Nedra Yoder from Berks and Carol Heisler from Schuylkill counties, and Sue Reese of Reading, the Berks County Dairy Princess Pageant coordinator. Berks County Dairy Princess Alternates Christine Adam and Tammy Hafer were also present to address the group.

Dairy Association President Donald Duncan was Master of Ceremonies for the evening and presided over the business portion of the evening which included the appointment of four Association Directors. Reelected to the Board of Directors for another three-year term were Leroy Howard, Oley R2, and Rodger Wagner, Oley R1; and elected for their first term were Lloyd Dreibelbis, Shoemakersville R1, and Laverne Konig, Bernville R2.

Entertainment was provided by ventriloquist Evelyn Adam from Fleetwood who performed with "Country Boy."

New grain law detailed

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Grain inspection officials in the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) are taking steps to implement a grain inspection and weighing law signed Oct. 21 by President Ford.

A new Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS), required by the law, will be established in USDA, effective Nov. 20. Initially, the agency will be staffed by the 778-man grain inspection force now employed by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS). Plans are underway to recruit additional samplers, inspectors, weighers, and weighing supervisors necessary to carry out the legislation's provisions. Many of the people currently employed by designated non-state inspection agencies at export markets will be offered positions with the new Service.

In general, under terms of the U.S. Grain Standards Act of 1976, all grain exported from the United States must be inspected for a determination of grade before it is shipped overseas. The original inspection must be performed by the FGIS or by states that have been delegated export inspection authority by the FGIS administrator.

Similarly, all grain that comes into or goes out of any export facility in the United States must be officially weighed, with the entire weighing process supervised by the FGIS or by states that have been delegated export weighing authority by the FGIS administrator. The supervising federal or state official must certify the weight of the grain.

Nine Lancaster County farms open for visitation days

LANCASTER, Pa. - Nine farms in Lancaster County will be spotlighted next weekend during a Farm-City visit sponsored by the Lancaster County Farmers' Association. Visitation hours are from 1:00-5:00 pm, November 20-21. The Lancaster County Farmers' Association says the visit is another of the public-relations projects of the organization designed to build a better understanding with city and urban neighbors. "Everyone is welcomed, bring the children, and there is no charge," says Joan Rohrer, LCFA news director. Following are brief sketches of each of the farms which will be visited.

1. Roy Charles Family - 1½ miles west of Millersville on Route 999. Visitors can see 110 steers, 5000 hogs, 7000 laying hens.

2. Paul Rohrer Family - three miles west of Millersvile on Route 999. The latest in feeding equipment for 400 beef cattle will be viewed.

3. John H. Harnish Family - four miles west of Millersville on Route 999. More than 100 dairy cows and their new carousel milking equipment will be on display.

4. John Harnish Family - six miles south of Lancaster on Route 222, first farm after Penn Grant Road. The family has over 100 Holsteins.

5. J. Robert Musser Family - old Route 30 east, Strasburg Pike, to Pioneer Road, turn right, first lane on the left. The Mussers have 8000 laying hens, 130 beef cattle, and 40 hogs.

6. Clyde Martin Family - East of Route 23 through Blue Ball, left on 897, right on Weaverland Road, farm on right. An interesting dairy operation.

7. Stauffer Homestead Farms, Earl Fisher, manager - one mile east of Blue Ball on Route 23, turn right on Fetterville Road. Forty Charolais beef cows, 125 brood sows, and feeder pigs are the specialty here.

8. John R. Zimmerman Family - north of Ephrata. The Zimmermans have 200 beef cattle, brood sows, and feeder pigs.

9. Jacob Fisher Family, located near Manheim. An unusual farm with 40 dairy goats.

Participating farms will be marked with a 'Farm Tour' sign.

Do not use envelopes of dry yeast after the expiration date shown on the package. Keep compressed yeast cold - it will keep a week or two in the refrigerator or up to several months in the freezer.

Compressed yeast is still good if it crumbles easily even though it may show a slight brownish color.

Sewage is a resource

WELLSBORO, Pa. - A conference entitled Sewage: Waste or Wealth? recently held here, concluded that sewage should be utilized. Those attending, including the following from Chester County, are convinced. Robert Struble, Jr., executive director of Brandywine Valley Association, William Lyman, chairman of supervisors of East Brandywine Township, Marshall Haws, executive conservationist of Chester County Conservation District and Robert Benscoter, King of Prussia the executive vice president of A.W. Martin Co. who attended the three day conference returned home with a different attitude and understanding about the problem of sewage.

Internationally known speakers punctured the traditional thinking of mechanical plants as the "dispos-all" method, by supplying land application methods which utilize this natural resource. Frank Gray, farmer-rancher, from Lubbock, Texas jolted the northerners with his method of using Lubbock's wastewater: Since 1937 he has spray irrigated 3000 acres of crops. B.C. Wolverton, NASA biochemist from Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, stretched conferees imaginations with the water hyacinth concept of growing the plants in the lagoons which purifies the water to be discharged into the streams.

Russell Tatman, an engineer from Wilmington, Del. outlined the lagoon system of biological treatment designed for small communities and developments. Richard Thomas, research soils scientist in waste management at the EPA Research Laboratory in Ada, Oklahoma, and Dr. James Reynolds from the Utah State University, presented an indepth study of overland flow which is a method of removing the algae in the operation of lagoons.

Marjorie Kraus, virus researcher, addressed the possible problems of viruses in various sewage treatment. Dr. Y.A. Dimirjian, director of the Muskegon County, Michigan Lagoon-Spray Irrigation Project, presented research on wastewater management by land treatment. Louis Janik, environmental engineer for Borden Inc. pointed out the cost-impact of sewage treatment for industry. Daniel Drawbough, chief of Water Supply and Sewage, Pa. Department of Environmental Resources, discussed land treatment from the governmental vantage point.

John O'Neal, vice-president of Bi-Products Inc. located in West Chester, Pa., focused on the reality of sewage never taking a holiday and the fact that it is a resource and should be viewed as such. Medard Gable, research assistant to Dr. Buckminister Fuller took a philosophical approach to the problem and spoke upon "Local Sewage and the Global Sewer: New Perspectives on Ancient Problems".

The consensus of the 120 attendees was legion: Sewage is a resource. Let us stop flushing it away

Wellsboro, a community of 4500, like many other small communities must comply with the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972, requiring municipalities to upgrade or install new sewerage disposal systems, often at prohibitive costs to the citizens. Wellsboro citizens questioned the sensibilities of government enforcement agencies and engineering firms in their failure to develop alternatives to costly chemical-mechanical plants which small communities cannot even afford to operate.

Holiday Cooking Tips

Cook turkey stuffing completely. It's safest to cook it separately from the turkey, because stuffing inside a warm turkey is a breeding place for bacteria. It's also easier to serve a crowd when the stuffing is cooked separately. If you must cook stuffing inside the turkey, cook until the meat thermometer inserted into the stuffing reaches at least 165 degrees F. Never stuff turkey the night before cooking.

Holiday Cooking Tips

Do not thaw commercially frozen stuffed poultry before baking. Put it directly into the oven. Refrigerate turkey leftovers immediately. Remove all stuffing; store separately.

What's new

CASE 4-WHEEL DRIVE TRACTOR

J I Case Company has introduced the 2870 Traction King, a new 4-wheel drive tractor with manufacturer's ratings of 300 engine hp and 250 pto hp. With introduction of the 2870, Case now offers three 4-wheel drive models designed to meet the growing demand for high horsepower tractors.

Power for the new tractor is furnished by a turbocharged, 674 cubic inch, six cylinder in-line diesel engine. The four cycle power plant has a 15.1 to 1 compression ratio. A stratotube precleaner removes 95 per cent of foreign material from engine intake air before it reaches the primary and secondary safety air filter elements. Fuel passes through a three-stage filtering system and is then injected into the engine by a multi-plunger pump. Twin fuel tanks have a combined capacity of 150 gallons. Engine hood flips up for easy servicing of the power plant.

Standard equipment includes a Case 12-speed range power shift offering three on-the-go speed choices in each of four ranges. Forward speeds are from two to 14.67 mph, reverse from 3.37 to 14.67 mph. Standard torque proportioning differentials automatically transfer power to working wheels with the firmest footing.

A three-point hitch lift capacity of over 12,000 pounds allows maximum use of the 2870's pulling power and eliminates need for hydraulic lift assist mechanisms in working with most of today's high production implements. Standard tractor hydraulic system includes two circuits-four outlets, with two additional hydraulic remote cylinder circuits available as options. ASAE standardized female couplers permit easy connect-disconnect of hydraulic hoses from either the pump or implement side of the hoses.

The Case four-way selective steering system allows the operator of a choice of four steering methods. In row-crop or power take off work he can steer with front wheels only; on hillsides he can switch to crab steer turning all four wheels one way to counteract side drift; at headlands he can turn short with coordinated steer; and for easy implement hookup he can steer with rear wheels only. Turning radius in coordinated steering is just 17½ feet.

The tractor has row-crop capabilities with adjustable treads from 74 to 94 inches, in two inch increments.

Standard equipment in the 2870's roomy, environmentally controlled cab includes an air conditioning system that allows recirculation of up to 75 per cent of clean, heated or cooled air. An Easy-Rider, seven-way adjustable seat is also standard. Modular instrument cluster design and conveniently placed controls aid operator efficiency. Built as one unit, the cab and platform are isolated from engine and transmission. Massive four corner cab frame (ROPS) is designed to protect operator in event of tractor upset.

A number of 2870 cab options include AM-FM stereo, 8 track tape player, "CB" radio.

Slurrystore . . .
. . . Meeting Government Regulations

As the costs of operating a farm have increased, the value placed on animal manures has increased. Nelson Charles and his son, Larry, who operate a 130 acre dairy farm near Centreville in Lancaster County, realize this and purchased a Slurrystore system for that reason.

Manure is not a "waste product," and wasteful management of this valuable resource can add up to thousands of dollars lost annually-depending on the size of the operation.

The manure contained in a 2000-gallon spreader is said to have a value of $50, for example. How many can you afford to have float off of your farm?

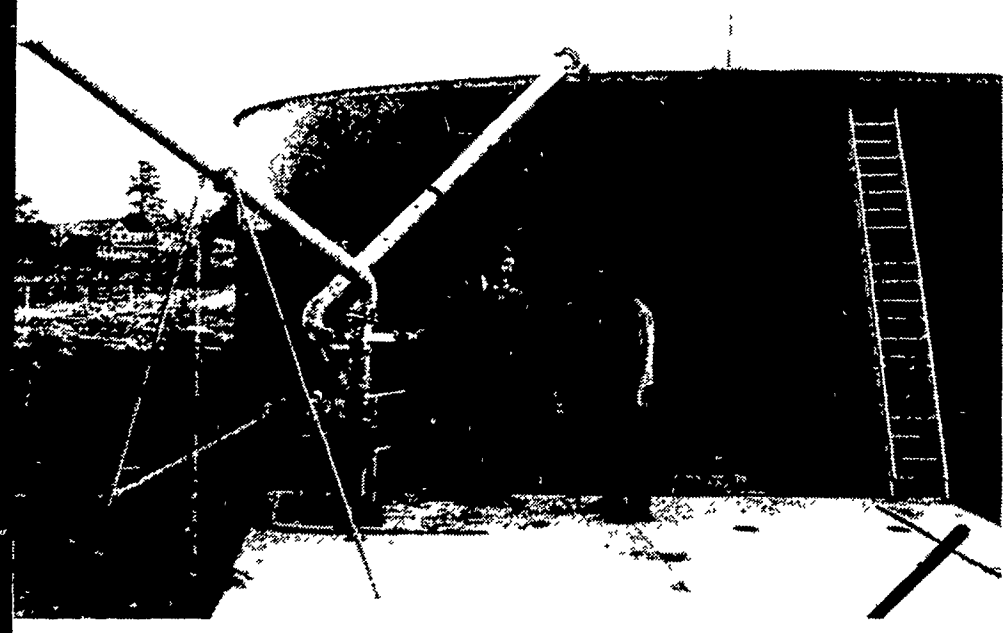
The Charles decided they want all of their manure where it belongs: in the fields, and with no run-off problems. To accomplish this goal they keep their 48 head of Holsteins in the barn for 20 hours per day, and even longer during Winter months. Manure is conveyed into a pit via a conventional gutter cleaner. Every two weeks the accumulation in the pit is pumped into the Slurrystore. This, says Larry, amounts to a 15 minute job once every two weeks instead of a 1¼ hour job every day for 365 days out of the year.

Why a Slurrystore, rather than a competitive system?



Manure is stored safely in the Slurrystore until the Charles are ready to spread it and plow it under. Nothing goes to waste.

The Slurrystore system, says Larry, is one which is approved by the government. Therefore, a cost-sharing budget can be worked out whenever funds are available. Also, the Slurrystore is virtually maintenance-free and long-lasting. Furthermore, it can be dismantled in case the farmer decides to move, or wants to get inside the storage facility with equipment.

It's an investment that compares very favorably with prices of other manure storage structures,

Larry indicated.

Weaving is a challenge to Dotty Lewis

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

Four years ago, Mrs. Arnold Lewis decided to learn to weave. Now she weaves during every available minute and declares, "I love it."

Dotty Lewis, Lancaster R 6, says her only regret is that she waited so long to learn. She said there are so many things she wants to learn she's afraid she'll never have a chance to accomplish them all.

During part of the interview Dotty was demonstrating her craft at Park City as part of the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen craft sale. Demonstrating is something Dotty says she really enjoys, and she doesn't seem to mind the interruptions to her weaving as she answers questions about the loom and her work.

She said, "You meet all kinds of people, and I enjoy it immensely." She added good-naturedly, "It's a pain in the neck to cart all your belongings to a show." But obviously the fun overshadows the work.

She has also participated in the Sheep to Shawl demonstration at Ephrata Cloister last spring and demonstrates annually at the Folklore Festival at Historic Schaefferstown.

Dotty says she enjoys weaving "functional things," and her display includes placemats, wall hangings, pillows, stoles, scarves and the like. She said it is most important to her to weave "something that someone wants." She ensures that people will want the things she weaves by doing practical things like weaving placemats only out of washable fabrics. She even washes and dries them before selling them. She said things that are going to get dirty must be made washable, and "there are plenty of nice materials around that are washable."

Dotty considers her weaving a "hobby-business." She said, "I don't want to be a big production weaver. It would take the joy out of it for me. I don't want the business to be a chore hanging over my head."

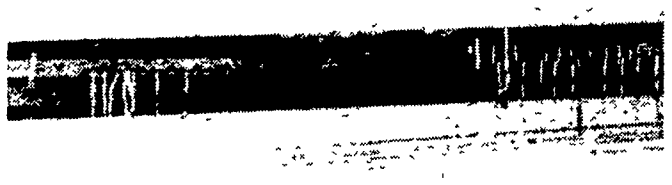
When she started she determined the cost of her items just by the cost of materials included. However, she said, she soon learned you must charge a little extra. "You must collect tax with articles sold, and eventually, you almost get forced into being a business."

The little money she makes now, above the cost of materials, is put back into the business in many ways. She has not yet paid herself for her work, but is satisfied to be getting her materials paid for and her business on solid ground.

"Weaving," Dotty says with pleasure, "is such an ego-trip. You get so much self-satisfaction when people think what you've done is good." She said it is especially pleasing for her when people come back for more of her work or see her demonstrating and selling and say, "I'm so glad you're here."

While she often weaves things of her own design, she said she enjoys filling custom orders and incorporating ideas of others. She said doing custom work is "learning. You get stagnant if you use only your own ideas. Other people's suggestions expand your repertoire. I will bend bend over backwards to do something special for someone because it is more fun than just doing something for sale."

Her time is filled with her own weaving and with custom orders, and her only complaint is that there is so little time for experimenting. "There are times when you want to try something, but you can't because of orders which you must fill. Experimenting takes time and you must force yourself to do it, but if you only use patterns all the time you miss a lot."



Dotty concentrates on her design as she weaves in her living room.

Homestead Notes

Dotty said February and March are times to catch up and do a little experimenting. She explains that experiments don't always work and it is time consuming to re-work a pattern and set up a loom differently.

Dotty took her first lessons from Frances Richards of Marticville and did all of her first projects on her loom. She then acquired a second-hand portable floor loom, but she feels very fortunate to have a friend who entered the Peace Corps and asked her to store her loom for her.

This borrowed loom is an eight harness loom, as is Dotty's portable loom. She estimates that it takes from six to eight hours to set up a loom, that is to get it in working order so that she can begin weaving. The amount of time varies according to the size of the item to be completed and the complexity of the design.

Dotty is also a spinner, owning several spinning wheels, but she said that while she enjoys spinning she never gets enough thread to weave. Her husband pointed out that it takes 10 spinners to provide the thread for one weaver, so it's easy to see her dilemma. She said she primarily knits items from the yarn she spins.

Her latest project on the spinning wheel is spinning dog's hair for a scarf for her daughter. She said, "I've got a bunch of fibers, including Russian wolfhound and Norwegian elkhound.

She added, "I don't spin as much as I'd like." Her spinning talent was developed after she learned to weave.

Dotty acknowledged that there is a great increase in interest in crafts of all kinds, everywhere, but she says she can't explain why. She said, "I think a lot of people are tired of the plastic life and there is an upsurge in all kinds of crafts. There is therapeutic value in digging hands in clay and working with the hands, and people are discovering this value."

As for herself, she learned to weave when her children weren't at home any more. Her children, two sons and a daughter, are 26, 25 and 21 years of age.

Dotty said there is a definite market for handcrafted items. She said, "People are tired of buying things they can buy everywhere. The people who buy from me are looking for something unusual, and different."

But while the interest in weaving is on the increase, she said, "It isn't easy to find someone to teach. There's probably a need for teachers." She explained that there is a certain amount of basic knowledge which must be taught to a beginner weaver, but then there is a lot of self-teaching.

She said she reads a lot of books about weaving, and she shares ideas through friends in the Weavers and Spinners group which is an interest group of the larger Conestoga Chapter of the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen. She said the group originally started with fewer than a dozen members, and now there are fifty interested spinners and weavers. As a result, there is another, smaller study group consisting of the original dozen who meet so they can have an exchange of ideas on a smaller scale. She said they trade patterns, yarns and hold show and tell sessions.

The large group has programs presented to them on different aspects of spinning and weaving and may have specific programs dealing with items like the popular coverlet.

She said the interest level of the large group varies because so many of the members are at different stages in their weaving skills. Some are just learning and some do not have looms.

A native of New Jersey, Dotty and her husband moved to Lancaster County in 1953 when Alcoa Aluminum built their plant here. She and her husband live in an old stone farm house on 40 acres south of Lancaster and she is obviously thrilled with the way of life they have chosen. When they first moved on the farm they raised sheep, but now that she knows what to do with the wool, they no longer are in the sheep business.

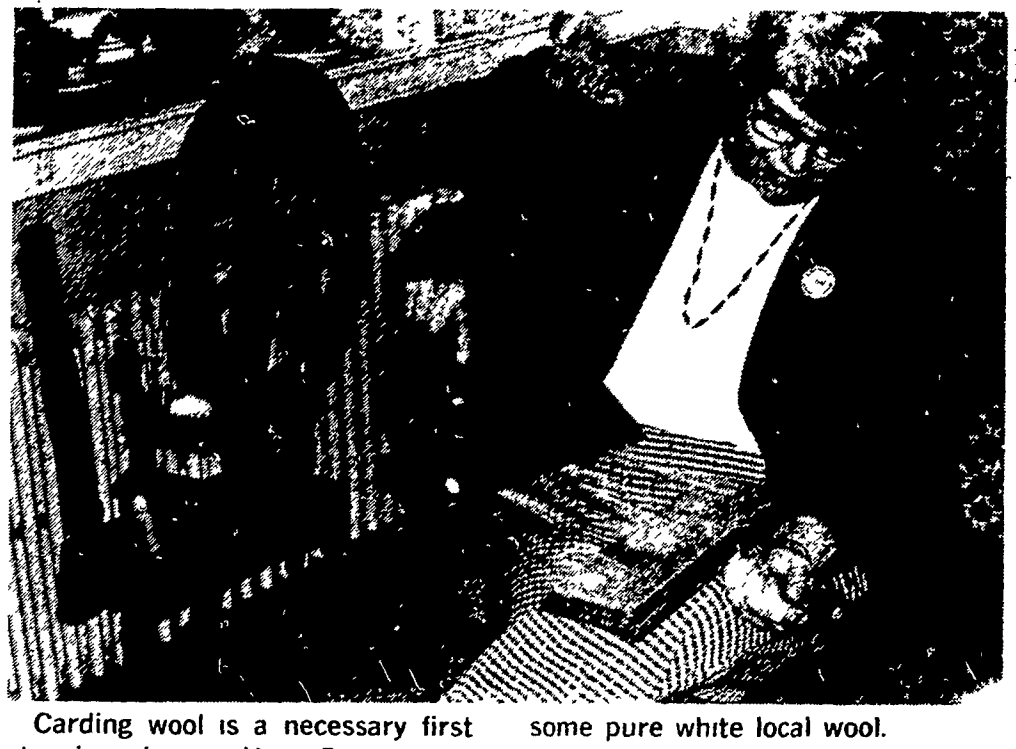
Dotty is a parttime teller at Dauphin Deposit Bank in the Wheatland Shopping Center. She is a member of St. John's Episcopal Church in Lancaster and is presently serving as president of their Episcopal Church Women's group which sponsored a Christmas Bazaar this week. Additionally, Dotty is a member of the Handweaver's Guild of America and Landis Valley Associates.

A weaver, of course, gives woven presents for Christmas. Dotty says she hasn't begun any yet, but will continue their family tradition of giving hand made items. They'll get woven items, but she says, "I think they're getting tired of them."

Her husband Arnold has been very supportive of her business venture she said. "He's so thrilled. It is really something that surprised him, that people would buy the things I make."

When asked if she must force herself to weave, she said with a laugh, "I have to force myself to do other things. I just love it. I weave all the time. I start the first thing in the morning and put something in the oven for dinner just before my husband gets home from work."

She adds, "I have so many things I want to do. I just wish I'd have started earlier. One of the challenges of weaving is that you never learn it all. It is always different."



Carding wool is a necessary first step in spinning Here Dotty cards some pure white local wool.

Dotty works at her portable loom which she uses when she demonstrates at craft shows.

Craft classes offered

YORK, Pa. - The York County Extension Service has announced several craft-teaching classes during the winter months. An invitation is extended to all interested people to participate and learn a new craft.

Corn husk doll crafts will be demonstrated on Thursday, December 2. Mrs. Marcy Seckman, Extension Home Economist, will teach this class, scheduled from 9:30-11:30 a.m. at the 4-H Center at Bair. Participants will need to register ahead of time with the Extension Service in the Court House. A list of supplies needed will be sent to class members, who will also need to supply their own corn husks.

Not ready for Christmas gift wrapping? On December 9, Marcy Seckman will help you "wrap it all up" with a class on Creative Gift Wraps. This class, too, will be held at the 4-H Center, Bair, from 9:30-11:30 a.m. Participants must register ahead with Mrs. Seckman. Supplies needed will be: white tissue paper, double faced sticky tape, and sasheen type ribbon and scissors.

Mrs. William Hake, well-known quilter, in York County, will share her quilting knowledge and techniques during six classes, scheduled January 12, 19 and 26, and February 2, 9 and 16 (snow date February 23). This class will meet from 10-12 noon at the York Bank and Trust Company, Manchester Branch. There is a $10 fee for the quilting class.

Potential craft students may send their registration, and fee if necessary, to Marceil A. Seckman, Court House, York, Pa. 17401. Checks should be made to: Extension Service Special Fund.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Home Economist

Benefits Of Losing Weight

If you've been thinking about losing some weight this fall, but aren't convinced, here are some things you ought to know.

Overweight people: have a harder time getting life insurance because of a reduced life expectancy; have a harder time getting a job due to a poorer physical image, and increased susceptibility to health problems; and are more susceptible to all of the following health difficulties: foot troubles; back troubles; high blood pressure; cardiovascular disease; gallbladder trouble; adult-onset diabetes; chronic fatigue; emotional problems; chronic infections, especially respiratory; complications of surgery; complications of pregnancy.

So if you lose those extra pounds, you can really improve your chances for a longer and a healthier, and perhaps happier life.

Take Your Time; You'll Eat Less And Enjoy More

A lot of overweight people eat too fast. They don't realize how much they're eating. Sometimes, people inhale food so fast, they haven't tasted or enjoyed it! A good way to help yourself eat less is to eat more slowly. Of course, a bowl of ice cream is as fattening when you eat it slowly as when you eat it fast. But try half a bowl of ice cream and eat it slowly. You'll notice how it feels. You'll enjoy the taste.

To begin a slowed-down meal, relax completely. Let your arms drop to your sides. Breathe slowly and deeply a couple of times. Look at your plate and decide you're going to make these smaller servings last as long as if you had big ones. Try making the food last as long as the person sitting with you takes to eat a larger meal.

Your eating now becomes a pleasure and not a job to be done. It's a time to relax and enjoy.

Here are some other tips. One is to chew each mouthful thoroughly and slowly. Then don't pick up more food until you've completely chewed and swallowed the first mouthful. Also, put your fork or spoon down after every third bite.

Eat all foods, even sandwiches, with a knife and fork. It takes longer that way. As you eat like this, pay attention to the taste, smell, and feel of the food.

A rapid eater can easily overeat. That's because it takes about 20 minutes for the stomach to signal the brains that you've had enough. Chances are, you'll fell comfortably full at the end of 20 minutes even though you've eaten less. Instead of mechanical gobbling, you'll have relaxed enjoying. That's a victory for you.

Lancaster Co. Society 19

The Lancaster County Society of Farm Women 19 will meet today (November 13) at 1:30 p.m. for a dessert first meeting at the residence of Mrs. A. R. Stauffer, 1937 Linden St., East Petersburg. Hostess for the afternoon is Mrs. Earl Stauffer. Miss Fay Stoner, 1975 International 4-H Youth Exchange person, will entertain the members with her six month's experiences of living with farm families in Germany.

The December meeting for Society 19 and their escorts will be a Christmas banquet on December 13 at 7 p.m. at Landis Valley Motor Inn.

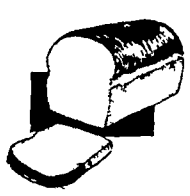
Home on The Range



Several weeks ago, there were two requests made for different recipes. One reader asked for a sugar cookie recipe, and another, named "hungry husband", asked for slippery dumplings like he remembers being served. Several different recipes came in for both, and even though the dumpling recipes have already been published once before, new ones have come into our office, and so, they too, are being printed.

Many of these dumpling recipes are what is commonly called Pennsylvania Dutch Pot Pie. Many of them have been handed down through generations and have been specially put down in recipe form just for this column. We thank everyone who has taken the time to do so. And, just as with any recipe that has been passed down, the basic flour, shortening, water, and salt ingredients have been altered to suit the tastes of each of the various families. So, while the following recipes have basically the same ingredients, each one is slightly different from the other. So, with this assortment of recipes, you can choose the one you wish to try.

Many more recipes are needed for the "holiday recipe" column which has been set aside for November 20. If you send them into us within the next few days, there will still be enough time to publish them.

SPAETZLE

3-¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
4 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup milk
2 quarts boiling salted water (2 teaspoons salt)
¼ cup butter or margarine

Combine flour, salt and nutmeg in a medium bowl. Stir in eggs and milk. Beat for two minutes until smooth. (Makes a very soft dough). Pour batter into a large hole sieve or colander, food mill, or portato ricer, hold directly over pot of rapidly boiling water and press through with a wooden spoon.

Cook six to eight minutes, stirring occasionally. Drain well. Melt butter in a heavy skillet. Add spaetzle to hot butter and saute quickly until light brown, about two to three minutes. Serve hot. Makes eight servings.

Mrs. David S. Blank
Kinzers, Pa.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH POT PIE

½ chicken and broth from which chicken was cooked
2 cups flour
2 tablespoons salt
3 eggs
Enough water to make dough stick together (about 2 tablespoons)

Cook chicken in water and one tablespoon salt. Remove meat from bones and put it in broth. Mix two cups flour, one tablespoon salt and 3 eggs together. Add water to make it stick. Roll on floured board about one-eighth inch thick. Let dry a little. Cut into two-inch squares. Put squares into boiling broth - then add potato chunks and parsley. Onions too if desired. Cook ½ hour. Serve hot.

Harriet Greenawalt
Lancaster, Pa.

xxx

CHICKEN AND DUMPLINGS

Stew chicken and take off of bones. Cut up and add to broth. Add enough water to make approximately two quarts. Add four potatoes (sliced) and one teaspoon diced onion. After broth is boiling, drop in half of the dough squares, one by one. Stir with spoon to mix, then add balance of dough squares. Cover and boil 20 minutes.

For dough squares:
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 tablespoons shortening
1 egg
One-third cup water

Cut shortening into dry ingredients. Stir in lightly the beaten egg and water. Roll out on floured board about one-fourth inch thick. Cut into two or three inch squares.

Velma E. Koons
Felton, Pa.

xxx

SLIPPERY DUMPLINGS

2 cups flour
Pinch salt
1 tablespoon shortening (or lard)

Work together until well blended. Add hot water to mix and let dough be slightly sticky. Add flour to make dough workable (the more you work the dough the better the dumplings)

Roll thin on well floured board. Cut in squares and drop in boiling liquid, stirring well from bottom of pot, as not to stick.

Mrs. Frank Allen
Mardela Springs, Md.

xxx

CHICKEN POT PIE
(Rolled out)

6 cups flour sifted
1 cup shortening, preferrably lard.
1 teaspoon salt
Cold water enough to moisten as for pie crust. (enough to be able to roll out).

Sift flour, add salt. Blend in lard or shortening and mix together like pie crust until dough forms pea-size mixture in bowl. Then add cold water, a little at a time, until right consistently to roll out on floured surface. Roll out to about one-eighth inch thickness. Then cut into about 3 inch squares and drop into well-seasoned boiling chicken broth from which chicken pieces have been removed. (Approximately one gallon liquid)

Broth should be boiling briskly when dumplings are added. Then cook slowly for at least 20 minutes, lightly shaking pot often and being careful that they do not stick or burn. When dough settles to the bottom of the pot, the dumplings are finished and ready to serve.

Mrs. Glendon Casper
Salem, N.J.

xxx

SPATZEN OR SLIPPERY DUMPLINGS

1 egg, beaten
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
1-½ cups sifted flour

Beat the egg, add milk and salt and stir in flour until a smooth batter is formed. Put the dough on a small board and roll out. With a knife dipped in hot water, quickly cut thin slices into boiling, salted water. One teaspoon salt added to one quart water. Cover and cook five minutes. Serve at once.

Mrs. Charles Biehl

xxx

FARINA DUMPLINGS

1 cup hot milk
½ cup farina
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of nutmeg
2 eggs, separated and beaten

Place milk in pan until boiling. Add Farina and cook over low heat until it thickens. Add butter and salt and cool slightly. Add beaten

OLD FASHIONED COOKIES

2 cups sugar
1 cup shortening
2 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sour milk
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
4 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon nutmeg

Mix sugar, shortening, salt, and eggs. Mix dry ingredients and add alternately with milk. Roll out dough on board, handling dough very lightly. Sprinkle dough with sugar and cut with cookie cutter. Place on greased cookie sheets and bake at 350 degrees F. for 15-20 minutes. Yield: 4 dozen.

Mrs. Donna Hess

xxx

OLD FASHIONED SOFT SUGAR COOKIES

½ cup butter or margarine
1-½ cups sugar (granulated)
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups sifted enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup dairy sour cream

Cream butter to consistency of mayonnaise; add sugar gradually, while continuing to cream. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla. Beat until light and fluffy. Mix and sift flour, salt, baking powder and baking soda. Add to creamed mixture alternately with sour cream, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. For three inch cookies drop by heaping teaspoons on well-greased cookie sheets, well apart. With spatula flatten into circles about two inches in diameter. For super-size five inch cookies use ¼ cup measure of batter for each cookie, flatten into circles about four inches in diameter. Sprinkle with cinnamon-sugar. Bake in a hot over 400 degrees, 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about 30 three inch cookies or 18 five inch cookies.

For chocolate sugar cookies: Add two squares (2 oz.) of unsweetened chocolate melted and cooled to creamed mixture. Continue as above.

For raisin sugar cookies: Add one cup seedless raisins to creamed mixture. Continue as above.

For nut sugar cookies: Add one cup of nuts to creamed mixture. Continue as above.

For chocolate chip sugar cookies: Add one to 1-½ packs of chocolate morsels to creamed mixture. Continue as above.

Mrs. Ray W. Seidel
Lenhartsville, Pa.

PUMKIN PIE

1 cup granulated sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1-½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon cloves
1-½ cups pumpkin
1-two-thirds cups evaporated milk
2 eggs

Mix filling ingredients until smooth. Place in unbaked pie shell. Bake in hot oven 425 degrees F. for 15 minutes or until done.

Mrs. Amos Risser
Elizabethtown, Pa.

xxx

FROSTY PUMPKIN PIE

Frosty Pumpkin filling:
1 cup cooked pumpkin
½ cup brown sugar
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. ground ginger
½ tsp. ground nutmeg
1 quart vanilla ice cream - slightly softened
1 baked 9" pie shell

Blend pumpkin, sugar, salt and spices. Stir pumpkin mixture into ice cream and blend well. Pour into cooled shell. Freeze immediately until firm. (note; turn your refrigerator freezer to coldest setting.)

Meringue:
3 egg whites
One-eighth tsp. salt
6 Tbsp. sugar

Beat egg whites with salt until foamy. Add sugar gradually, a tablespoon at a time. Continue beating until egg whites are stiff and glossy. Check to see if sugar is completely dissolved by tasting. Spread over pie. Be sure to seal edge of crust with meringue. Bake in preheated oven on a board for 2 to 3 minutes at 450 degrees until browned. Freeze again or serve immediately.

York County woman to speak at AAW convention next week

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Next week is the scheduled time and the Radison-Muehlebach Hotel is the scheduled place for the American Agri-Women National Convention, here. The AAW is a national coalition of farm women and farm women's organizations united to communicate with one another and with other consumers to promote agriculture for the benefit of the American people and the world. At the convention, the women will hear lectures on women's role in farm legislation, the use of media in telling the farmer's story, the how and why's of the Labor Relations Board, and the workings of the Futures Market, to name a few. The keynote speaker for the convention will be Richard F. Hrdlicka, senior vice president of the Hesston Corporation, Hesston, Kansas. Hrdlicka is a well-known speaker found frequently at educational and agricultural conventions. His speech will be entitled "Will the Real America Stand Up."

The women at the convention will also attend commodity sessions for two days in order to promote understanding and communication between the various groups.

During one of these commodity sessions, Gail McPherson, first lady of the National Peach Council and advertiser for Maple Lawn Farms, New Park, Pa. will address a session on Wednesday entitled "Helping Sales Happen." The farm wife specializes in promotion of Maple Lawn Farms peaches and apples throughout the harvest season with a creative approach to small farm advertising, and she has published "The Passion for Peaches Cookbook."

Under her initiation and coordination, Maple Lawn Farms instituted the nation's first Peach Blossom Festival which has become an annual occurrence at the farm. And the farm hosts an annual Peachilicious Weekend over Labor Days to celebrate the harvest as well.

Mrs. McPherson, a farm wife of four years, has taken her role as spokesman for agriculture seriously enough that she bills herself as a "professional farm wife." She is author and director of a three screen slide presentation on York County agriculture that she tours to schools and county group meetings.

Active in York County Farmer Association, she publishes monthly newsletter Agri-Journal, submits farm news releases to to local news papers, and is active on the Association women's committee. That group will sponsor a "Farm Wives on the Go" display at the York Mall this Fraiday and Saturday.

Also on the Wednesday (Nov. 17) AAW program from Pennsylvania will be Don Cunion, marketing specialist from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. In the portion of the fruit and vegetable commodity session working with consumer markets, Cunion will consider avenues for going after diverse direct market profits through the farmers' markets, roadisde mmarkets, pick-your-own markets, consumer cooperatives and direct marketing cooperatives.

The Pennsylvania delegation to the convention will leave from Harrisburg on Sunday morning.

Shirley's dream house came true

By JOANNE SPAHR

MANHEIM, Pa. - Until two years ago, the house sat unkempt, hidden from the road by entangled, overgrown shrubs. It was just the place to comfortably house its inhabitants - several ruddy, prospering ground hogs and a 94-year-old gentleman. The ground hogs made their homes under the porch and in the cellar, and the owner lived in one room of the large, two story frame home, keeping himself warm with a space heater. Because he was no longer able to take care of the house, it had no electric or plumbing, and it was badly in need of repairs, a clean up, and a paint job.

At that point in time, the Martin Pflieger family lived down the road from the house in a rented home from which Martin and his wife Shirley commuted everyday to work. The trek to the job was only about ¼ of a mile in length to Joy Eggs, Manheim R4, where Martin is poultry manager. But, in that quarter of a mile, they had to pass the above mentioned house everyday. That's when Shirley became interested in it.

"We'd drive past that house a couple of times a day, and I'd always say, 'I'd love to have that house," Shirley says screwing up her face to simulate her one-time hopeful and determined looks. "But, Charlie (the former owner) just wasn't ready to sell."

Then, one day, she saw a neighboring auctioneer posting "For Sale" signs on the lawn, and she couldn't believe it. Immediately, Shirley stopped the car, scrambled out, and asked the obvious question of "Is this house going to be up for sale?" just to make sure she wasn't mistaken, and then went to tell her husband the good news. From that time on, the house at Manheim R4 was destined to belong to the Pfliegers.

Excited as she was, nobody could understand what there was about the old house that made Shirley so happy to be its owner.

"I'd take people around, and they'd just look at me like I was crazy," she laughs in her typical effervescent manner. And, to most people's way of thinking, Shirley was crazy. She and her husband had purchased a house that had to be worked on for six months before the family could even move in. And, then, when they did, the heating wasn't installed for quite a while afterward. Until December, the only heat the family had was a fireplace.

"The fireplace is the second major change we made after we got the house," explains Shirley. "The first was to take out the partitions in the living room." Today, her living room extends the whole width of her home, is surrounded by windows (one of them a bay window) and has a lovely stone fireplace centrally located along the wall.

"We got the sandstone out of a field," says Shirley, "and then the mason chose the ones he wanted to make the fireplace."

The room also has a wooden beam which the Pfliegers had placed across the ceiling where the divider to the two rooms had been.

"We got the beam out of an Amishman's barn," explains Shirley.

The bay window at the end of the room adds a definite touch of class to this section of the house. Originally, it had been a door from the outside which the Pfliegers tore out to fashion the bay.

"That window is great for the morning sun," states Shirley, looking at her thriving, enormous fern sitting in front of the window on a cleverly antiqued peach basket. Plants, especially the lush, hanging, basket-type, abound in the Pflieger home and give it a warm "lived in" feeling that Shirley loves so much.

Decorating her windows, including the bay, are ball fringed curtains which Shirley is nearly finished hanging.

"When I was a little girl in school, the teacher used to have us draw houses, and they always were big, two-story homes with ball fringed curtains in the windows," Shirley says. "And, whenever I look at this house, that's what I think of ," she continues, laughing at the recollection.

And, while she laughs about the resemblance between the houses she drew as a child and the home she now has, she smiles contentedly when she thinks about her one-time dreams.

"I always wanted a house with a stone fireplace, by windows, and an open staircase," she remembers, "And, I got them all!" The staircase opens between the living room and dining room near the bay window. It, too, had been part of the remodeling process, since it originally was enclosed.

The dining room of the Pflieger home is a real treat to antique furniture lovers. Although the remodeling is still unfinished in this part of the house, it is nevertheless attractive. Every piece of furniture in the room was redone by Martin, himself.

"We've been gathering this furniture since we were first married," explains Shirley. The Pfliegers have quite an impressive collection with two dry sinks, a jelly cupboard, a dough tray, and a round extension table with five boards. And, these are only the pieces in the dining room. Shirley has many other antiques decorating her entire home.

As yet, the dining room has no carpeting because Martin is still working on completing one necessary remodeling job - he's

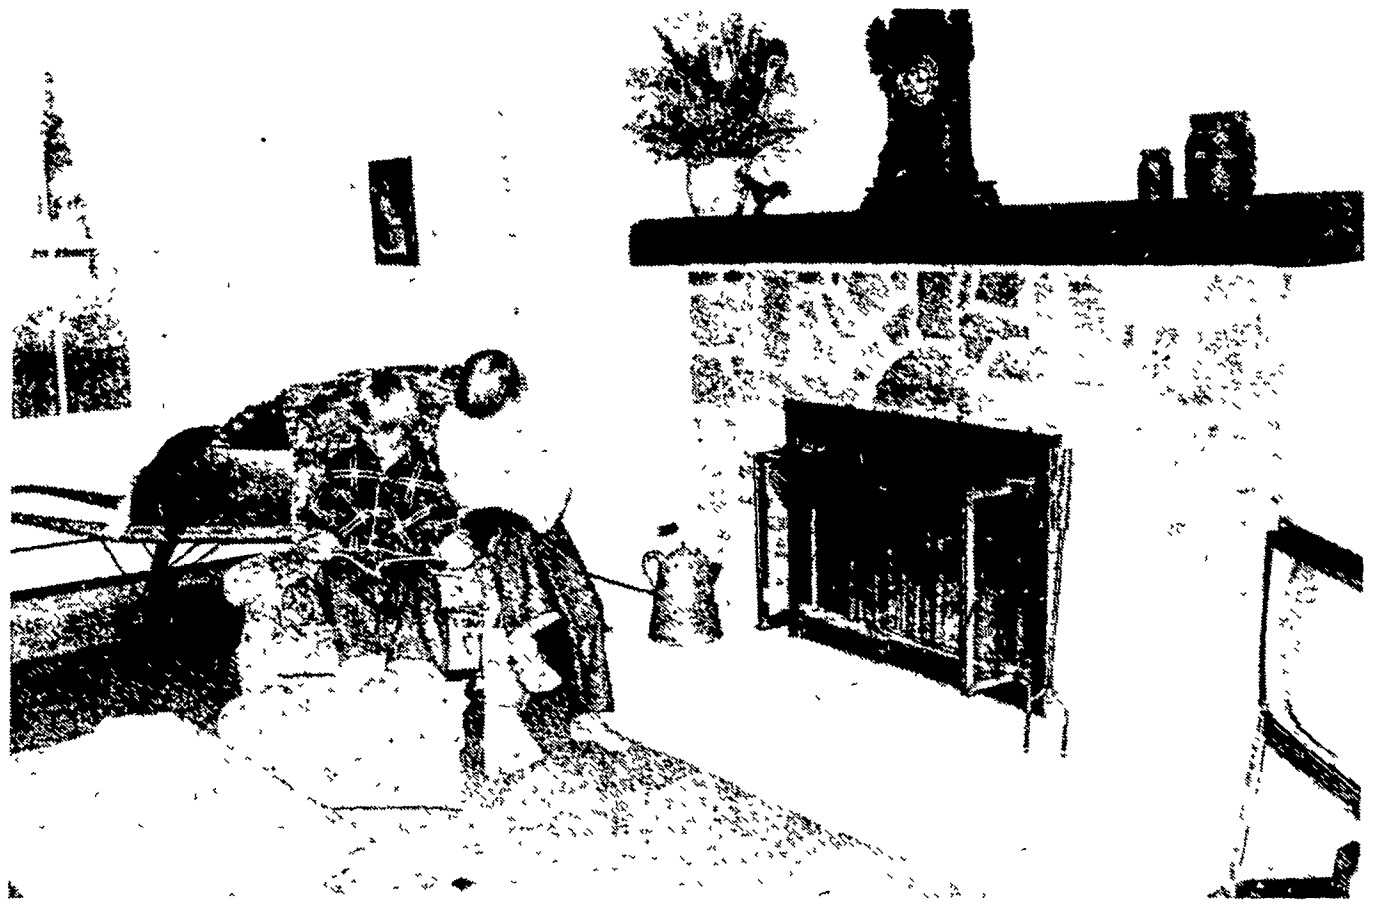
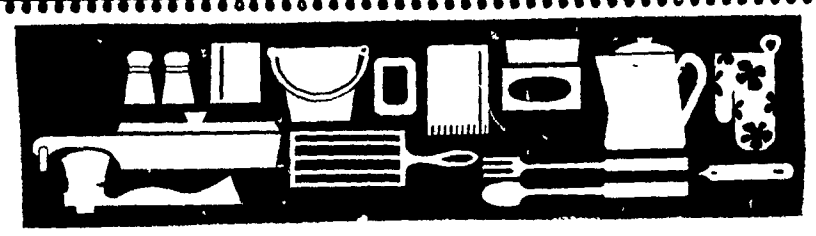
In order to make their kitchen, the Pfliegers knocked down a wall and made two rooms into one, so that there is a large cooking area. One of the rustic features of the kitchen is the open beam ceiling.

One of the features of Shirley's dream house which has come true in her remodeled home is the bay window in her living room. It's a great place for her plants, since it catches the morning sun.



When the remodeling began, the second addition the Pfliegers made was to build a fireplace. They collected sandstone from a nearby field for this.



Junior Cooking Edition

Thanksgiving is coming up in a week and half, and this week we are featuring two pumpkin pie recipes that should dress up any holiday meal.

Unfortunately, Junior Cooking Edition's files are rather low right now. But, that's good news for all Junior Cooking Edition contributors, because when you send a recipe in, you won't have to wait long to see it published, and you won't have to wait long for your potholder to come in the mail.

So, if you have any favorite recipes that you would like to share with other Junior Cooks, send them to Lancaster Farming Newspaper, Box 266, Lititz, Pa. c-o Junior Cooking Edition.

We are looking forward to hearing from you.

1 cup light cream

Mix first three ingredients. Set aside ¼ cup mixture. Press remainder against bottom and sides of greased nine-inch spring form pan.

Beat cheese, and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in egg yolks. Blend in flour and light cream. Beat egg whites and salt until moist peaks form. Fold into cheese mixture; pour into crumb crust. Sprinkle reserved crumbs on top.

Bake in a preheated slow over (325 F) about 1-¼ hours. Turn off heat; leave cake in oven one-half hour. Remove from oven. Cool in pan. Refrigerate three hours or overnight before serving.

BOSTON CREAM PIE

4 egg yolks
9 tablespoons water
1-½ cups sugar
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Beat egg yolks. Add water, beating well. Then, add sugar slowly, beating well. Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt; add to first mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into batter. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 35 minutes.

Filling:
3 cups milk (scalded)
1 heaping tablespoon flour
1 heaping tablespoon corn starch
Pinch of salt
2 eggs
1 cup sugar - and add milk, then boil

Add butter and vanilla, cool, then cut cake in two halves and spread the filling in the middle.

creating his own wainscoting with old barn boards.

"He's new to some of this," Shirley explains with pride, "but he always learns and does a really nice job."

Right now the boards are up along the wall, and he is adding the molding. When that entire job is completed, Shirley hopes to get nice, plush wall-to-wall carpeting.

Even though the living room is beautiful with its fireplace and bay window, and the dining room is unique with its furniture and homemade wainscoting, the kitchen tops them all with its rustic beauty.

Probably the most outstanding feature of the room is the open beam ceiling. Shirley and her children went to a lot of trouble to create this rustic touch.

"Everybody got up on ladders and started pounding at the plaster," she says, "and we were done in no time." Then, she wire brushed all the beams, herself.

The fire corner in the kitchen is also a fascinating spot to observe. The original owner had used that spot to house the space heater for his living quarters, and had installed linoleum on the floor. When the Pflieger started to remodel, they took up the linoleum, and replaced the bricks on the floor with some from an old fireplace. The brick in the corner was also plastered shut, so, they once again got busy with their tools and took it all off. Then, while carpenters and masons were at work, Shirley and Martin had a beam placed across the top of the fire corner to create a mantle effect. And, now, this little corner is the spot for some of Shirley's other antiques including her grey agateware collection. However, the corner does not house the whole collection, for she has it adorning her whole kitchen.

Shirley's fire corner is the nook in the kitchen which collects many of her antiques.

The upstairs bedrooms were also completely done over. None of the sections of the house had closets in them, so they had to be built in, as did bunk beds for the boys. And, their only daughter, Robin, got a left-over from one of Shirley's dreams.

"I always wanted a window seat, and when we made the plans for the house, I put one in our bedroom," she explains. Then, when the actual remodeling took place and the furniture was put into the room, a window seat took up a little too much space in the master bedroom.

"So, I gave Robin my window seat," Shirley jokes. She also had built-in bookshelves and a desk put in Robin's room.

Shirley's also got other remodeling projects going on right now. The Pfliegers recently put green siding on the outside of the house, and began painting the porch. And, for the future, Shirley has plans and more dreams for a patio off the back porch.

And, of course, her redecorating won't stop there. Since about half of the work done on the home is a family project, Shirley has the manpower for making quite a few changes to meet her specifications.

"My children were great when it came to tearing things apart," she laughs. Of course, putting things back together was another story entirely. And, of course, she is a crative person with a background in interior decorating - she took, but never completed, a correspondence coarse on the subject - and she enjoys being busy. So, when it comes to something like painting, Shirley will most likely do it herself.

With all this going for her, her dream house is sure to gradually materialize right before her eyes.

The dining room in the Pflieger home is totally furnished with antique pieces that Martin redid himself.

Trees, anyone?

HARRISBURG - The Department of Environmental Resources said last week that now is the time to order tree seedlings for reforestation planting next Spring.

Seedlings purchased from the Department are to be planted on idle land for water-shed protection and as a source of future wood products.

The seedling program is administered by the Department's Bureau of Forestry. A landowner who has one-and-one-half acres or more of open land which is suitable for planting the minimum order of 1,000 seedlings is eligible to purchase forest tree seedlings.

Samuel S. Cobb, state forester and director of DER's Bureau of Forestry, noted that this program represents an opportunity for landowners to help themselves develop future forests which eventually will benefit everyone, including generations to come.

Available for sale are pines, spruce, larch and some hardwood tree species, all recommended by experienced foresters for development into productive forests. According to law, seedlings purchased from the Department may not be planted for windbreaks, ornamental purposes or Christmas trees.

For additional information on the program, and for the necessary application, write to: Nurseries, Department of Environmental Resources, P. O. Box 1467, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17120.

HEADGATE

The invention of a simplified lever and locking system has enabled a Kansas company to build a better automatic livestock headgate that costs less.

The innovation results in an improved, automatic locking mechanism with fewer moving parts, according to Phil Geisler, executive vice president of Wadler Manufacturing Co., Galena, Kan. Under development for nearly two years, the new system is being built into the company's Headhunter Model 101-A. A patent is pending on the device.

"This gate will retail for $149.95,'" Geisler reported.

The Headhunter 101-A operates either manually or automatically. Its twin locking mechanism serves both as a triggering device to close the gate and as an automatic stop which makes it impossible for animals to spread open the gate's stanchion posts. A slight bump on the stanchion posts causes the gate to snap shut.

The gate can be used on all sizes of animals ranging from small calves to large bulls. With an opening measuring 24 inches by 55 inches, the gate comes in left and right-hand models.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Co. Society 2

Eighteen women from Farm Women Society No. 2 attended the County-wide convention held on Saturday, Nov. 6 at the Farm and Home Center and Women from the society won the monetary award for best attendance.

Betty Geib, won first place with her essay entitled, "What Makes a Farm Woman Tick in '76". Nine essays were submitted and Betty's was judged first.

On sale at the Farm and Home Center were baked goods and some hand-made articles made by various societies.

Morning speaker was Lois Erb from Dauphin County. She is the State Farm Woman President, and Lois spoke on "Joys of Being a Farm Woman". County wide officers, as well as, Society No. 2 officers were installed by the State Farm Women President, Lois Erb. The officers installed are president, Grace Miller; v-pres. Martha Brandt; corresponding secretary, Pauline Gordley; recording secretary, Ruth Waltz, and treasurer, Betty Geib.

Lunch was served at the Farm and Home Center; and a ladies trio comprised of women representing three societies calling themselves the Glory Heirs entertained the ladies in song.

A memorial service was held honoring deceased society members. John Bell, a humor-pantomimist, a resident of Bala-Cynwood entertained during the afternoon session.

The next meeting of Society No. 2 will be Saturday, Nov. 13, and the meeting will be held at the Farm and Home Center. Hostess is Elsie Witmer, co-hostess, Eva Keener.

Lancaster Co. Society 4

Lancaster County Society of Farm Women Group 1 met at the home of Mrs. Jean Waldo, Boyertown R4, with 14 members in attendance.

"A New Room at Home" was the program for the evening. Slides on remodeling and redecorating different rooms in the house were shown.

Plans were made to have dinner at the Village diner on November 17. Christmas gifts for shut ins and meals on wheels will be made at the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Georgeann Fullerton. A Christmas party, secret pals being revealed, and new ones chosen are also on the agenda. New officers will be installed by Mrs. Helen Elbing, county president.

Lancaster Co. Society 7

Lancaster County Society 7 held their annual banquet at Historic Strasburg on October 16. Guests were husbands and friends of the members.

Ralph Schneider, York, creator with gourds, gave a demonstration.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Henry Ebersole, Paradise, on November 13 at 2 p.m. Dues will be collected.

York Co. Society 11

Ada Strickler was elected president of Potosi Farm Women, Group 11 of York County, during the October meeting. During the mystery meeting, the women were taken on a tour of Rehmeyer's Hollow to view the beautiful fall-colored leaves.

Other officers who will serve Group No. 11 for next year are: Ada Luckenbaugh, vice-president; Marie Brillhart and Cora Keiser, secretary and assistant; Cora Miller and Orpha Innerst, treasurer and assistant; Mary Carman and Naomi Bupp, pianist and assistant; Betty Roberts and Mildred Bupp, chorister and assistant.

Mrs. Verna Brillhart, who will be 87, was voted an honorary member.

A donation was made to the York County Mental Health Association, in addition to the annual contribution.

Nineteen members attended the Nov. 4 York County Farm Women's Convention.

Group No. 11 will meet November 16, at the home of Mary Carmen. Hosting for that day will be Clara Lehman. Planning the program, "Home Remedies of Yesterday," are Sandy Keiser, Alean Carman and Alice Krout.

Mrs. T. Donald Irvin will demonstrate "Bread Dough Crafts." Hostesses will be Mrs. Martin Hersh, Mrs. Stanley Hoffer, Mrs. Arthur Rohrer, and Mrs. Charles Rohrer.

The Society had a food stand at the farm sale of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Eby. Food sales for the Society was over $400.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

There are so many jobs to do around a farm that one needs many talents or maybe just abilities. During the last two days, I've done a variety of work. Somethings are enjoyable like digging a bushel of sweet potatoes but others such as waxing the car are just plain work. On a sunny afternoon, I finished hammering the hulls off a pike of black walnuts and then managed to paint our picnic table, which stays in the yard all winter, while my youngest daughter cooked supper.

Now that the corn is all picked, I'm expected to glean the fields but I don't know if I'll get around to it. The pomegranate bushes must be moved into the cellar and several dozen dahlia tubers need to be stored also.

Every season brings with it its own special tasks.

xxx

Sometimes I'm not sure how much of a saving the "double-coupon offer" at some grocery stores is to housewives.

I've gone to shop with a small list and a fistful of coupons. When I check out the bill is large because I've picked up things that were too good a bargain to leave.

It is a good way to try a new product. By paying a few cents for a can or box of food, we sample things which we wouldn't usually buy. But here again is the danger, that we may like it so much, that we'll add it to next weeks list. It seems the world is run with money and somehow there isn't enough of it to cover all our needs.

Chairman says we must close up gap

GETTYSBURG, Pa. - Mrs. Charles Benner of Middleburg recently urged farm women to work at closing the gap of understanding between the farmer and the consumer, calling it an "important area of concern." She spoke at the women's conference of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association which is holding its 26th annual meeting, here, through Wednesday.

Mrs. Benner, chairman of the PFA Women's Committee said, "Too often we take for granted that there is food on the table and a car in the garage - not fully understanding how either got there.

"We - both the farm family and the city family - have a lot to contribute to each other's survival, but we fail to recognize this fact unless we work at it," she told the women.

Mrs. Benner explained that both groups have problems but in most cases they are similar. "We lack understanding on both sides," she remarked.

"One of the most important areas of concern," the farm wife said, "is the gap of misunderstanding between the farmer and the consumer. Farm women can bring about a closing of this gap through continual contacts with the urban family.

She reported that farm women in her organization were planning to "make a major effort to begin the process of understanding in the coming year."

Farm Women enjoy a little fun, business

By JOANNE SPAHR
AND SALLY BAIR

LANCASTER, Pa. - It was a day of "a little business and a little laughter" as 350 women all belonging to one of 31 different Farm Women Societies throughout Lancaster County gathered at the Farm and Home Center, here, last Saturday, to celebrate the 59th Annual Lancaster County Farm Women's Convention.

Mrs. Robert Gregory county president, presided over the meeting, and mixed in with the business of the day which included the secretary, treasurer, president, and society's reports were several moments of special entertainment.

In her remarks to the Farm Women, Mrs. Doris Thomas, Lancaster County Extension home economist, discussed the economic, political, social and technological changes affecting Main Street, U.S.A.

She said that while American consumers have been used to an increasing income every year which allowed them increased spending power, in 1975 they experienced for the first time since 1949 a decrease in this ability. Mrs. Thomas said this rising cost of living is forcing changes on the homemakers of today and places them in a period of great transition.

She said we must learn to conserve energy and in the next decade and we must cut our energy use in half. This will mean a reorganization of our lives.

She challenged homemakers to maximize their independence and plan for the future so that changes which are brought about in their personal lives can be made gradually and thoughtfully.

Later on in the morning a check for $2120 was presented by the 31 Farm Women Societies in Lancaster County to The Saint Joseph's Mobile Unit, and was accepted for the Unit by Dave Griffith, a medic.

He told the farm women that the mobile life support system, through their team effort with local ambulance and police network now offer Lancaster Countians the finest emergency medical care system anywhere in Pennsylvania.

He said the local unit has the finest resuscitation rate of any such unit in the nation. Of 100 cardiac arrest cases, 26.4 per cent are saved and brought back to a useful life. He also told the women that in today's society, women are as susceptible to coronary problems as their male counterparts, because they are under mental and physical strains of the same nature as men.

Griffith stressed to the farm women that the mobile unit is not just a coronary unit, but should be called in any life-threatening situation. He said it is important to learn the 393-1119 number and use it immediately in case of accident.

Prior to the noon meal, Mrs. Lois Erb, state Farm Women president, spoke on the "Joys of Being a Farm Woman". The first part of her speech centered on aspects of farm living, in general, in which she listed, and briefly elaborated on, the various attributes of this livelihood. Among the things she cited as benefits of life on the farm are nature appreciation, respect for life, maintenance of family solidarity, and a healthy and natural environment in which to teach the facts of life.

ATTENTION: DAIRYMEN

To save money and improve milk production

Feed Dairy Special 40XX

The key to efficiency in any dairy feeding program is getting maximum performance out of homegrown grains and roughages while keeping out-of-pocket feed costs down. That's why Vigortone developed Dairy Special 40XX for use in legume hay or haylage rations.

This potent pre-mix contains abundant phosphorus to balance off the high calcium content of these roughages and provides proper levels of other major minerals, trace minerals and vitamins.

Legume programs are well balanced with Dairy Special 40XX, and the need for supplemental protein is much less. Best of all, your cows soon respond to their full bred-in potential to produce milk.

Dairy Special 50XX for the dry cow

Proper nutrition for the dry cow is just as important as for the producing cow. It's during this period that the stage is set for the level of production she will have throughout the lactation period. Vigortone's Dairy Special 50XX is properly suited to fortify high roughage rations of dry cows and keep them in excellent condition right up to freshening.

See your Vigortone dealer soon

Your Vigortone dealer has several products and programs to promote better milk production and help you save money. See him soon.

York 4-H'ers in NJHA Convention

YORK, Pa. - The York County 4-H vegetable judging team represented the state of Pennsylvania in the 4-H division at the 42nd annual National Junior Horticultural Association Convention held October 29th to November 1 in King of Prussia, Pa. Jack Parr, Thomasville R1, Paul Myers III, Thomasville R 1, and Megan Shaub, 350 W. Railroad Ave., Shrewsbury, competed with other 4-Hers and young adults throughout the United States. Their efforts placed them 10th in the National 4-H Horticulture contest which was composed of a written test, identification of a wide variety of plant material, and judging of vegetable, fruit, flower and ornamental specimen classes for consumer quality.

The convention was the focal point for national competition in such areas as enviromental education and beautification; production and marketing; experimental horticulture; "speaking of horticulture"; and gardening and plant propagation. Megan Shaub received the Grand National Champion award in the junior class for the area of Commodity Marketing-Fresh Market.

Other program highlights were workshops on corsages, floral arrangements, and plant propagation; a dinner theater featuring "Oklahoma"; visits to Bicentennial sites and Longwood Gardens; tours of commercial rose and mushroom production sites; and messages from specialists in the horticultural field. The climax of the four day conference was the 42nd awards banquet where the winners in the various categories of competition were announced.

Farm Women

The state president then went on to speak specifically about the pleasures derived from belonging to the Farm Women organization. She noted that in her 25 years of membership she has gained a wealth of friends, and added new dimensions to her character through inspirational relationships with the noble women she has met.

The afternoon session began with entertainment by the "Glory Heirs", a singing group made up of three farm women. This was followed by a memorial service for past farm women and the installation of new officers. Mrs. Richard King, Mountville, of Society 4 was elected new county secretary, and Mrs. Charles Leaman, Ronks, of Society 14, was named treasurer. These women will stay in office for two years. Continuing in office in addition to Mrs. Robert Gregory, county president, are Mrs. Carl Diller, Lancaster, first vice president, and Mrs. John Ruhl, second vice president.

The county winner for the state project was also named at Saturday's convention. This year's project is an essay contest in which the women are asked to write on the topic, "What makes a Farm Woman Tick in '76." Nine women from the Lancaster County Societies entered in the preliminary competition with Mrs. Betty Geib Manheim, of Society 2, winning the first place. Joan Hershey, Mt. Joy, of Society 26 was the second place winner, Lorna King, Mountville, of Society 4 was the third place winner, and Alice Weaver of Society 7 was the fourth place winner.

In her essay, Mrs. Geib wrote that a farm woman adds "happy to be of service" to the four clauses of the 4-H pledge. Then she went on to name some of the services a Farm Woman provides to those around her. In conclusion, she wrote "A farm woman ticks with her work just like a clock, and her work will live on to the end of time."

Mrs. Geib will now go on to state competition. The winner of this competition will be chosen during the state convention in January at Harrisburg.

The close of the convention came with the featured entertainment of the day - pantomimist John Bell of Bala Cynwood.

YOUR GARDEN

A Safe Edge

If you're one of the million of Americans who use power equipment right in your own backyard, it's important to know that getting the edge on safety demands constant attention Here are some tips from the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute that will help you use your edger-trimmer safely and wisely.

1 Read the owner's manual carefully and become familiar with your equipment before using it

2 Keep children and pets a safe distance away.

3 Know your controls Learn how to stop the machine quickly in an emergency

4 Keep feet and hands well away from the blades and other rotating parts

5 Discuss with your dealer proper use and maintenance of your equipment

By following these and all other safety rules you can trim your lawn and garden with ease while avoiding becoming a victim of your own labor-saving device

From Pa.'s Dairy Princesses

Carol Heisler

By Carole Heisler
Schuylkill Co.
Dairy Princess

George Washington is said to have been crazy about it. Dolly Madison served it at the White House in 1813. It was a rarity in those days, but 200 years later, it's one of America's favorite desserts. Every American consumes nearly 20 pounds a year. What is the freezy favorite? Ice cream, of course.

It was in the 1880's and for years afterwards that the ice cream parlor became an institution. It was a special someplace to go after Sunday evening walks. Even unescorted young ladies could go there without being criticized.

The origin of the ice cream sundae is clouded with some doubt as to whether it was first concocted in Illinois in the late 1890's, in Pittsburgh in 1896, or in Wisconsin in 1900. Whatever the history, the fact remains that it was developed.

Perhaps one of the most interesting histories is the Evanston, Ill. version. The town was nicknamed "Heavenston" in the late 90's because it was Methodist minded and so pious that the town fathers, resenting the dissipating influence of the soda fountain, passed an ordinance forbidding the sale of ice cream sodas on Sunday.

Some ingenious fountain operators, however, got around the law by serving ice cream with syrup- but without soda. This soda-less soda was the Sunday soda and became so popular that orders for "Sundays" crossed the counter every day of the week. When objection was raised to christening the dish after the Sabbath, the spelling was changed to "sundae."

Ice cream has had a long, interesting history. Increased productions boosted Pennsylvania to second place in the production of ice cream and third in the production of ice milk and milk sherbet in 1975.

I am proud to be one small part of the great dairy industry. I am proud to be a Schuylkill County dairyman's daughter. Please remember when served as a dessert or snack, ice cream provides a nutritious addition to the daily menu. I hope ice cream is a freezy favorite in your home.

Dairymen! LET US CHECK YOUR MILKING MACHINE'S PERFORMANCE!

NO CHARGE! NO OBLIGATION!

If you have a problem of teat and udder erosion in your herd — chances are you are milking with unstable vacuum And, as more and more animal health authorities have been agreeing that many teat and udder injuries — which have contributed to the spread of mastitis — have been caused by unstable milking vacuum you should have your milking machine's performance checked

We'll be happy to do this for you with our DETCO Graph Machine It's a remarkable, new invention that records vacuum readings at the milker units attached to the teats, recording the milking vacuum and pulsating vacuum simultaneously And tells you in easy-to-understand graph form, as shown in the photo above, if you are milking with unstable vacuum at the teat end

Increasing the size of your vacuum pump and the size of your air and milk lines are good recommendations But if you still don't have stable vacuum at the teat ends — investigate our ZERO CONCORD Twin-Vacuum Pipeline Milking System It's a combination of a revolutionary pipeline milking machine and the ZERO Completely-Automated Vacuum Bulk Milk Cooler It was designed especially to milk with stable vacuum at the teat ends to prevent teat and udder injuries caused by milking with unstable vacuum And has many other advantages

Extension home economists recognized

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - Nine county Extension home economics agents from Maryland received recognition last month in connection with the 42nd annual meeting of the National Association of Extension Home Economists. All are professional employees of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

This year's NAEHE annual meeting was held Oct. 24-29 in the Hilton hotel at Portland, Ore. More than 1,500 Extension home economists from all 50 states and Puerto Rico were in attendance. The Maryland honorees included:

Mrs. Jane B. Crouse of Chestertown, who was elected to a two-year term as alternate director for the Eastern region of the NAEHE; Mrs. Leona S. Wrightson of Easton, who was honored as this year's winner of the Distinguished Service Award for Maryland; Mrs. Judith R. Williamson of Lutherville who received the first place national Communication Award for newsletters. As part of her job in Howard county, Mrs. Williamson edits Living Creatively, a monthly mimeographed newsletter dealing with topics on family living. Her first-place national newsletter award included a cash remuneration from the Georgia and Alabama Peanut Growers association.

Other award recipients were: Donna L. Parsell of Newark, Del.; Mrs. Karen B. Abernethy of Monrovia, Md., and Mrs. Martha M. Myers of Upper Marlboro, who were named to serve on the hospitality committee for next year's annual meeting of the National Association of Extension Home Economists. That meeting is scheduled Sept. 19-23, 1977, in Boston, Mass.

Diane V. Brown and Mrs. Dolores L. Dixon, both of Cambridge, were also named to committees assisting with next year's annual meeting of the NAEHE. Miss Brown will serve on the registration committee, and Mrs. Dixon was assigned to the exhibits committee. Both are Extension home economics agents in Dorchester county.

Mrs. Ellen P. Pusey of Snow Hill was named to the research committee, a standing committee of the National Association of Extension Home Economists. She is an Extension home economics agent in Wicomico county.

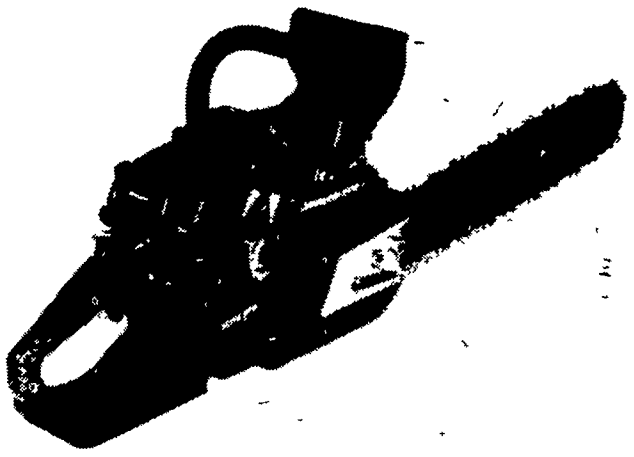
What's new



CHAIN SAW

From the tallest to the smallest - that's the way Tilton Equipment describes the new Jonsereds Model 49SP chain saw.

According to the manufacturer, a chain saw of this size and durability was needed to bridge the gap between the professional heavy duty models and the light weight models operated by the casual user.

Named the "Semi-Pro", the new unit has an engine displacement of 49cc and is the first chain saw in its class to retain all the safety features found in more expensive models. These include a six point anti-vibration mounting, front and rear hand guards, a trigger safety interlock and baffled muffler. The casing is cast magnesium for strength and lightness. Powerhead weight is only 13.5 pounds. It has an adjustable automatic oiling system and a Tillotson all-position carburetor.

The standard unit is equipped with a 15 inch speed-tip bar and chain, and is priced at $239.95. Other lengths are available.

For more information on the 49SP, write to Tilton Equipment Company, 4612 North Chatsworth Street, St. Paul, MN 55112.

Farm-City week announced

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN - Each Pennsylvania farmer gets more important every day. While the state and nation have fewer farmers than ever before, the overall population continues to increase and demand more food.

Never have so many persons been so dependent on so few, Schuylkill County Agent, David L. Kantner, points out. He adds that Farm-City Week is being observed November 19-25 to bring about increased understanding of problems existing between the rural and urban segments of our society.

In the 1960's an average of about 100,000 farmers a year went out of business in the United States. The number has dropped to about 45,000 a year because of the increased demand for food.

"Because the decline in the number of farmers, a rate which is still too high, many think American agriculture is a diminishing industry. But nothing could be further from the truth," Kantner said.

One farm worker now feeds 56 persons. In 1952 the figure was 16. And the diet he provides is the finest in the world.

Schuylkill County will celebrate it's Farm-City Week program with a banquet on Thursday, November 18, 1976, at 7:00 p.m. at the First United Church of Christ, Route 61 South, Schuylkill Haven.

The program will include the former Pennsylvania Poultry Queen, Miss Dawn Heisler; and Schuylkill County Dairy Princess, Miss Carol Heisler. President of the Schuylkill County Manufacturers' Association, John Hester, will also highlight the diversity of the manufacturing interests in Schuylkill County.

The public is invited. Tickets are available from Mr. Ben Godshall, Agricultural Stabilization Office, David Building, Pottsville, by calling 622-9890 or the Agricultural Extension Office, Schuylkill Haven, by calling 385-3431.

FmHA rural house loans described

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) will begin a new program of guaranteed rural housing loans, the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced this week.

FmHA, the USDA's rural credit agency, will guarantee up to 90 per cent of principal and interest of loans for single family rural housing made by private lenders.

Final regulations for the new program have been published in the Federal Register, and will become effective Jan. 1, 1977.

Housing is the third major area of FmHA credit services in which the agency has introduced the guaranteed loan.

FmHA also guarantees private lenders' loans, as well as making its own loans, under its business and industrial (B&I) and farm loan programs. Nearly all of the lending under the B&I program is guaranteed. All lending under a special Emergency Livestock Credit program is guaranteed. A small portion of the agency's other types of farm credit is guaranteed.

In housing, FmHA at present will offer loan guarantees only under its single family housing loan program to applicants who cannot get housing mortgage credit without a guarantee. FmHA will continue to make single family housing loans with its own funds to low-to-moderate income borrowers who cannot qualify for guaranteed loans. The agency also will continue to make, but not guarantee, other housing loans, including those for rural rental housing, farm labor housing, and housing site development in rural areas.

FmHA makes and will guarantee housing loans in rural areas - defined as open country, towns of up to 10,000 population, and 337 places between 10,000 and 20,000 population which are not in Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas and are seriously lacking in housing mortgage credit for low and moderate income borrowers.

The regulations for the new FmHA housing loan guarantee program include options for marketing the guaranteed parts of loans that closely parallel procedures adopted by FmHA in December, 1975, for guaranteed B&I loans.

The agency will require that a lender making a guaranteed housing loan be a local lender - one located in or doing business in the area where the housing is located.

The maximum loan FmHA will guarantee will be $33,000 in the 48 contiguous States.

Loans to be guaranteed will be limited to 97 per cent of the value of the house and site for the first $25,000 of a loan, and 95 per cent for the balance. The borrower must have equity in cash or land for the downpayment. The maximum repayment period is 33 years.

The annual interest rate for single-family housing loans guaranteed by FmHA will be eight per cent. There will be a one-time guarantee fee of one per cent of the amount guaranteed, which must be paid by the lender and may be passed along to the borrower. The lender also may charge the borrower other customary fees. The seller may be charged points on the loan; the borrower may not.

Guaranteed loans will be made to borrowers whose adjusted gross annual incomes do not exceed specified levels but are sufficient to repay loans made at the prevailing unsubsidized FmHA interest rate (currently eight per cent).

Currently, these income ceilings are $15,600 for the 48 contiguous States.

Adjusted gross income is defined as total regular income of all adults who will occupy the housing, minus five per cent and minus $300 for each dependent child. Other deductions apply in special cases.

It's round-up time in Cumberland County

With the annual Cumberland County 4-H Beef and Lamb Round-up just 3 days away, 4-H'ers in the County are busy preparing their animals for the event. Scheduled to take place at the Carlisle Livestock Market on Nov. 16, the sale is open to commercial firms, clubs, and the public in general. The sale begins at 8 p.m., following judging activities which would have begun at 9:30 a.m. Getting a steer ready, above, are Victor and David Barrick of Carlisle R5. Preparing their sheep are Joe and Paul Wynn.

"The Farmers' Daughters" represent several York County Farm Women Societies. Not superstitious, the group numbers 13. "We sing just for the fun of it!" they all agreed. The singers will appear at the York Mall Saturday.

Farmers' Daughters to perform at York

YORK, Pa. - "I think we should have a Farm Women's chorus," casually suggested Mary Hoffman during a committee meeting two years ago. Mary was serving at that time as President of the York County Society of Farm Women.

"I think a few in our group would like to help," commented one committee member.

"So would some in our society," added another.

The idea took root, and soon after, several women met for the first rehearsal.

But what would they call themselves? Not all the singers were living on farms. Most, however, had farm parents and had grown up on farms. What could be more appropriate than "The Farmers' Daughters"?

Today the group numbers 12-13 singers, plus their director-accompanist. They have entertained at the annual State Farm Women's Convention in Harrisburg and during several Bicentennial celebrations throughout the past year.

Mrs. Miriam Dapp is the director for the musical group. During their periodic rehearsals, the women select and practice new numbers, constantly trying to keep their performances fresh and entertaining. A variety of inspirational and patriotic themes are given during their programs, spiced with an occasional whimsical song.

The Farmers' Daughters will be singing at the York Mall this weekend, presenting the grand finale for the York County Farmers' Association's "Farm Women On The Go" display. Their singing performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The group currently represents five Societies from south-central York County. Singers are: from Group 11 - Mary Carman, Sarah Snyder, Naomi Bupp, and Betty Roberts; from Group 2 Mary Herbst, Charlotte Herbst, Lillian Godfrey, Miriam Dapp, Esther Sechrist; from Group 12 - Janet Kohler and Bernice Manchey;; from Group 22 - Mary Cooper; and from Group 18 - Treva Whorl.

Arrangements for information on The Farmers' Daughters can be made by contacting Mrs. Harry Dapp, Glen Rock, R1.

What's New

A new line of authentic Quaker Lace shawls is being offered by The Philadelphia Lace Market.

The shawls are made of a durable, easy-care Dacron and cotton blend. They are fashioned on 19th-century machines brought from Nottingham, England.

These stylish cover-ups are inspired by age-old Belgian and Italian designs, and are reminiscent of Early-American shawls as well. They are soil-release treated, machine washable, permanent-press and drip-dry.

The Quaker Lace shawls are available in ecru and antique white, and measure 62" x 55" with 4" fringe. Suggested retail prices range from $9.95 to $15.95. Sample and wholesale price information available. Send $5.95 to Nicholas Sears Crowell, Philadelphia Lace Market, 550 Bridge Street, Phoenixville, Pa. 19460.

Business figures released by Sire-Power bull stud

TUNKHANNOCK, Pa. - Sire Power Inc., with headquarters here and Frederick, Md., recently completed its 1975-76 fiscal year. Annual totals indicated large increases in all areas of business activity, according to Ron Flatness, director of sales and promotion. In direct herd sales they were plus nearly $200,000 in gross income and a 21 per cent increase in business volume.

International sales included a $72,000 gross income increase, a 25 per cent plus over last year. International business volume increased by 40,000 units, a 33 per cent increase. Sire Power was plus nearly 60,000 units over last year.

Direct Herd sales include sales directly to dairymen or beef ranchers who breed their own cows and buy many services at once. They are usually among the largest farmers in an area. Sire Power has A.I. management schools throughout it's area to train cattlemen to breed their own cows, and also sells all equipment necessary for success in this endeavor. Estimates indicate that over 50,000 U.S. cattlemen now utilize this new method of herd improvement.

Sire Power's International market includes national sales to areas of the United States that are outside of traditional "Sire Power Country"; Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, and West Virginia.

'Is price risk best managed by politicians, or farmers?' asks AFBF president Grant

GETTYSBURG, Pa. - Farmers believe the market itself is "more fair and dependable than any government attempts at political price-management," Allan Grant, American Farm Bureau Federation president, said here Tuesday at the Sheraton International Inn.

Grant was speaking at the awards banquet being held in connection with the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA).

"As long as agriculture remains free, as long as there is a good chance for profit - there will be an equal chance for a loss," Grant told the farmers.

"We can't hurt all of the time, or we'd go out of business, so we learn to do things that minimize our price risk," he said.

"There is no question but that price risk can be managed. The question is, "By whom?" Is price risk best managed by politicians for farmers? Or is it best managed by farmers for themselves, as we've been doing all along?

"If government removes price risks from agriculture by placing substancial federal price floors under commodities, production will be encouraged, and those floors can become ceilings. Gone with the price risk will be much of the price opportunity, as the leveling - out process produces an agriculture stablished and frozen into mediocrity.

"Most farm and ranch people know, and accept price risks as a working part of the free market. The feel the market itself," he concluded, "is more fair and dependable than any government attempts at political price-management."

PFA is a general farm organization with 20,313 members. It has 53 county units affiliated with the state group, which is part of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Jack Armstrong, deputy administrator USDA's Farmer Cooperative Service, said on Monday that individual farmers and their organizations "are vital for the future preservation of family farm agriculture."

Armstrong told the farmers that "the role of individual producers and the role of their organizations are vital for the future preservation of family farm agriculture."

"Farmers have heard much about the shift of agriculture to an increased market orientation in recent years," he said. The government official explained that this move would have a profound affect on farmer marketing groups, like the Pennsylvania Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association, a PFA marketing affiliate.

Earlier in the day, Noel Stuckman, manager of the Michigan Agricultural Marketing Association (MACMA), said "the key to successful Farm Bureau marketing programs is full member support and participation."

Stuckman told the farmers that "a state Farm Bureau can set up the organizational structure and can secure both staff and expertise to operate a program, but that doesn't guarantee success. Members must commit themselves and their production to the organization without reservation, especially with full financial support."

Stuckman described the various marketing activities of MACMA which is one of the affiliate services available to the 61,500 members of the Michigan Farm Bureau. PFA also has a marketing affiliate.

BOVINE RHINOTRACHEITIS VACCINE

'TSV', a new intranasal vaccine for prevention of bovine rhinotracheitis (IBR), has been released by Norden Laboratories of Lincoln, Nebraska. The vaccine features maximum safety in that it may be administered to bred cows at any stage of gestation, without the threat of abortion.

'TSV' was extensively tested in field trials involving 1500 pregnant cows from 12 commercial herds. None of the cows, including 175 animals devoid of antibodies to the bovine herpesvirus, aborted her calf, and none showed signs fo post-vaccination reactions.

The efficacy of the vaccine is attested to by another series of field tests in which susceptible feedlot yearlings were vaccinated. The vaccine produced no post-vaccination reaction in these serologically negative feedlot cattle. Serum antibody levels indicated that 'TSV' was as potent as existing IBR vaccines.

The name 'TSV' stands for "temperature specific virus", the characteristic that differentiates this vaccine from conventional IBR products. The virus strain used in 'TSV' has been chemically altered so that its growth is restricted to the temperature found only in the animal's upper respiratory tract. Here the virus replicates freely, providing rapid, localized immunity. The virus cannot however, multiply in the animal's system where normal body temperature is somewhat higher then in the respiratory tract. Thus, the temperature specific characteristic precludes the possibility of fetal infection that might result in vaccine-induced abortion - a major problem with conventional modified live virus vaccines.

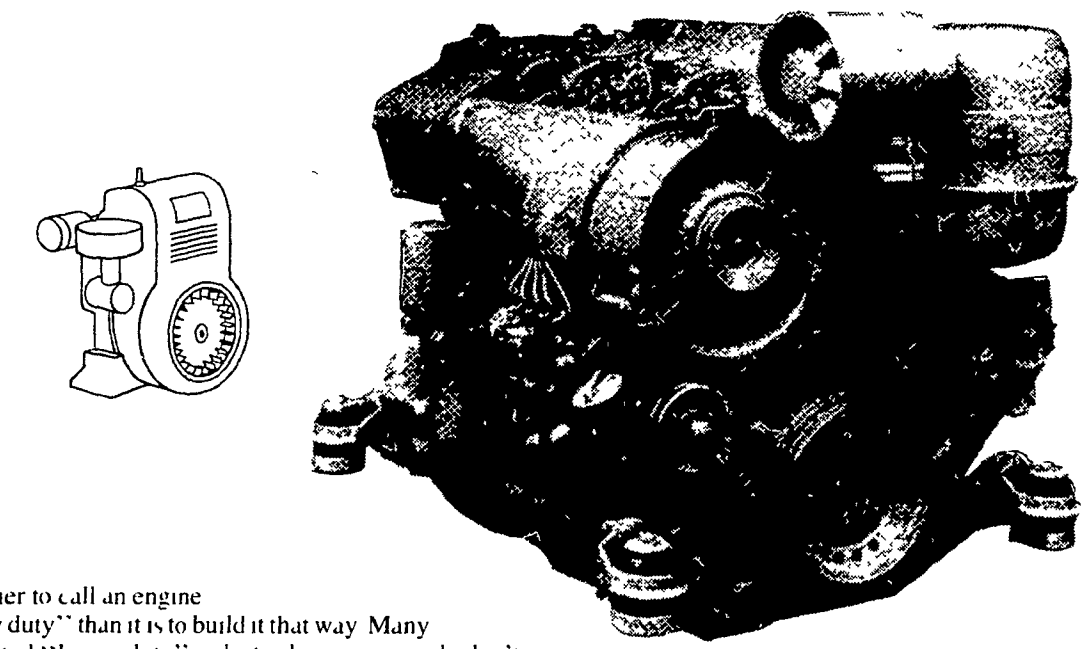
All air-cooled engines are NOT created equal



It's easier to call an engine "heavy duty" than it is to build it that way Many carburated "heavy duty" industrial engines simply don't deserve the title They consume expensive fuel at an alarming rate, they are prone to break down or overheat and their life expectancy is measured in hundreds of hours If any engine in the world qualifies as heavy duty, it's Deutz Deutz engines are often chosen to power equipment with unit price tags over half a million dollars—that's heavy duty

When it comes to cooling efficiency the Deutz precision engineered axial-flow cooling air blowers have no equal This direct approach to cooling (without coolants, additives cavitation) means our engines need only about 60% of the air volume liquid-cooled engines require Combustion efficiency is greatly improved by higher head temperatures and engine life is extended by cooler oil temperatures

If you think air cooled engines are prone to overheat, talk to Deutz users in the scorching heat of the Imperial or San Joaquin valleys There Deutz engines deliver more than 20,000 hours of trouble-free service before a major overhaul

There are lots of things that separate Deutz engines from water-cooled and other air-cooled engines Things like blower design, big lube oil coolers, oil-cooled pistons, special alloy cylinder heads, a research and development team of more than 1,000 engineers. These are all important advantages Still we say If you can find an engine that uses less fuel than a Deutz—buy it

WELDED NURSERY FEEDER

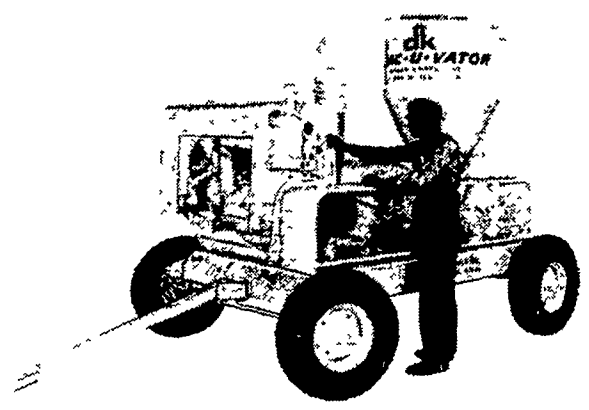
Star Agri Products has announced the introduction of a new pig nursery feeder with all-welded construction and space-saving undercut trough design.

The New Agstar feeder is rectangular in style, is six feet long, and has 10 feeding spaces. It has a partition in the center which allows use of the feeder to serve two separate pens. The feeder has been designated Model 721.

An outstanding feature is a new recessed trough design, which puts the trough area beneath the hopper and thus allows the feeder to take up about one-third less floor space than protruding-trough type feeders.

Also, the all-welded, instead of bolted, construction provides more rigidity and longer feeder life. The gauge of metal is also heavier than most bolted-together feeders. This is the same feeder being used in the company's Agstar Pig Castle portable pig nursery buildings.

An additional feature of the new Agstar feeder is the built-in step, which pigs must use to reach the trough. This helps keep the feed supply clean by discouraging dunging in the feeder. The new feeder also has the famous Agstar Tip Top feed flow control that allows adjustment from high inside the feeder, even when the hopper is full.



GRAIN CONVEYOR

The compact, general purpose "Grain-Vac" Pneumatic grain conveyor is self-contained and powered by a gasoline or diesel engine. A complete, independent transfer unit, it is easy to handle, easy to move when and where needed around a farm, ranch, elevator or warehouse plant.

The new, portable Grain-Vac is specifically engineered to simplify loading and unloading of trucks, boxcars, bins, silos, railcars, dryers. It is also ideal for filling and emptying flat storage warehouses and silos, topping-off flat storage warehouses, quick removal of hot spots, general all-around clean-up and salvage work.

The Model 9082 Grain-Vac is a complete, independent transfer unit powered by a 100 horsepower gasoline or diesel engine. Maximum conveying rate is 35 metric tons per hour under optimum conditions with a combination vacuum and pressure system when conveying U.S. grade number 2 corn. Conveying piping is eight inches diameter.

Operating principle of the Grain-Vac has been proven in both farm and non-farm applications throughout the world. Grain or pelleted feed is moved from intake to discharge entirely by air flow. Material completely bypasses the blower and gently drops by gravity through a separator into an air lock, where air flow again picks up the grain and conveys it to the discharge point.

Grain-Vac is the latest product of Dunbar Kapple of Batavia, Illinois, the world's leading manufacturer of portable pneumatic conveyors. Through more than 25 years of experience, Dunbar Kapple has earned a worldwide reputation for dependability in handling millions of tons of grains, chemicals, and food in more than 92 countries.

For complete literature and prices on Grain-Vac, contact: Mr. Thomas Meidell, Dunbar Kapple, 100 North Island Avenue, Batavia, Illinois 60510.

SCHAEFFERSTOWN, Pa. - An average of 737 pounds of butterfat gave the herd belonging to Edwin E. Funck, Jonestown R1, the top butterfat record of the Lebanon County DHIA membership, and a listing of 19,668 pounds of milk put Willow Maple Farm, owned by Harold and Donald Bollinger, Newmanstown R1, in the rank of top milk producing herd in the county. These facts were bought out last Tuesday at the Lebanon County DHIA annual dinner held at the Schaefferstown Fire Hall, here.

Funck and the Bollingers were recognized for their achievements with plaques awarded to them by Gregory Solt, county agent for Lebanon. The agent also handed out 23 ribbons recognizing herds in the 600 lb. fat category.

Funck's herd is comprised of 39 head of registered and grade Holsteins with a milk production record of 19,101 pounds. The Bollinger herd is made up of 48 animals with a record of 664 pounds of butterfat. This is the third year for Willow Maple Farms to have the top milk producing herd in DHIA. These top two records can be compared with the average for the county of 14,339 pounds of milk and 547 pounds of butterfat.

The other top herds in butterfat belong to Dale Hostetter and Sons, Annville R2, with 698 pounds of fat; Marvin K. Meyer, Annville R2 with 674 pounds of fat; Bennetch Brothers, Myerstown R2, with 653 pounds of fat; Arnold Acres, Lebanon R2, with 650 pounds of fat; Isaac E. Zimmerman, Lebanon R3, with 646 pounds of fat; Phares Musser, Newmanstown R1, 640 pounds of milk; Robert Martin, Myerstown R2, with 626 pounds of fat; Donald G. Hoffer, Lebanon R4, with 623 pounds of fat; Raymond and Marlin Getz, Myerstown R4, with 623 pounds of fat; Harvey T. Bomgardner, Annville R3, with 622 pounds of fat; Clarence Mase, Lebanon R5, with 616 pounds of fat; Warren Lentz, Lebanon R1, with 615 pounds of fat; Daniel B. Shirk, Newmanstown R1, with 615 pounds of fat; Albert Moyer, Lebanon R2, with 614 pounds of fat; Ernest Wagner, Annville R1, with 614 pounds of fat; David Brandt, Annville R1, with 611 pounds of fat; Ralph D. Shirk and Sons, Fredericksburg R1, with 609 pounds of fat; Kenneth Sellers, Lebanon R4, with 604 pounds of fat; Harold Wampler and Son, Lebanon R4, with 603 pounds of fat; M. Luther Bennetch, Newmanstown R1, with 603 pounds of fat; Norman Kline, Myerstown R 2, with 602 pounds of fat; Hubert Miller, Myerstown R2, with 601 pounds of fat.

Overall, in the county 89 herds with an average of five or more cows, exceeded an average production of 400 pounds of butterfat.

Before the awarding of the ribbons, Lebanon County Dairy Princess, Rose Brandt, spoke briefly on milk promotion, saying there are two essentials to pushing the product - a sincere belief in the commodity and a knowledge of its components.

And, before making the presentations of the evening, Gregory Solt spoke briefly on the DHIA program in Lebanon county. While Lebanon actually lowered in its production of milk and fat since last year, Solt asserted that the members were "holding their own" and blamed the minor loss on a higher milk price which caused farmers to keep their marginal, lower producing animals in the herd. Yet, even with the small drop in production, Lebanon County was sixth in milk production and seventh in fat.

Solt also reminded the group that DHIA is not set up as a base for competition to win ribbons. Instead, he stressed, that the ribbons are awards for merit, and that the DHIA is a record keeping system which should be used as is.

Other business on the agenda was the election of members to the board directors. Kenneth Sellers, Harold Bollinger, and Robert Lentz were all reelected for another three years.

Past accomplishments celebrated by Lehigh 4-H

By JUDY MITCHELL
Berks Co. Reporter

SEIPSTOWN, Pa. - Club members and leaders with their families and friends celebrated the accomplishments of the past year at the 12th Annual Lehigh County 4-H Achievement Night held at the Seipstown Grange Hall on November 4.

Winners in the "special awards" category were announced at the Thursday evening affair and included: Outstanding Food and Nutrition - Susan Follweiler, Lynnport Community Club; Award of the Silver Clover - accepted by Paul Krause, vice president of the New Tripoli National Bank; Meritorious Service to 4-H Award - accepted by Dean Phillips for Phillip's Feed Service, Inc.; and Outstanding Secretary - Nina Handwerk, Lynnport Community Club.

Special awards were also presented to the following club groups: the Schnecksville Merry Maids - Outstanding Home Economics Club; the Saddle-ites Horse and Pony Club - Outstanding Agricultural Club; and the Ancient Oak - Outstanding Community Club.

Other 4-H members were honored for their achievements in the following categories:

"I Dare You" Awards were presented by Charles Kistler, Lehigh County commissioner, to Gail Snyder, Germansville Happy Homemakers and Lehigh County Livestock clubs; and Tim Grim, Neffs Ag Club.

National Awards Medals in Achievement were presented by David Dunbar, county agent, to Mark Lichtenwalner, Macungie A & M Club, and Susan Young, Neffs Cloverettes; Agriculture - Timothy Geiger, Neffs Ag Club, and Steve Oswald, Lynnport Community Club; Clothing - Linda Leiby and Nina Handwerk, Lynnport Club, and Gail Snyder and Cheryl L. Sulzer, both from the Germansville Happy Homemakers group; Conservation of Natural Resources - Steve Oswald, Lynnport Community; Entomology, - Mark Lichtenwalner, Macungie A & M; Food-Nutrition - Susan Follweiler, Lynnport Club; and Joann Reaser, Neffs Cloverettes; Forestry - Sarah Fretz, Lehigh County Livestock; Gardening - Joann Reaser, Neffs Cloverettes, and Timothy Geiger, Neffs Ag; Home Environment - Debra Stroh and Cassandra Burns, Fogelsville Cloverettes, and Carol Krause and Cheryl Sulzer, Germansville Happy Homemakers; Leadership - Gail Snyder, Debra Stroh, Susan Follweiler, and Linda Lieby; and Citizenship - Daine Hahn, Schnecksville Merry Maids.

4-H volunteer adult leaders came in for their share of recognition as follows:

Receiving five year pins were Mrs. Jane Roeder, Macungie Home Economist; Mrs. Nettie Schoemaker, Saddle-ites Horse & Pony Club; and Harold Remaley, Neffs Ag. Accepting ten year pins were Richard Person, So. Lehigh Horse and Pony Club; and John Fretz, Lehigh County 4-H Livestock group. A 15 year pin went to Mrs. Martin Holmes, Poppin Pins Club.

Mr. Howard Sechler, Trexlertown Merry Stitchers, and Ralph Follweiler, Lynnport Community Club, received 20 year pins, and the one pin awarded for 25 years of service went to Mrs. Ernest Bleiler, Fogelsville Cloverettes.

Entertainment at the achievement night was provided by the Neffs Ag 4-H Club who performed a skit, and the Lehigh County Teen Council members who showed a slide presentation entitled "Lehigh County 4-H 1976."

What's new

The addition of three new safety and convenience features to its line of tractor driven alternators have been announced by Fidelity Electric Co., Inc., Lancaster, Pa. A significant new feature is three separate circuit breakers to protect each individual outlet or receptacle against external overloads or external short circuits (external to the alternator), to provide additional safety to the user and to his equipment.

A second safety feature is a new and larger PTO shield to prevent the operators clothing from becoming entangled with the PTO shaft connections, and to offer the user additional space to conveniently connect and disconnect the PTO shaft without removing the permanently attached shield.

A third new feature not now available on most farm alternators is a completely weather shielded enclosure to protect the circuit breaker and receptacle panel. It comes equipped with a hinged storm door to permit easy access to the receptacle panel. Further, it has an opening at the bottom to allow leads to be connected with the weather shield closed.

Fidelity Electric alternators are designed for continuous duty industrial operation with a control panel and a premium quality all beveled, helical gear box added for farm use. Therefore, they may be operated 24 hours per day and provide more motor starting capability than others, eliminating the necessity for farm users to stagger - start motors and lose valuable time during an electrical crisis.

Models are available in sizes for 15,000 watts to 40,000 watts. Complete descriptive literature may be had by writing to Fidelity Electric Company, Inc., 332 North Arch Street, Lancaster, Pa. 17603.

Loren Zimmerman elected pres. of Lanc. Co. Holstein Club

By SALLY BAIR

EAST EARL, Pa. - Loren Zimmerman, East Earl R 1, was elected president of the Lancaster County Holstein Club in a reorganizational meeting following their annual banquet Tuesday at Willow Valley Restaurant.

Elected vice-president was Nathan Stoltzfus, Gap R1; secretarty, Robert Kendig, Conestoga R 1; and treasurer, Elam Bollinger, Manheim R 7.

Newly elected directors include John Barley, Conestoga R 2, Earl Stauffer, Ephrata R 1, and Nathan Stoltzfus. Retiring directors are Clair Hershey, Nottingham R2; Albert Fry, Mount Joy R 1, and Galen Crouse, Stevens.

Earl Stauffer presented awards to Junior Holstein members who won in the county milk and fat contest. Winners were: 2 year old class, Steven Kauffman, Elizabethtown R 1, with a record of 18,468 4 per cent 743; 3 year old class, Richard Mellinger, Strasburg R 1, with a record of 16,530, 3.1 per cent, 520; four year old, Richard Bollinger, Lititz, R 4, with a record of 22,543, 3.3. per cent, 752; and five years and older, Joyce Stoltzfus, Gap R 2, 16,994, 4.7 per cnet, 794.

He also announced that Linda Kauffman, Elizabethtown R 1, is a finalist in the Distinguished Junior Member contest.

Lancaster County Dairy Princess Debra Kreider, Manheim R 5, spoke about her work in dairy promotion. She said that promotion is being carried out through the distribution of literature, and showed samples of the materials she uses.

She encouraged the dairymen to get involved in the milk promotion so that it can continue to expand as it has in the last year. She encouraged them to consider being either patrons ($1.00 per person, $2.00 per couple) or donors ($5.00) for the dairy princess coordinating committee. She told them it would be like investing in their own business. She concluded with a smile, "I guarantee you'll see results."

President and master of ceremonies Mel Eby presented Debra and alternate Dairy Princess Twila Brubaker with souvenir plates from the national Holstein convention in appreciation for their promotional work.

State director Robert Kauffman and Director of Special Programs Robert Morris borth urged dairymen to participate in the state convention being held November 17-19, at West Middlesex, Pa. They also asked for support of the local junior association as it gets started. Kauffman announced that there are over 5,000 members in the state and just under 600 in Lancaster County. He encouraged members to renew their memberships early.

Program Director Mike Nolan discussed the programs of the national office and stressed the need for bull pedigrees at the state office. He said the national convention will be held next June 27-28 in Columbus Ohio, with Obie Snider, Pennsylvania director, being nominated for vice president of the national association. In remarks prior to the banquet, County Extension Agent N. Alan Bair told the dairymen that part of their planning for the future should include "time to think, time to reflect and analyze and time to plan." He told members not to confuse "busyness" with getting a lot of work done or doing the best job.

Nearly 270 attended the banquet. Special entertainment was provided during the evening by Marlene Hershey and the Hershey-ettes. Banquet chairman was Glenn C. Hershey, with Clyde Buchen and B. Robert Charles.

300 attend York Co. Farm Women Convention

By JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Reporter

YORK, Pa. - St. Matthew's church, York, hosted the 37th Annual Convention of the York County Society of Farm Women on November 4. Attending the session were 300 women representing the county's 33 Farm Women groups.

A year of active fund-raising was culminated by the Society with their presentation of $6,000 to the York County 4-H Center.

County President, Mrs. Naomi Bupp, Group 11, presided over the morning business meeting. The delegates elected Mrs. Haxel Snodgrass, Group 21, to serve as county treasurer.

A candle-lighting memorial service for Society members who died during the past year was led by Mrs. Sherril Trimpey, Group 20. Mrs. Betty Almquist, York, presented an inspiring selection of inspirational and seasonal music, moving many of her audience to tears with her singing, and sharing of her love for the farm life and its people. Mrs. Almquist and her husband operated a dairy farm in New York, until he contracted polio and could no longer operate the business.

"What Will Happen To Sally?" was the question asked the women by speaker Mrs. Dwight Summers of New Freedom. Mrs. Summers is an adult probation officer with the York County court system. She explained the work involved in being a probation officer, and then presented a thumb-nail sketch of a typical female first offender.

"Locking a woman in jail does not help her to mature," stated Mrs. Summers. Based on her experience with past cases, she felt that many of the women were victims of circumstances, not hardened or dangerous criminals.

Being a mother as well, the officer expressed deep concern for the rising amount of juvenile crime. Responding to questions from the audience, Mrs. Summers indicated that virtually every juvenile she had worked with as a probation officer was at the time, or had been in the past, on drugs.

"It all comes back to lack of family structures for these kids. Many of them have parents who don't love them and don't want them," Mrs. Summers concluded. She emphasized the importance of youth having something to do in their spare time and urged the mothers present to take the time and help their young people become involved in worthwhile activities.

A number of guests were in attendance at the Convention, representing other county Farm Women Societies from across the state.

Following the family-style luncheon, greetings were brought from the Society's State President, Mrs. Lois Erb of Harrisburg. Mrs. Erb reported that two new counties have just been organized with their first groups, Juniata and Perry. Also, the state Scholarship Committee recently named this year's winners. They are Deborah Rohrer and Robin White, both Lancaster countians, and Janet Kreider, of Lebanon.

Gifts of appreciation were presented to Mrs. Harold Gross and Mrs. William Hake, for the many hours they had devoted to the fund-raising events sponsored by the 33 groups.

Musical entertaimnment during the afternoon featured The Farmers' Daughters, a group of 13 county members representing four local societies. An illustrated lecture, by Mrs. Leroy Bupp, depicting the agriculture of Western Europe and the Societ Union, concluded the annual meeting.

Officers of the York County Farm Women proudly present $6,000 to the Extension Office for kitchen equipment at the 4-H Center. They are, from left: Mrs. A. Brooke Snodgrass, newly-elected treasurer, Mrs. Marcy Seckman, Extension Home Economist, County President Mrs. Naomi Bupp, outgoing treasurer Mrs. Edward Brothers, and Mrs. Harold Gross, chairman of the two committees that raised the funds.

'Plain and Fancy Christmas' shared holiday tips

Berks Co. Reporter

HAMBURG, Pa. - Variety was the keynote of the Berks County Extension Homemakers Service "Plain and Fancy Christmas" held at the Hamburg Field House on November 3. By far the most popular Homemaker's event of the year, the program was attended by over 400 persons eager to share the experts' latest ips on Christmas decorations, fabric and sewing news, and kitchen cookery.

Mrs. Martha Endy of the Gidget Shop in Reading gave the first demonstrations of the day which included Christmas ornaments and decorations made by a wide variety of craft methods ranging from simple cutting and pasting of household items to the more involved methods of dip and drape and papier mache. One of the most popular items in the craft shop operator's holiday craft array was a duck made form plastic eggs, pompoms, and fake fur, complete with puppet-like strings to make it "waddle." One of the more general tips offered by Mrs. Endy was the recommendation of number 484 tacky glue for hard to anchor items.

"Holiday Vignettes" was the title of Mrs. Lonnie Behler's presentation which stressed the importance of theme decorating for Christmas. The member and past president of the Garden Club of York suggested beginning with the door and continuing with at least one common denominator in adding complimentary decorations throughout the house. Among the themes illustrated was Mrs. Behler's interpretation of the ancient Roman festival of "Saturnalia." Evergreens provided the main filler material for a door swag, centerpiece and wall garland, and gold angels of various sizes were the common denominators in each. Tiny pink rosebuds were repeated in the centerpiece and garland for a really elegant touch. Mrs. Behler offered some valuable information for handling evergreens used in holiday decorating. This included washing and placing them in a container of water to which a teaspoon of plant fertilizer has been added for shock prevention. When arranging the evergreens, wire mesh, sometimes called harware cloth, is useful as a backing for wall hangings; covering a coat-hanger base used for a swag or wreath with aluminum foil will help keep string used to tie the greenery from slipping; and an oasis or a styrofoam base can be used for table arrangements.

Extension staff member Mae Bleiler also stressed the importance of coordination in general home decorating as well as in wardrobe planning. Useful and attractive items to be made from small remnants of material included totes, throw pillows, and clutch bags which can be fashioned from the same fabric as a long dress The clutch is given shape and stiffness by self-quilting the light garment material using a pellon filler.

This set of decorations consisting of a door sway, centerpiece, and garland was demonstrated by Mrs. Lonnie Behler at the Extension Homemaker's Christmas program. The items pictured are her interpretation of the ancient Roman festival "Saturnalia." Mrs. Behler is the past president of the Garden Club of York.

A most interesting and useful feature of Miss Bleiler's presentation was an idea for expanding table space for holiday entertaining. A piece of four by eight plywood cut to the desired circular dimensions by a lumber dealer can be attached to a smaller square or rectangular table adding seating space for one or two more guests. As a finishing touch, Miss Bleiler demonstrated methods of measuring and sewing a round tablecover, and added napkins and even coordinated coasters made from remants of the tablecover fabric. The plywood, she cautioned must be well-sanded on one side and the edges, however, to prevent the tablecloth from snagging.

Extension Home Economist Fay Strickler suggested planning a party for the holidays and offered some suggestions for varying holiday entertaining by scheduling a party at an unusual time of day, a brunch for instance; adding interest to a trim-tree party by asking each guest to bring a ball or ornament; or including one unusual or spectacular dish to familiar favorite dishes served. She also showed some of the latest in small appliances to aid the holiday hostess. These included a portable electric broiler; an entertainment center which is primarily electric skillet but also serves as a crepe maker, a chaffing dish or a fondue pot; and a pizzelle maker for fancy Italian cookies which reverses to a plain grid for toasted sandwiches.

Mrs. Strickler exhibited a number of food items included in a printed recipe folder distributed to those in attendance and illustrated how each might be attractively served or packaged for gift giving. Small, frozen salads were set off on a pretty clear cut-glass plate and a colorful curried harvest fruit relish in a similar bowl. A holiday cheese spread, pickled mushrooms, an all purpose crunch topping, candied Swedish nuts, walnut candy, and wine jellies, were shown in a variety of clear glass decorator containers, stemware, and even a glass flower pot.

Mrs. Fern Herman, a member of the Homemakers Advisory Board, was Mistress of Ceremonies for the all-day program, and Mrs. Mary Kirkhoff gave the invocation preceeding the buffet lunch.

Model ideas in Md. farmland law

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is based on excerpts from speech by Dr. Frank L. Bentz, Jr., on "Agricultural Land Policy: A Maryland Perspective." Dr. Bentz gave the talk at the 11th annual Maryland Agricultural Forum, held at College Park on Nov. 4.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - Is it important to preserve agricultural land in Maryland? You must answer. Our situation is unique in Maryland because of the metropolitan influence of Baltimore and Washington, D.C.

Two bills were introduced into the state legislature in 1976 relating to farmland preservation. One plan called for buying development easements from farmers to preserve prime farmland for agricultural purposes. At a cost of $500 per acre, the total cost of this program would be $1 billion. It called for diversion of half of the money allocated for preservation of open space to help pay for the cost of buying easements. But many municipalities opposed this plan.

In 1974 the Maryland Land Preservation Foundation was established by the state legislature. This foundation was empowered to accept farmland easements for preservation purposes. But, to date, no easement deeds have been granted.

A one-cent tax on non-returnable bottles has been proposed to help raise money for purchasing farmland development easements in Maryland. It has been estimated that such a tax could raise $7 million.

Farmland preservatiion activities in Maryland counties include the following:

Howard County - Plan is being developed for farmers to sell their development rights to the county government.

Baltimore County - A 100,000-acre agricultural zone has been established.

Montgomery County - A member of the county council has introduced a bill to enable farmers to sell their development rights to the county government. Funding for this bill is expected to come from a tax on non-returnable bottles.

Frederick County - An agricultural district or zone plan has been introduced. This plan also proposes conservation zones or districts within the county.

Carroll County - A plan is being discussed. No definite action has been reported.

Calvert County - A committee has proposed a plan for agricultural land preservation.

Wicomico County - An agricultural core area has been proposed around Salisbury. Agricultural districts would also be expected in more remote areas of the county.

The farmland assessment law in Maryland is a model for the nation. It taxes farmland on the basis of its value as agricultural land. This has helped to slow the rate of transfer of land out of agriculture. Average tax rates on farmland in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties would probably triple if this law were removed from the statute books.

Estate Taxes - Proposals to base taxes on the basis of agricultural value have been made at both the national and state levels. Some change in this direction has recently been made by federal authorities. Similar change is needed at the state level.

Conclusion - Preservation of farmland in Maryland is needed for the following reasons:

Adequate food supply for the citizens of the state at reasonable cost;

Quality of the environment.

Will we sit idly by and do nothing until it is too late?

NPPC upset over USDA allowed labeling

DES MOINES, Iowa - The directors of the National Pork Producers Council are taking a dim view of the United States Department of Agriculture permitting the use of time-proven pork product names to help merchandize substitute poultry products.

All pork producers including the 80,000 pork producer members of the National Pork Producers Council are being urged to contact the USDA before November 24 to protest USDA's approval of poultry products using pork identified labeling.

The USDA recently temporarily approved that part of turkey carcasses could be formed, smoked, cured, and labeled "turkey ham." The USDA also permitted frankfurters, hotdogs, weiners, vienna, knockwurst, and other similar products identified with pork to be made entirely from poultry meat.

J. Marvin Garner, NPPC executive vice president, asked that in the fast food service or restaurant industry, where the label doesn't accompany the sandwich to the consumer, who gets the bad knock if the supposed turkey ham doesn't come up to the expectations of the consumers who doesn't know it isn't "real" ham they are eating?

The American Meat Institute had an independent survey conducted on poultry meat substitutes. Their survey reported that 100 per cent of the respondents considered "ham" was some form of pork and 79 per cent of the respondents thought turkey ham would be a combination of turkey and ham. Ninety-five per cent of the persons interviewed said hotdogs were made from pork and-or beef.

"These products from poultry meat content, yet labeled as pork products, have been permitted on the market with deceitful labeling," Garner said. "Consumers have fought for truth in labeling laws for years. It seems almost unbelievable to pork producers that the USDA would allow this sort of deception in the food industry."

Pork producers who want their views to be heard on this subject should write: Hearing Clerk, USDA, Washington, D. C. 20250.

Bird Repeller

The Av-Alarm acoustic system for repelling birds and other animal pests has been substantially improved. It now produces four sounds in automatic sequence with different bird-like chirp rates and pitch values. Meant for fully automatic operation from a 12 volt storage battery or optional built-in AC power supply, it is more powerful than ever, capable of covering 30 or more acres from a single speaker cluster. With the optional built-in relay switch and cabled speaker clusters (to a thousand feet or more) area coverage can be as much as 100 acres. Improved effectiveness results in part from powerful loudspeakers now made especially for pest control purposes by Av-Alarm. Greater reliability is given with these new rugged speakers as well as from redesigned electronics.

A unique and authoritative 16,000 word booklet on acoustic and integrated pest control methods and techniques is available on request. Av-Alarm Corporation, P. O. Box 2488, Santa Maria, California, 93454.

Thoughts in Passing

Thomas Arehart

By THOMAS AREHART
Warwick High School
FFA Advisor

The people in Brickerville could have a surprise coming their way very shortly if certain plans are met. Amazingly, it's not a factory, building, development, or new store. The "surprise" in this project is that instead of adding something new to the community, it will accent something that is already present - in large quantities. What is "it"? A uniquely blended combination of nature, history, and a community need. Let me explain.

For a long time the small community of Brickerville has felt the need for some form of expansion. Of course, when you hear the words expansion you immediately think of factories, houses, and ultimately, overcrowding. This is the old "forward step, one back step two" kind of progression. Some people, and only some, realize that Brickerville is the center of some historical data which should not be so quickly lost in its progression. For example, there are 15 or more acres that are owned by the Lutheran Churches in the area which were given to them by a William Penn Land Grant over 100 years ago. Most other forms of grants have already succumbed to the earlier form of progression already mentioned. The famous Baron Steigel left many tales to be told in this area and even our first president, George Washington, has left some reminders of how short a time 200 years can be. How then, can this area not only be preserved but also become somewhat of a tourist attraction? Admittedly, it is impossible - without the help of the community, the Lutheran Churches and the Warwick FFA Chapter.

The Warwick FFA Chapter would like to build "The Brickerville Historical Nature Trail". This trail will show visitors the wonders of nature while presenting much of the fascinating historical data of the immediate area. The trail is also designed to show how forests were maintained and kept over 200 years ago.

Basically, it takes you as closely as possible into the life of the 1700's or earlier. With one step you can be in the forests in which George Washington and many other people have walked, while learning the importance and spiritual essence that only a forest can provide.

Most of the hard labor to create this trail will be performed by the Warwick FFA Chapter, but the chapter would like to see many other people in on the actual building of the trail. As you know, you learn best while doing.

Most of the work, or learning, will be done on the weekends. We have yet to have the Lutheran Churches approve the idea and we could use a little community spirit from all the surrounding areas. Not only are we building a trail, but we're helping to build a stronger, safer, and more proud community. With a little bit of luck, backing, and imagination this trail could make the little town called Brickerville a state-wide tourist attraction. Now that's what I call progress.

EMERGENCY LIGHT

Revere Chemical Corporation recently introduced SAF-T-LITE, the power light that automatically goes on when all electric power fails.

This power light is a standby emergency light too. There's no more frantic search for flashlights when you have a SAF-T-LITE nearby.

Simply plug it into a wall outlet. At night it casts a soft glow that tells you it's recharging - at the same time it functions as a night light in barns, dark corridors and throughout stable facilities.

When the power fails, this light switches to full brightness automatically Remove it from the outlet and you've got an emergency hand-lantern to help you find your way. Will shine brightly for nearly an hour before it needs recharging

TRUCK HOIST

Increased stability - sidesway elimination - power up and down controls are a few of the advantages Crysteel Manufacturing claims for its new Model 655 truck hoist. It is designed especially for the longer (to 20 foot) truck bodies on single axle trucks.

The new unit, with a lifting capacity of 22 tons, operates off a single hydraulic cylinder with a lift height of 98 inches and a dump angle up to 55 degrees. The double acting, high pressure cylinder provides power up and down during dumping and acts as a hydraulic lock when the bed is in the down position. Cylinder bore diameter is six inches with a stroke of 27¼ inches. The high tensile chromed shaft is 2½ inches diameter; operating pressure is 3250 psi. If required, the eight piston pump may be ordered with extra valves. A 12V electric pump is also available.

The 655 has Crysteel's patented low profile mounting system This allows the hoist to nest within the truck frame, level with the long beams All the original frame strength is retained since no notching is required. An additional safety feature is the "wedge-tite" body guide mounting that holds the truck bed steady with or without loads. The far forward mounting position contributes both stability and lift capacity to the hoist.

Crysteel manufactures a full line of hoists for trucks and pickups. Capacities range from three to 29 tons and all models have Crysteel's Lo-Boy mounting feature.

Additional information on Model 655 and other Crysteel hoists can be obtained by writing Crysteel Manufacturing, Inc., Highway 60 East, Lake Crystal, MN 56055.

Texas Cattle

Cattle were so important in early Texas that when it was admitted to the Union, one wit remarked "Other states were carved or born, Texas grew from hide and horn"

Boston Common

Boston Common got its name, in 1634, because cow pastures were once an important part of any town's urban development In fact, most of the early colonial towns were laid out with a village green to provide pasturage for the 'common good

WHY DO FARMERS LOOK TO BEACON FOR NO-NONSENSE FEEDING?

Farmers have learned that Beacon Feeding and management programs are geared to make money for a farmer.

We're not afraid to be innovators. But our programs start first with proven research . . . are recommended by specialists who know their business . . . make use of practical quality ingredients . . . and are backed by local dealers who appreciate your business.

FOR EXAMPLE:

Dairy Feeding Programs

are recommended specifically for your herd. Any purchased feed recommended is to provide the nutrients you don't grow yourself. Beacon know-how can well be the key to providing the net profit you must have to stay in business.

Nutrena CLS

is one of the most economical methods of providing protein that your herd needs for good health and high production. Handy to feed and the Beacon supply service is excellent.

Pre-Serv Products are used by steadily more farmers to offset the effects of oxidation, mold and spoilage. More than 300,000 tons of hay have been treated with Hay Pre-Serv as farmers harvest hay up to 26 hours earlier, cut and store hay with as much as 25 percent moisture.

- Beacon Silage Pre-Serv provides up to 30 percent more feeding value per ton of grass silage or haylage because of less spoilage and shrinkage.
- Grain Pre-Serv is suitable for both feed grains and food grains to greatly reduce oxidation and resulting mold damage.
- Feed treated with Beacon Feed Pre-Serv keeps feed free from mold damage up to two weeks longer than untreated feed. feed.

Poultry Feeds

both for layer and turkeys - are formulated to provide the top performance at reasonable price that spells profits.

Swine Feeds

The Beacon Nutrena line up - for all ages and types of swine - is a proven and profitable program of management. The end result is more pig for your money, more profit for your time and investment.

Miscellaneous Feeds to fit special needs also emphasize the completeness of Beacon service.

- Minerals

  Three supplements especially formulated for the cow and to provide more mineral units per dollar.

- Dog Foods

  Chunk style or Meal style and the new High Protein Dog Food.

- Tend-R-Leen

  Steer Feed for outstanding results with dairy beef.

Can the weather be used as a tool for war?

Weather modification has opponents

By DIETER KRIEG

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 13th article in a continuing series on the weather, what is done to forecast it, and what is possible to change it.

"Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody ever does anything about it is a slogan that has been around for generations.

Modern technology, however, has changed that - at least in part. Man is doing something about the weather. The "art" of producing rain through cloud seeding is gaining broader acceptance, and just this past Summer USDA added $15 million to the 1976 Agricultural Conservation Program to control wind erosion in the Great Plains. Man can cause rain, make fog disappear, weaken hurricanes, and much more.

While many of these programs, both in the U.S. and abroad, have taken a strong foothold, there are a number of vocal opponents. This installment of "Weather Report" looks at opposition which is concentrated in this country. There are even charges that weather modification is a deliberate tool for warfare. And a central Pennsylvania group charges that Hurricane Agnes was encouraged by the Defense Department. Following are some excerpts from newspapers, magazines and brochures.

The New York Times on Aug. 22, 1975 carried a story alleging agreement between the U.S. and the USSR to "outlaw attempts to manipulate weather or otherwise modify the environment for military or other hostile purposes." The submission was a part of the Geneva disarmament conference taking place at that time.

The agreement sets restrictions to "not engage in military or any other hostile use of environmental modification techniques having widespread, long-lasting or severe effects as the means of destruction, damage or injury to another state." The term "environmental modification" is defined as "the deliberate manipulation of natural processes to change the dynamics, composition or structure of the Earth." Among the possible results of such manipulation would be earthquakes, tidal waves, upheavels of ecological balances, change in weather or climate patterns, the ozone layer or ocean currents.

"Hurricane Agnes was piled up and stabilized over the mid-Atlantic region by heavy (cloud) seeding under the direction of the Defense Department," charges a circular issued by the Tri-State Natural Weather Associates, Inc., which is headquartered in St. Thomas, Pa.

The same outfit also charges that Penn State University is tampering with the weather and that Govern Milton Shapp allows cloud seeding in spite of supposedly rigid laws to disallow it. "The Pennsylvania State University has engaged in blackmail activities against those who want the law enforced, have conducted research in contempt of the law and lied about the outcome of their own results of cloud seeding," Tri-State Natural Weather Associates, Inc. charges.

A professor at Penn State told Lancaster Farming that the University has done some experimentation with the weather, but those projects took place in the Virgin Islands, New York State, and Arizona. Commenting that weather modification could have a lot of potential for people in the Commonwealth, Dr. Alfred Blackadar called the passage of an anti-cloud-seeding law "very unfortunate." The law was Act 449, enacted Dec. 12, 1967.

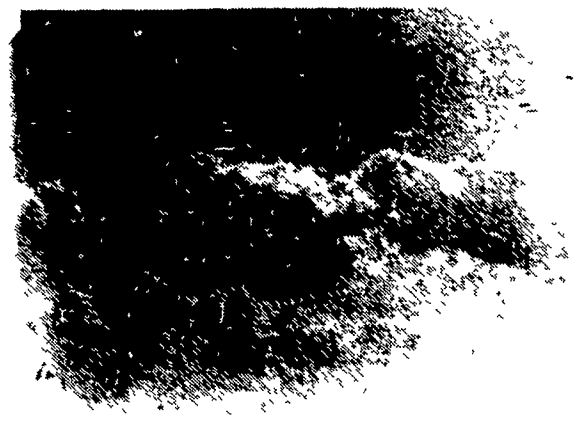
Commenting specifically on the charges made by the Tri-State group, the professor explained that their strong feelings were generated during the first half of the 1960's when their area was hit by severe drought. Weather modification projects became a scapegoat, even though no such projects had been going on in the area, and the technological know-how to cause such droughts was (and still is) unavailable. Nevertheless, Tri-States Natural Weather Associates, Inc., has continued to make the same charges. "They're very outspoken, but a completely irresponsible group," the professor stated politely. Blackadar added further that the organization cannot provide evidence of its charges.

"As 25 years of attempts report," says Tri-State, "rain cannot be increased, only moved around." They oppose the practice vigorously and link many cases of flooding to incidents of cloud seeding somewhere in that region. According to them, cloud seeding merely stops rain in one area while "piling it up in another."

A story carried in Time magazine three years ago told of the benefits of hurricanes, the delicate temperature balance between equatorial regions and the poles and government projects involved with weather modification. The article points out: "If this vital precipitation (from tropical storms) were ever cut off by man's interference, with such storms, the results might be ruinous to farmers, industry and drinking-water supplies. It's noted that portions of Earth receive as much as 25 per cent of their annual rainfall from tropical storms.

Meteorologist Francis K. Davis of Drexel University's College of Science in Philadelphia is quoted as saying the following if the Earth temperature balances are upset: "Unable to shake off their heat, the tropics might become warmer and warmer. Simultaneously, the polar regions would slowly become colder. Eventually both areas would expand, relentlessly shrinking the thickly populated zones between them."

Another possible horror foreseen by Davis, as reported by Time is that the suppression of large tropical storms could bring about the birth of super storms which would make today's storms seem like a gentle downpour in comparison



He concludes that: "Man must learn much more about Nature's most elementary forces before he tampers with them."

While agreeing that another "Ice Age," (as is being foretold by many scientists) would be highly detrimental to world food supplies, most scientists differ in their estimations as to what can be done to change the weather and how significant any changes would be. One report carried last year by United Press International indicated that a California researcher is convinced that a dam across the Bering Sea would improve the world's climate. He considers it to be the "key" to the Earth's weather system and claims the idea has been researched for several decades. Some meteorologists do in fact consider the Bering Strait as the "thermostat of the world" and give Lowell Ponte of Los Angeles some credit for the idea. Ponte is a former research consultant for the Pentagon.

At least one newspaper account in 1974 claimed that the Soviet Union is actively discussing plans to dam the Bering Sea as well.

The same article, which was written by John Hamer and datelined Washington, D.C., says:

"As science learns more about the weather and climate, more schemes to control them are suggested. Weather modification has come a long way from early cloud-seeding experiments and now is considered an operational technology capable of snow suppression or augmentation, hail reduction, fog dissipation, lightning alteration and hurricane modification. The Pentagon has admitted conducting a seven year weather warfare program in Indo-China, and a U.S.-Soviet meeting is planned this year (1974) to consider limits on such activity."

The question of using the weather for purposes of war has support and opposition. Pierre St. Amand, the director of the Navy's weather modification research program, claims that weather modification has the potential of shortening wars and eliminating much suffering. He asks: "Is it less cruel to destroy an infantry company with high explosives than to immobilize it with excessive rainfall? Opponents of the idea say this argument is invalid since both bombs and rain are likely to be used.

The Pentagon has acknowledged having caused significant rainfalls over the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Southeast Asia to make the countryside too muddy for caravans to travel on. It's also reported that rains have been used to discourage demonstrators after other methods failed. For both safety and-or war, scientists have learned to clear fog so that an aircraft can land. Many experts on the subject agree that both the U.S. and the Soviet Union have the potential of using weather modifications as a battlefield weapon.

Aside from the visible and clearly obvious modification results, there is also some experimentation going on to create invisible holes in Earth's ozone layer in the atmosphere. Strategically placed, these "holes" would allow for the bombarding of enemy countries with powerful ultraviolet rays from the sun. Dr. Gordon McDonald of Dartmouth College says: "If the full force of it (ultraviolet radiation) were experienced, it would be fatal to all life - including farm crops and herds - that could not take shelter." McDonald is one of the leaders in scientific circles who is trying to have weather war outlawed.

Several senators and congressmen have taken up the fight to stop weather modification programs, be they for the purposes of creating rain over parched farmland or a severe drought over an enemy nation

"Weather Report" will be continued in the Nov. 27 issue.

What's New

GRINDER-MIXER

A 120-bushel capacity grinder-mixer with standard hydraulics and a choice of drop feeder or plain table infeeding has been introduced by Farmhand, Inc., farm equipment manufacturer. The Farmhand 835 has a hammermill that's 20 inches wide and 21 inches in diameter with a screen area of 620 square inches. Hydraulics operate the drop feeder, stub auger and unloading auger.

A major feature of the new machine is the all-welded A-frame construction for greater strength and stability. Cone angle on the 120-bushel tank is 63 degrees and the 12 inch mixing auger has a 24 inch base. The mixing auger gearbox is accessible and removable from the base of the machine without entering the tank.

Another prime feature of the 835 is a combination bale door-drop feeder that's completely enclosed for safe operation. Angled portion of the mill throat opens to a 20 inch bale chamber that leads directly to the live-action feedroll, which is standard equipment. A magnet prevents metal from entering the mill, and a unique air flow system allows adjustments for maximum capacity when grinding baled hay.

Hydraulics are a standard feature, and the machine is available with a self-contained package or provisions for tractor hookup. Orbit motors operate the drop feeder (infinite speed adjustment from 0 to 275 rpm), stub auger and unloading auger.

Other features of the 835 include a 47 inch high unloading auger pivot that allows higher unloading reach. The 11 foot standard unloading auger reaches 12 feet 6 inches with a 270 degree arc. An adjustable brake holds it from swinging. An optional 3 foot extension increases reach to 15 feet and a 6 feet folding extension increases reach to 17 feet 2 inches. Height on all three is cable and hand winch controlled.

Optional equipment includes an electronic scale, a folding bale table extension, fenders, and 540 or 1000 PTO hookups. The 845 Model Feedmaster has the same features as the 835, but with a plain table that replaces the drop feeder.

WELDING AND CUTTING KIT

RegO's Model HD (heavy duty) combination welding and cutting outfit is specially packaged for use by farms and garages, among others.

In one kit, the Model HD combination offers welding torch, three welding tips (sizes 36, 50 and 62), two gas mixers, a heating tip, a cutting attachment, a cutting tip, a two-gauge acetylene regulator, a two-gauge oxygen regulator, and a welding and cutting manual.

Available accessories are goggles, a round file lighter, and a 20-foot long ¼ inch diameter cutting and welding dual hose.

RegO's Model HD combination kit offers everything you need to weld up to ⅝ inch steel or cut steel up to two inches thick. Additional tips may be purchased to enable welding up to one inch and cutting up to nine inches thick.

All equipment bears the Factory Mutual Seal and the Re-Examination Service Label of Underwriters' Laboratories.

For more information, write RegO, 4201 West Peterson Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

Pull Frame

North American Manufacturing Company, Sioux City, Iowa has announced the addition of a heavy duty "A" frame hitch to allow conversion of their deep sub chisel plow from standard category 2 or three-point hitch to pull type.

The "A" frame hitch is complete with cylinders, and cylinder mounts are included as standard equipment on all three-point hitch models.

The manufacturer states that the Grain-O-Vator Deep Sub Chisel Plow, now in pull model and category 2 or 3 type model increase soils moisture absorption, stops fields from blowing away, helps increase yields.

Shyster Lawyer

The witness was being interrogated rudely by the attorney for the plaintiff "What did you say your business was?" the lawyer asked "I'm a day laborer," was the reply "A day laborer, eh?" snarled the lawyer "What would you consider your social status is in this world as a day laborer?" "I don't think it's very high," the witness shrugged, but I feel I'm doing better than my father before me" "What was your father?" "He was a shyster lawyer," grinned the witness

acres, bushels, cases, crates, kilowatts, gallons, board feet, tons, head, bales, and lugs?

WE DO. The Farm Credit System. We're agriculture's own credit source. Owned by and operated for the benefit of farmers, ranchers, and growers.

We help farmers buy and improve acres that produce millions of bushels of grain, cases of eggs, crates of oranges, gallons of milk, board feet of lumber, tons of hay, countless head of livestock, bales of cotton, lugs of peaches. And all other kinds of products of American Agriculture.

There's more. We provide money for feed, seed, fertilizer, feeder calves, baby chicks, machinery, and all the other supplies to operate a modern farm.

It's our job to gather the most important crop of all - capital. Money for all the things it takes to keep agriculture at full capacity, able to feed and help clothe the other 95 percent of our population . . . plus untold millions in other lands.

Proceedings of annual meeting outlined

Inter-State focusing on consumerism

SOUTHAMPTON, Pa. - Nearly 1,000 dairy farmer leaders from six states will be taking a closer look at consumerism Nov. 18-19, at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Philadelphia, when Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative holds its 59th annual meeting.

Nearly 3,000 dairy farmers from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia will be represented by the more than 300 directors, officers, delegates and alternates that comprise the policy-making structure of the cooperative.

"We found this, our nation's 200th birthday, an excellent excuse to focus in on those who comprise this great country - the consumer," noted Dr. James E. Honan, Inter-State's general manager.

Aileen Gorman, executive director, National Consumers Congress, will be the featured speaker at the afternoon session on Nov. 18 and she will participate in a panel discussion the following morning for the women's program. Joining her Friday morning will be Susan Friday, lobbyist, National Milk Producers Federation, and Robert M. Dever, Inter-State's treasurer.

Ms. Gorman's appearance tops off the year's consumer programs which included on Sept. 14, a special consumer information forum which was attended by 40 Philadelphia metropolitan area consumer organization leaders and other officials. Those participants have been invited to hear Ms. Gorman at either session.

This year's annual meeting banquet, set for 6:15 p.m. Thursday, will feature a special bi-centennial program. In addition, a 24-member youth group of singers and dancers known as "The Young Columbians" will present a festive tribute. Emcee for the evening will be Phillip Alampi, New Jersey Secretary of Agriculture.

Thursday's business will begin at 9:45 a.m. with reports by the president, Lester C. Jones, Medford, N.J. dairy farmer, and Inter-State's staff. Dr. Honan's general manger's report will begin the afternoon session, starting at 1:30 p.m.

Members of the Young Cooperator Consultant Committee, a select group of young dairy farmers, will hold their annual breakfast program at 7:30 a.m. Charles H. Rohrer, Paradise, Pa., is chairman of the group while Geary Shade, Alexandria, Pa., is breakfast chairman. Following breakfast, delegates will present and vote on resolutions concerning policy proposals for the upcoming year.

Members of this year's annual meeting committee are Daniel L. Martin, chairman; William Brinsfield, vice chairman; Willis L. Greaser and Lester Jones.

The resolutions committee is chaired by Robert E. Smith, York Springs, Pa. Other members are: Carlton Blendt, Townsend, Del.; Maurice Winner, Morrestown, N.J.; and John Carvel Sutton, Kennedyville, Md.

Mrs. Victor Dickerson, Middletown, Del., is chairman of the ladies committee. Other members of the committee include Mrs. Walter G. Hitchner, Bridgeton, N.J.; Mrs. John Paul Laycock, Kearneysville, W. Va.; and Mrs. Roy L. Coover, Carlisle, Pa.

Book in print on high moisture grain

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, ILL. - A new, comprehensive booklet explaining the "why" and "how" of high moisture grain for all kinds of livestock is now available from A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. The new 24-page booklet is jointly authored by 10 nationally-known authorities on animal science and agronomy from universities across the United States.

Entitled "Research report on High Moisture Grains - a complete 'short course' in print", the new booklet is non-commercial in nature. It explains why farmers like high moisture grain; the harvesting and storage savings available; how to use high moisture grain for best livestock returns; research results with beef, dairy, and swine; as well as other facts.

In addition to corn, the authors explain the use of other crops that can be used for high moisture grains, including barley, milo, and reconstituted milo.

The new booklet is divided into 15 sections, each devoted to a specific area of crop production, proper storage, animal feeding, or management. Also included is a complete explanation of what happens to grain stored at high moisture to make it nutritionally more valuable than dry grain, if it is stored under oxygen-limited conditions.

Individual copies of the booklet are available from local Harvestore dealers, or by writing to A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., 550 W. Algonquin Rd., Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Red Lion participates in Eastern National

RED LION, Pa. - The Eastern National Livestock Show at the Timonium was the setting for a livestock and meats judging contest, participated in by 29 members of the Red Lion Chapter.

The contest included five classes of livestock animals, two classes of meats, a quiz and identification of 25 retail cuts of meat. The contest drew 150 students and 30 teams from six states. Jay Caudill, Bryen Grove, and Brenda Walter placed third as a team; Becky Aults, Carolyn Frey, and Lori Wolford placed seventh. In individual competition, Brenda Walter and Jay Caudill placed 17th and 18th respectively.

County Council Meets

YORK, Pa. - Linda Ebaugh, of the Airville 4-H Club, was recently presented a check from the York Fair Association for being named the Outstanding 4-H member at that fair last September. The presentation was made on November 3 at a York County 4-H County Council meeting. Bestowing the award was Timothy Markovits, assistant county agent. This check will cover Linda's expenses when she attends the National Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky.

Also at the meeting, plans were made for a Christmas dance to be held on December 1 at the 4-H Club in Bair for members 13 years and older. Members from Adams, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, and Lancaster Counties are invited.

Profits from a recent cookie sale will be divided as follows: 60 per cent to the 4-H Center for operating expenses, 30 per cent to local clubs, and 10 per cent for awards.

The next meeting will be a Christmas Party on December 1, at the 4-H Center. A gift of $1 should be brought by each member for the grab bag. Refreshments will be served.

The next roller skating party will be November 22, at the Delco Plaza. Price is $1 plus skates, the time 7-10 p.m.

After the meeting members went on a hayride which was followed by refreshments and fellowship.

Red Lion takes contest

RED LION, Pa. - Seven members of the Red Lion FFA Chapter recently participated in the York County FFA land judging contest. The students judged three areas of land each with different characteristics. Contestants had to determine amount of slope, depth of soil, drainage, etc. and recommended type of crops and land use management for the area.

Red Lion members winning were: Dan Young, Robert Eberly, Albert Fake, Sue Herbst, placing first - fourth respectively. Tom Innerst and Darlene Schrum were other Red Lion contestants. There were 16 contestants from schools through put out the county.

Scientists now recognize more than 100 elements. Most of them occur in plants, but only 17 are currently known to be essential. The 17 known essential plant elements are classified as follows.

ESSENTIAL NUTRIENT ELEMENTS AND THEIR SOURCES

ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS USED IN RELATIVELY LARGE AMOUNTS			ESSTENTIAL ELEMENTS USED IN RELATIVELY SMALL AMOUNTS
Mostly from Air and Water	From Soil Solids		From Soil Solids
Carbon	Nitrogen	Calcium	Iron	Copper
Hydrogen	Phosphorus	Magnesium	Manganese	Zinc
Oxygen	Potassium	Sulfur	Boron	Chlorine
			Molybdenum	Cobalt

Other minor elements such as sodium, fluorine, iodine, silicon, stronitium and barium do not seem to be universally essential, as are the seventeen already cited, although the soluble compounds on some may increase crop growth.

$22,000 tops Curtiss sale

Fifty-eight registered Holstein cows and heifers, all daughters of Curtiss Breeding Service bulls, averaged $3,730 in the Curtiss '76 Classic Sale at Elburn, Illinois, October 4.

Forty-nine of the 58 sold for $2,000 or more, according to Ted Krueger, the Curtiss executive who coordinated the event. Twenty six brought $3,000 or better.

The $22,000 sale topper, consigned by Joseph L. Vierra and Son, Livingston, California, combined the two best-known Curtiss Holsteins of recent times. An "Excellent 92" daughter of Pawnee Farm Arlinda Chief out of an "Excellent 90" daughter of Paclamar Astronaut, she went to BHL Ovary Transplants of Paris, Ontario, and Scientific Transplants of Las Animas, Colorado.

Second high at $10,500 was a bred heifer sired by Rosafe Citation R and consigned by R. Dale Jones, Claypool, Indiana. She was purchased by Zenhichi Hashimoto of Hokkaido, Japan.

A "Very Good 88" daughter of Paclamar Astronaut with two records over 20,000 pounds of milk was next in line at $10,000. She was consigned by Enol Additon, Greene, Maine, and purchased by Irvin Recker, Yorkshire, Ohio.

The sale was the seventh in a series dating back to 1961 under the sponsorship of Curtiss Breeding Service, a division of Searle Agriculture Inc.

David H. Bachmann of Sheboygan Falls, Wisconsin, served as sale manager. A crowd estimated at 1,800 was in attendance. Approximately 1,000 people took part in open house at the Curtiss Production Center on the afternoon and evening preceding the sale.

Due to impressive fuel economy, Jøtul is an investment that can pay for itself over the first winter.

MINERAL FEEDER

A new Agstar mineral feeder that attaches to liquid feeder tanks has been announced by Star Agri Products. Built of 16-gauge steel and equipped with hinged brackets to prevent damage by livestock, the new feeder is attached by hooking brackets over the lip of the tank sidewall.

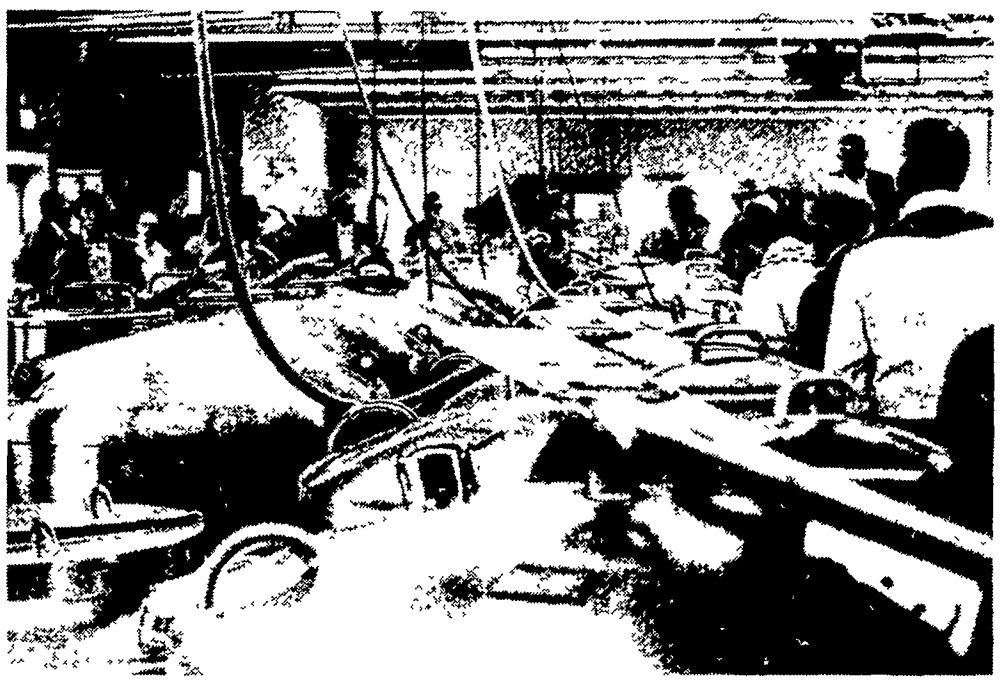
The two-compartment trough is covered to protect the contents. Overall dimensions are 17 inches by 24 inches and the trough is seven inches by 10 inches.

According to Brad Donahoe, marketing manager for Star Agri Products, the new feeder is one of the newest additions to the line of liquid feeding equipment that includes nine models of tanks with capacities from 1925 pounds up to 5500 pounds and a choice of three feeder wheels.

The company also makes a liquid feeder wheel and bracket that can be used with a 55-gallon drum or other suitable container.

Agstar is the new brand name for the more than 450 styles and sizes of livestock related products formerly sold under the Starcraft brand.

ABS visited



American Breeders Service, DeForrest, Wis., opened its doors to visitors from all over the United States and various other parts of the world last month. Among the hundreds of people to tour the facilities were dairymen from Pennsylvania. ABS representatives arranged transportation and tours. Shown in the top picture is the interior of one of ABS' several bull barns. Built 10 years ago, the structure was designed to be 20 years ahead of its time. Aside from being immaculately kept, the barn also features stereophonic music and an adjoining "hall of fame." The middle picture depicts another portion of the 1100 acre complex where younger bulls are stabled while awaiting proofs. Down below is "The First National Bank of ABS," where 2½ million ampules of semen are stored.

HOG PEN PARTITIONS

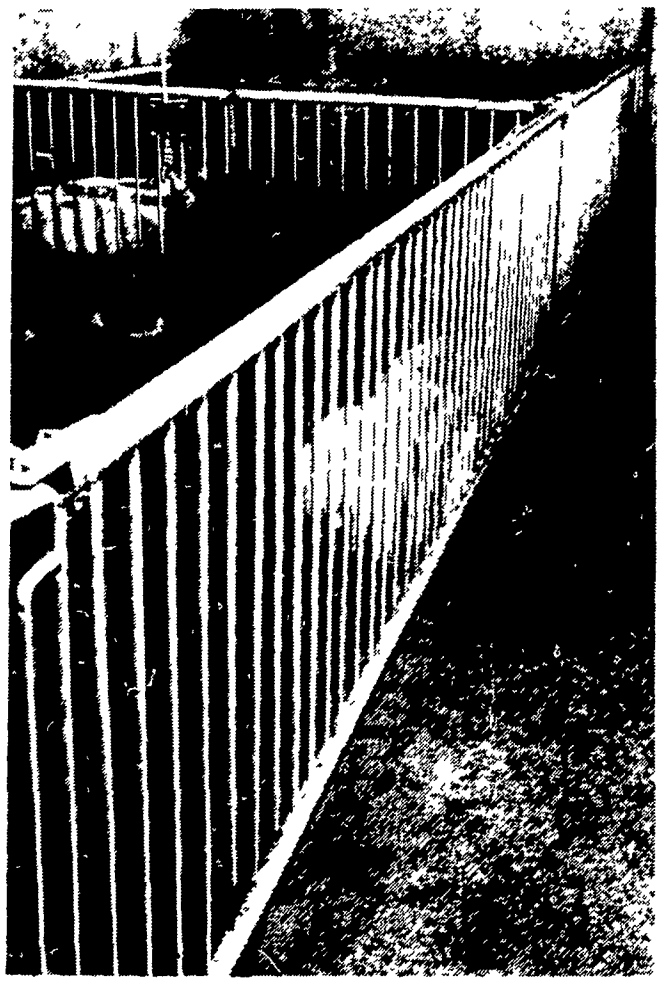
Star Agri Products has announced a new type of pen partition for use in hog confinement installations.

An important advantage in the vertical bar arrangement is that animals cannot climb out of the pen.

The new AGSTAR partitions come in 2-inch and 3-inch rod spacings, to fit both nursery size and finishing size or larger hogs. Lengths are from two to 16 feet, and installed partitions stand 36 inches above the floor. Partitions can also be ordered with telescoping section to fit in-between size openings.

Every partition also serves as a gate, since each is equipped with a newly-designed hinge attachment secured with a locking pin. When the pin is removed, either end of the partition can be easily opened. A full complement of posts and wall brackets are also available.

The new partitions are the latest addition to the Star Agri Products line of more than 460 styles and sizes of Agstar brand livestock equipment items.



THREE POINT BLADE

A new blade attachment, designed for use on farm tractors, was recently introduced by Vermeer Manufacturing Company, Pella, Iowa.

The new Vermeer three point blade is easily mounted onto the three point hitch of a category 1 tractor. It features a 96 inch blade width, ten adjustment positions and 12 inch offset either right or left. A 3/8 inch x six inch wear plate is mounted along the bottom edge of the blade to extend blade wearability.

The blade also can be rotated a full 360 degrees while it is mounted so the operator can push or pull material without having to remount the attachment to change positions.

Top individuals with 4-H Baby Beef honored

FLEETWOOD, Pa. - Last Saturday the Berks County 4-H Baby Beef held their annual banquet at the Fleetwood Grange Hall at 7 p.m. The evening was highlighted by Lori Haas, a 16 year-old 4-H member from Douglassville R1 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Haas. She received a silver plate award for exhibiting the grand champion steer at the 1976 Berks County 4-H Baby Beef Roundup which was held October 13 at the Leesport Market and Auction.

Darlene L. Dietrich, a 14 year-old 4-H member from Hamburg R1 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dietrich, also received a silver plate award for exhibiting the reserve grand champion 4-H steer at the Roundup. The silver plate awards were sponsored by the Berks-Lehigh PCA and Federal Land Bank, Shoemakersville; and Agway, Inc., Berks Way Zone, Leesport. The Dietrich youth also won a plaque for winning junior champion showman. This award was sponsored by Pennfield Feeds, Lancaster.

Dean A. Kirkhoff, an 18 year-old 4-H member from Bernville R2 and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon G. Kirkhoff, was awarded a silver plate for running the senior champion showman honor at the roundup. A silver plate also went to Dennis Dietrich, a 17 year-old brother of Darlene and son of James Dietrich, Hamburg R1, for winning senior champion fitter. These two awards were sponsored by F.M. Brown & Sons Feeder, Inc., Birdsboro and Van Mar Feeds, Inc., Shoemakersville.

Liane M. Haas, a 14 year-old 4-H member from Douglasssville R2 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Haas, received a plaque for winning junior champion fitter, and Tina L. Hafer, a 14 year-old 4-H member from Douglassville R2 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Hafer, won a plaque for the most total weight gained award at the banquet. Her angus steer gained a total of 615 pounds in 290 days for a daily average gain of about two pounds. These awards were sponsored by Swatara Creek Feed Mill, Myerstown; and Wentzel and Metz Feed Mill, Hamburg.

The banquet speaker was Wayne Morris, who put on a program called "Steward of the Soil," courtesy of Stauffer Chemical Company.

Halloween celebrated

YORK, Pa. - The Ore Valley 4-H Club celebrated Halloween with a hay ride at the Lau Farm. After an untimely tractor breakdown, the members were forced to return on foot through the woods in the dark. Upon their return, they were conducted on a tour of the laboratory of Dr. Shock, first man to perfect a human head transplant.

The first stop was a visit to Witch Rotten Bottom (Deb Lau) who gave the group her recipe for eyeball stew. Next came a visit to the mortuary where the latest headache victim (Troy Ness) was being mourned by his widow (Maria Leto). Further on, Dr. Shock himself (Don Flory) gave a surgical demonstration on an unnamed patient (Judy Waltersdorff). After leaving the laboratory through a booby trapped hay tunnel, the group viewed the underground waiting room where patient - gone - mad (Steve Trostle) was chained. Last stop was the cemetery where such notables as Hickey Longnecker are laid to rest.

The meeting was concluded with refreshemnts and games in the Lau basement.

The final meeting of the year will be achievement night. It will be held at the Red Lion Grange on Dec. 11 at 7 p.m. Year pins, awards to high cookie salesmen, and trophies for special achievement in all project areas will be given.

TRY A CLASSIFIED AD!

All the Time

A man consulted a psychiatrist for help with various problems. As usual, the analyst said, "Stretch out here on the couch. Just relax and tell me about your early life. Keep on talking and say anything that comes to mind " The patient proceeded to spill out his life's story. Suddenly, the analyst took out a big balloon and blew it up Then, he stuck a pin in it. The balloon burst with a loud crash. The patient was startled The doctor said quickly, "Now tell me what you thought about when you heard the loud explosion?" "I thought about sex, it's all I ever think about."

What's New

Herdex Addition To Cowculator System

New Herdex, the latest addition to the Raytec line of ag record-keeping systems, enables a dairyman to catalogue and index complete reference data on every animal in his herd.

Designed to supplement the Cowculator dairy-information system, Herdex helps speed reocrd-keeping chores. Detailed data like veterinary treatments, special breeding instructions, pedigree and milk production can be quickly written on the Herdex fact sheets. Because animal name or number remains constantly visible, Herdex makes it easy for the dairyman to locate desired information when needed.

Herdex is constructed of heavy-gauge aluminum with hinged soil and moisture-resistant fact sheets. The entire unit conveniently installs on Cowculator frame for easy reference or may be wall-mounted and used separately.

For complete details on this new record-keeping tool, write Raytec Manufacturing, Ephrata, Pa. 17522.

Nutrient-Packed

Panfried liver slices are not only quick and tasty, but they're nutrient-packed. Liver is an excellent source of minerals (especially iron) and of vitamins (especially vitamin A, niacin, riboflavin and thiamin)

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE ANTIQUES

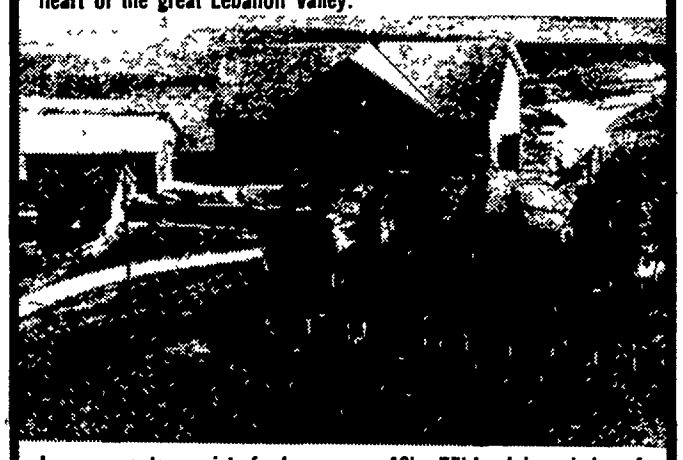
SATURDAY NOVEMBER 27, 1976

9:00 A.M.

To be held on the premises located at route 1, Lebanon, Lebanon County in both Heidelburg and Jackson Townships. Turn south off route 422 at Presscot at traffic light and continue appx. 3 miles to farm or turn west off route 501 in Reistville and continue appx. 3 miles to farm.

99.76 ACRE FARM REAL ESTATE

This highly productive farm pictured below will sell at 1:00 P.M. on Nov. 27 with the terms being 10% down and the balance and settlement date to be announced at sale time by Attorney Louis Meyer. This farm has a very desirable location and is located in the very heart of the great Lebanon Valley.



Improvements consist of a large appx. 40' x 75' bank barn being of frame and stone construction with asbestos shingle roof and a small attached milk house. Barn was last used for a hog or beef fattening operation.

Other outbuildings consist of a 24' x 36' drive through a corn shed and implement storage building of frame construction with a slate roof. Also included is a very old stone hog sty which was recently featured in a local historical newsbook.

The large 2½ story brick house was built in 1855 by the late Henry Mase. First floor has a large kitchen, 2 living rooms which are adjoined by a large folding door, and a side room which has semi-bath facilities. Second floor has 4 bedrooms joined by a common hallway which also provides access to a large attic.

This home has a stonewall basement, spouting, outside entrance to basement, drilled well, old shutters and an attached 1½ story summer house building. If in need of some country property which has untold old features and many other interesting items, plan to attend open house on Nov. 6 from 10 to 4 o'clock or private inspection by calling John Mase at 717-933-4254, or Marvin Mase at 717-273-6583. These buildings are all very sound and structurally well built situated on very productive land so plan to attend and be the last to bid on this great investment opportunity.

Bull Story

A poor farmer with a huge family decided to take them to the county fair Tickets to see the prize bull were $1 00 per person "But I've got a wife and 18 children," pleaded the farmer to the ticket seller, "Couldn't you let us in for half price?" "18 children!" gasped the hawker in amazement "Just wait here, I'll bring the bull out to see you!"

DON'T FIGHT MASTITIS PREVENT IT!

TEAT DIP

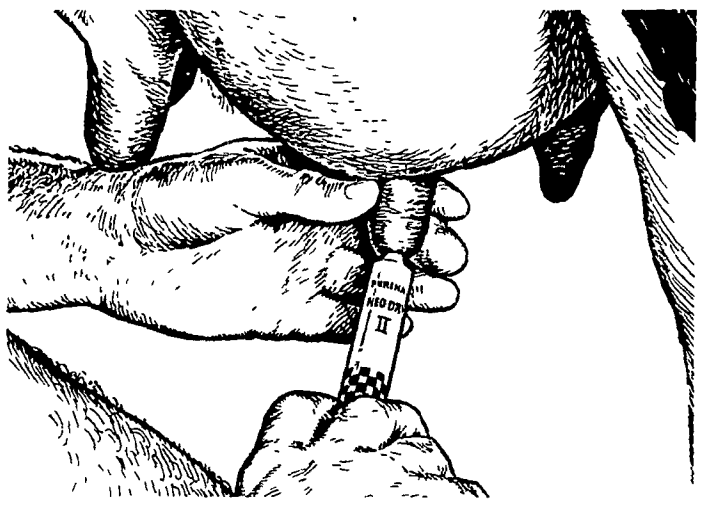
PURINA BOVADINE *

Ready-to-use "Tamed Iodine" teat dip. Use after every milking, it aids in reducing the spread of organisms which may cause mastitis before they enter the teat canal. In Pa. test herds, a good mastitis program including washing udders and using teat dip reduced mastitis cases to only 2-3 percent.

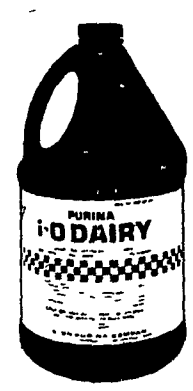
* Reg. Trademark of West Chemical Products, Inc.

TREATMENTS

NEO-DRY II (Dry Cows)
NOVO-MAST III (Lactating)



UDDER WASH



PURINA i-o DAIRY

A combination of detergents acid and iodine that cleans and sanitizes milking equipment and prevents build-up of milkstone. Also a non-irritating wash for flanks and udders with cold or lukewarm water.

PURINA'S RULES FOR GOOD MILKING

1. Wash the udder with a warm sanitizing solution made with Purina i-O Dairy, then dry with a single service paper towel.
2. Take 2 or 3 streams from each quarter and examine for problems
3. Attach the teat cups when teats are full of milk.
4. Adjust teat cup during milking to insure that all quarters milk out properly.
5. Machine strip when milk flow slows to a minimum (strip quickly). IMPORTANT-DO NOT OVERMILK.
6. Dip teats in Purina Bovadine immediately after the teat cups are removed.
7. Treat all cases of clinical mastitis with Purina's Novo-Mast III. Follow label instructions.
8. Treat all quarters at drying off with Purina's Neo-Dry II. Follow label instructions.
9. Conduct cowside screening tests at least once a month. Record the results for future reference.
10. Have your milking machine service representative check your entire system at least twice a year.

IS APPROVED BY THE NATIONAL MASTITIS COUNCIL

AND IS USED DAILY BY PURINA'S 1500 COW HERD
